

Teacher of the year, George Smith gets ready for disco fever. Even the teachers enjoyed participating with students in spirit week. "Teachers should participate in spirit week because if we are not enthusiastic, then we can't expect students to be," Mr. Smith said.

Students start off every day by saying the pledge. This national tradition united students. "I think we should say the pledge whenever necessary, not just at school," junior Antwan McMillian said.

Holding the banner for the homecoming game, the cheerleaders wait for the football team to tear through. Before each game, the cheerleaders made signs to boost the teams spirit. "Making banners pumped us up for the games and united us as a squad," senior Angela Gagnon said.

The empty parking lot shows the effects of the famous senior cut day. Seniors worked hard to make a plan without letting administrators know. "Senior cut day was fun and exciting, and I was glad we didn't get caught," senior Ciera Hilton said.

Relaxing at the senior tailgate party, the varsity football players unite to grill their lunch. The seniors spent the afternoon with friends and had a lot of fun. "The tailgating party was a very fun experience. I think it was really great that Mr. Bullock trusted us enough to do it. I am really going to miss it," senior Joseph Taylor said.
