

Former senior Yvonne Gant and former junior Kari Mollwain practice their dance moves for the musical. The dance moves took time and dedication to learn them exactly the way they needed to be.

Former juniors Marcus Johnson and Andrew Seigler talk with Mrs. Drawdy about the musical. Students took the musical very seriously and things had to be organized. "Mrs. Drawdy was a wonderful person. She was one of the best teachers that I have ever had," Marcus said.

Break a Leg!

Taking Music to the Next Level

Former junior Andrew Siegler and former senior Amye Stivender take time before the musical to practice their lines. They both took the play very seriously and dedicated a lot of their free time to making the musical a great success.

Mrs. Drawdy's chorus classes spent a lot of time on the making of the musical, 'Seven Brides for Seven Brothers'. The students used their class time to make props, study their lines, practice singing their songs and perfecting the musical. "I hope the musical turns out well. We have spent a lot of time practicing this musical, and with the talent and experience we have, it should be great," former sophomore Andrea Cook said.

The costumes also had to be ready for the musical. "Along with learning my lines and songs, props and costumes have to be done. It is a lot more work than most people think," former senior Kaylan Salisbury said.

The spring musical definitely had a lot of devoted cast members who brought the stage to life.

-Faith Crosby

