

How do you feel about the Knowledge Master competition?

"The knowledge Master wasn't always about how much you knew, but how well you used common sense."

Rachel Hanson, 10th

"Only half of Knowledge Master was knowing, the other half was learning things I didn't know."

Kari McIlwain, 12th

"It was fun to get out of class, but it was still a challenge."

Brice Griffin, 12th

As Coach Smith teaches his players about how the time works in competitions, junior Meredith Foss loses focus. "I like the Academic team because it lets us study things of our interest," Meredith said.

Focusing on the prize, senior Michael Stone answers questions the Knowledge Master feeds him. He felt that Coach Smith challenged everyone to the extreme. "The Academic Team was great because it was like having one class that covers all subjects," Michael said.

The Academic Team tests their skills by answering timed questions. The process of elimination helped them answer many questions. "Our team this year was very focused and dedicated," Coach Smith said.

A little frustrated and confused senior Mack Altman sits back and contemplates on the answer. "Competition and knowledge, there is nothing better than trying to see if you are one of the best," Mack said. He felt there is a combination needed of the two to compete well.
