

Do you like being in Youth Court?

"I love being in Youth Court, and if I could be in it next year I would."

LaQuanda Murray, 12th

"I love being in Youth Court. I love the people in it and I hate the fact that this is my last year. I encourage everyone to join next year."

Sasha Brown, 12th

"I really have learned a lot of things this year and I have really enjoyed being in Youth Court."

Lakenya Yates, 11th

Making sure everyone in Youth Court makes it, junior Shelton Williams checks the attendance. "I love Youth Court: it not only gives me something to do, but it also helps me learn more about the law," Shelton said.

With a little help from the Explorers, Youth Court holds a booth in the Wal-Mart parking lot. The members made an impression on many children by taking their finger prints and giving them rulers, safety rules, and candy.

Showing the youth court members that trials mean serious business, Mr. Tomas waits for everyone to quiet down so that the meeting can begin. "Youth Court was a wonderful organization that exposed all of the facts of the legal system," Mr. Thomas said.

Making sure the children's hands are clean, after taking their finger prints, everyone pitches in to help. "I was unable to make it out there but I heard a lot about it and all the kids enjoyed themselves," senior Steven Varnado said.
