

Sophomore Brandon Givens jumps as if he is floating on air. Brandon's long arms help him play basketball, which is something that he may want to do in the future.

Sophomore James Wheeler jumps as high as he can to push the ball up above the rim. James loves to play basketball, and enjoys getting out on the court and showing everyone what he can do.

Working hard on the court, the team practiced on the days they didn't have games from 3:20-4:30 in the gym. They ran, did lay ups, drills, and scrimmaged to prepare for their games on Tuesday's and Friday's. "The best strategy that I could think of would be keeping my mind on playing ball," sophomore Deven Beasley said.

The coach this past year was Coach George, and by the looks of the players, he was well liked. "I like Coach George, because he knew exactly what he was doing, and he is real with us," sophomore Antonio Linnen said.

Running up and down the court, going over plays, and working on defense was one thing that was very important to the Jr. Varsity boys basketball team. Most of the time during the season, the team was on the go. "The most important thing to do during the season is to stay fit by constantly exercising," said sophomore Elijah Mikel.

"I like to give everyone the same amount of playing time, because everyone does the same amounts of practices," said Coach George.
