

Out of Sight, Out of Mind

Many students relaxed on the beach for their spring break. The hot, soft sand between their toes made them even more relaxed. The ocean breeze cooled people off and made it comfortable to sit and relax. "It could be really relaxing to lay out and very exciting when playing volleyball or swimming with a bunch of friends," junior Victoria Harrison said.

Students took tremendous pride in their tans, because they had worked so hard to get them during spring break. They made sure they showed them off the following week at school. "Spring break is a good time to work on your tan," junior Brittney Garvin said. As the day dwindled down, sunburned exhaustion started to take over. However, even the worst sunburn did not stop most students from returning to the beach. "Even though I get sunburned all the time, going to the beach was still my favorite thing to do for spring break," freshman Meghan Carter said.

RELAX AND ENJOY THE BEACH

"My spring break was a lot of fun because I sat around my house with friends and watched T.V. Even though I didn't do a lot, I still had fun."

-Senior Jameika Teasdel

Dressed to impress sophomore Mandi Warner and juniors Kim Bullock, Cameron Price, and Jennifer Goodwin are ready to go out and have fun. "We went to Edisto Beach for spring break and had a lot of fun making memories," Mandi said.

Looking forward to spring break this year, senior Shante Washington said she wanted to visit Atlanta again. "My spring break was fun because I went to Atlanta," Shante said.

Celebrating the end of spring break, junior Brittney Garvin and her friend Lauren Bass are extremely muddy after mud bogging all day. "We had alot of fun during spring break," Brittney said.
