Expressing Pride

When the doors opened, students quickly filtered in embarking on their future, which so suddenly became the present. Students expressed their pride in a variety of ways during the days of announcements, fire/tornado drills, and chaotic daily schedules. These ways of expression ranged from clothing and hair styles to body art. Each individual person added to the varied differences in people. Pride existed at the heart of every student. What people stood for shaped their decisions, and more importantly, their lives. For within the Cougar halls, diversification allowed expressions of pride.

The Middle

Freshman
Jamal McClennon

"I was really nervous when I woke up at 7:00 a.m. since this was my first year here. I didn't know where any of my classes were, but I ended up finding them."

"It turned out I had fourth lunch, and I was glad because all my friends were in there with me. I was a little nervous and anxious for the day to get over with

Sophomore
La'Quinta
Magwood

"I woke up early to get ready for school. I was very excited and anxious to meet new people."

"I went to my new classes and made some new friends. I liked all of my classes especially Spanish.

Junior
Shannon
Keeling

"I planned for the first day of school way ahead of time. I got up early, and ate a good breakfast. I tried to make it to school on time, but I didn't end up getting here until 8:05."

"I was having a good day towards lunchtime. I was a little confused though. It seemed like things had changed around a lot, but those were just things we had to get used to."

Senior
Chad
Hiers

"I got up around 7:00 a.m. and got dressed. The clothes I wore weren't picked out. I just grabbed the nearest clean clothes."

"I was having a good time towards the middle of the day. I felt excited to be back, and all I could think about was starting baseball season."

The New Year is Here!

The End

I ended up talking to a lot of girls throughout the day and some of my old friends too. My first day went better than I thought it would."

"By the end of the day, I felt a little older, a little wiser, and a little more mature. I want to stay focused this year and try to fulfill my duties as Vice President."

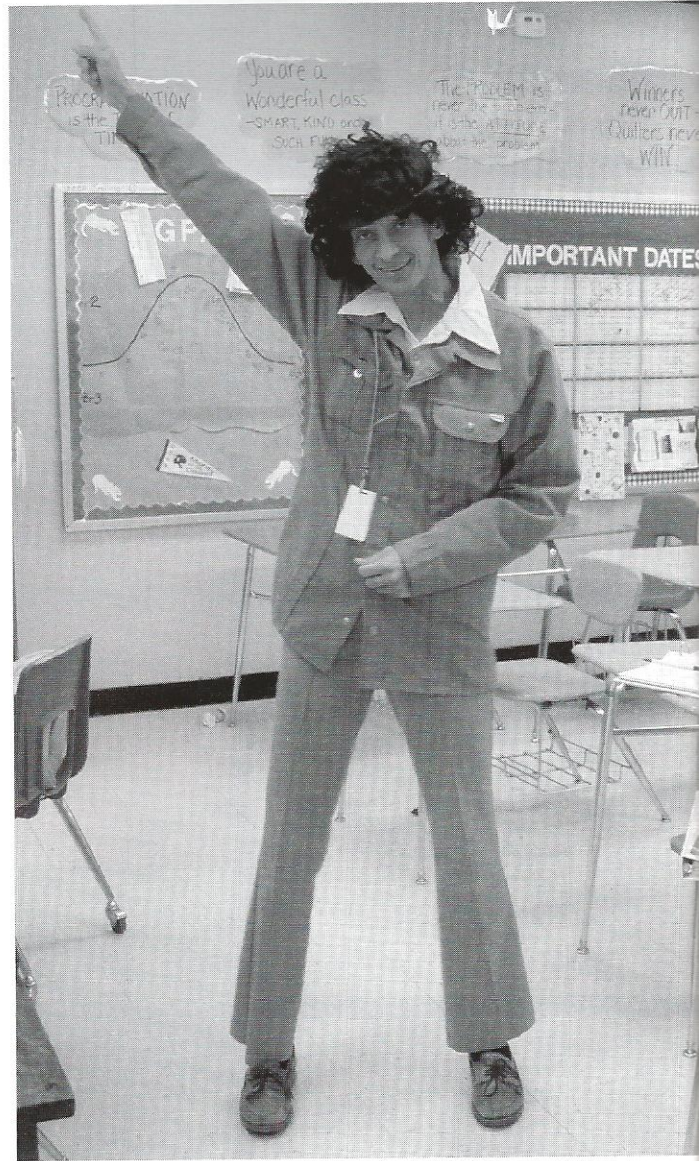

"My first day went well. I'm interested in all my classes, and I plan on doing well. I also want to stay organized this year."

"I had a typical first day of school. I'm excited to be a senior because of all the priviledges we have. I'm looking forward to working hard this year and graduating."

-Ashley Strickland

Teacher of the year, George Smith gets ready for disco fever. Even the teachers enjoyed participating with students in spirit week. "Teachers should participate in spirit week because if we are not enthusiastic, then we can't expect students to be," Mr. Smith said.

Students start off every day by saying the pledge. This national tradition united students. "I think we should say the pledge whenever necessary, not just at school," junior Antwan McMillian said.

Holding the banner for the homecoming game, the cheerleaders wait for the football team to tear through. Before each game, the cheerleaders made signs to boost the team's spirit. "Making banners pumped us up for the games and united us as a squad," senior Angela Gagnon said.

The empty parking lot shows the effects of the famous senior cut day. Seniors worked hard to make a plan without letting administrators know. "Senior cut day was fun and exciting, and I was glad we didn't get caught," senior Ciera Hilton said.

Relaxing at the senior tailgate party, the varsity football players unite to grill their lunch. The seniors spent the afternoon with friends and had a lot of fun. "The tailgating party was a very fun experience. I think it was really great that Mr. Bullock trusted us enough to do it. I am really going to miss it," senior Joseph Taylor said.

Traditions of Excellence

Students looked forward to events such as prom, spring break, and graduation. During the year, spirit week and homecoming promoted school spirit. "Spirit week encouraged us to be proud of our school," junior Jamie Bloodworth said.

New activities were destined to become traditions. The last Wednesday of every month, school dismissed early. This gave students the chance to enjoy an afternoon off. Also, the majority of the student body witnessed the first homecoming parade. "I liked the parade because it was something that everyone could enjoy," junior Princess Varner said.

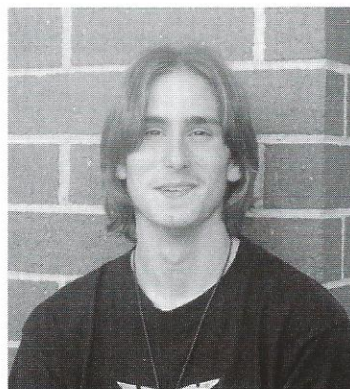

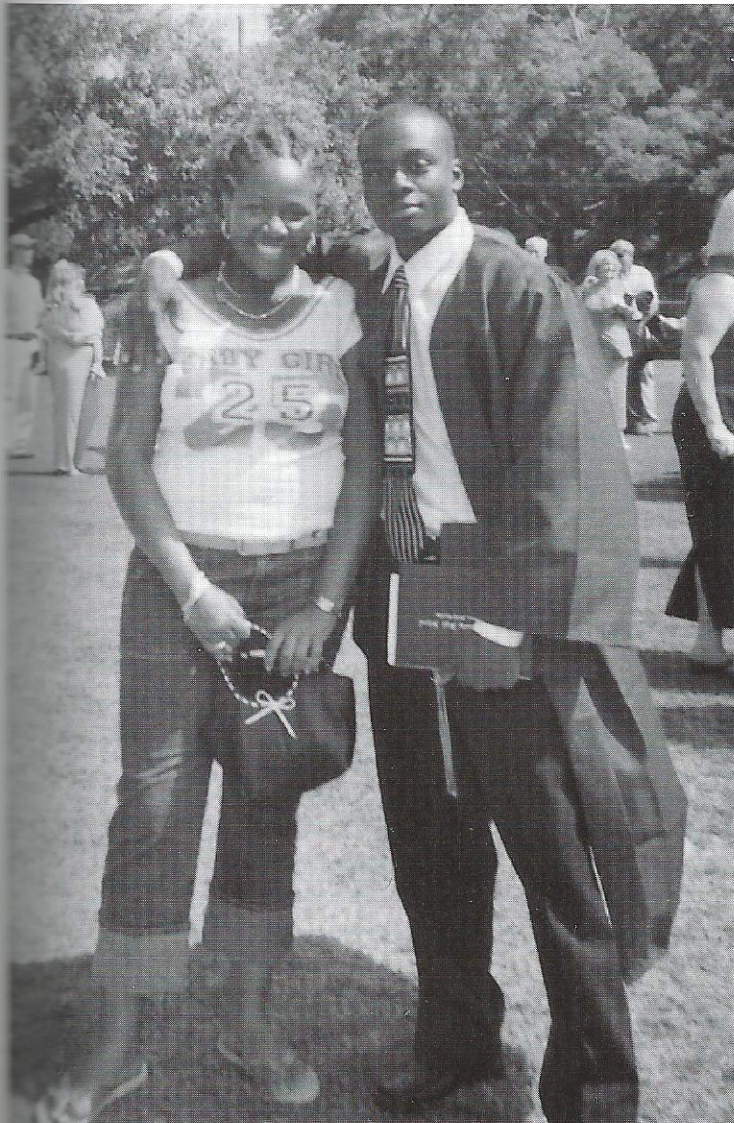

Seniors benefited greatly from traditions. Senior cut day, the senior lunch bell, and the tailgate party all boosted senior pride. "We worked hard, and it was nice to get privileges, especially the tailgate party," senior Michael Murdaugh said.

-Ashley Strickland

MOVERS AND SHAKERS

"Traditions were fun because we got to carry on the legacies from the previous year."
-Senior Chiana Williams

Marching down Mighty Cougar Drive, the drumline leads off the first homecoming parade. The entire school watched as they marched on. "It felt good to be a part of a new tradition, and I think we were chosen because we know how to turn things up a notch," sophomore Jadon Buckner said.

Leaving early for lunch, senior Josh Wilson waits outside the commons area for his friend to join him. Being able to leave a few minutes early gave deserving seniors a head start to lunch. "The senior lunch bell was good, but I wish seniors could leave campus and get food," Josh said.

Filled with excitement, former senior Richard Siders and senior Quanesha Lane share a last moment together for the year. Departing after graduation saddened many friends. "I was happy to see my friend graduate, but sad to see him leave," Quanesha said.

After meeting with other students at a conference in Washington, D.C. senior Ricky Langdale stands on the steps of our capital. He went to discuss current issues facing our government and to tour the city. "I had a really great time, and I encourage rising seniors to apply for the trip," Ricky said.

Cruising on the clear waters of the Florida Keys, junior Jamie Pok enjoys fishing. He caught a lot of fish while he was there. "I would definitely go back because I could see the fish clearly and the water was refreshing," Jamie said.

While on a trip with her church to New York City, junior Lindsay Hiers and her sister enjoy the scenery. They visited the Big Apple to help unfortunate people around the city with World Changers. "I had a lot of fun, and I feel like I really made a difference," Lindsay said.

Standing in front of Niagara Falls, junior Lakenya Yates and her cousin rest on the rail above the falls. They traveled to Canada to view the panoramic Horseshoe and Niagara Falls. "We went shopping and chilled at my family reunion in New York."

Mrs. Sharon Courtney and Sara Stanton stood in front of the Zocalo in Mexico City. Mrs. Courtney traveled to Mexico to improve her fluency in Spanish. "We studied at The Cemanahuac Educational Institute in Cuernacac," she said.

Here and There

A WORLD OF

POSSIBILITIES

"I had a great summer. I spent time in Atlanta, Georgia with my sister and helped her babysit my neices. I also made new friends and spent time with old ones."

Junior Regina Pencile

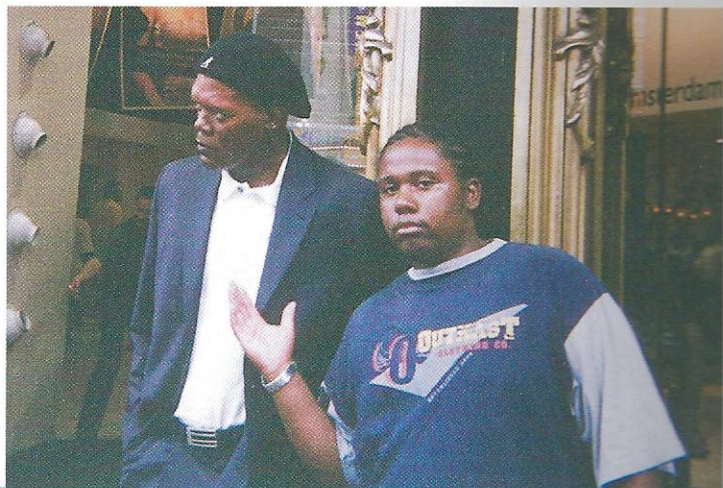

On The 180th day of school, students rushed out the doors; as their vehicles roared, they excitedly approached the first day of summer. Students waited patiently for this day to free themselves from a stressful year. "I was ready to get out of school because I needed a vacation," freshman Jessica Fulk said.

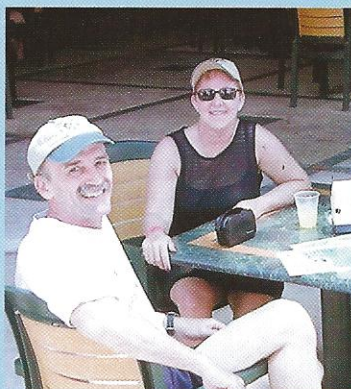

Having a good summer meant making plans and keeping them. Most students easily figured out what to. "I went to New York, New Jersey, Mississippi, and some places in South Carolina and had a great time," junior Bhavina Patel said.

Students with summer jobs found it difficult to make plans, but a job did not ruin vacation for senior Emma Johnson. "I worked, but I still went to Maryland and Washington DC with my mom; I considered this vacation my most memorable one," she said.

Brandi Traynham

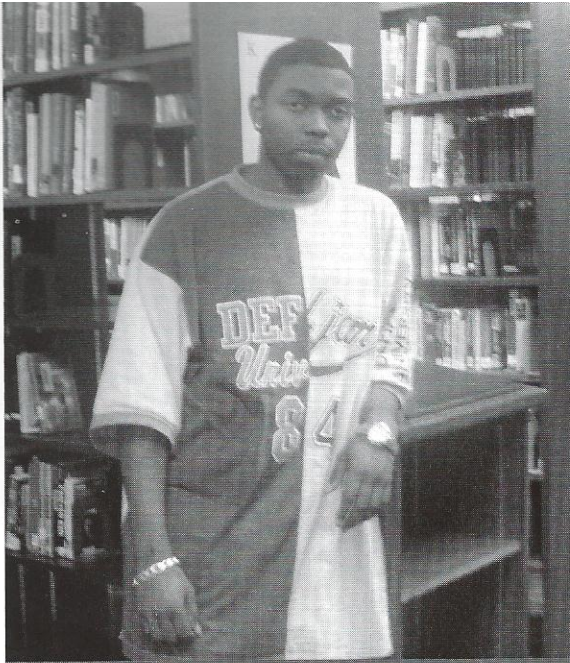

Admiring a wax figure of Samuel L. Jackson, senior Samuel Whaley visits the Big Apple. "I enjoyed spending time in New York and touring the city," Samuel said.

Enjoying their meal at a restaurant in Mexico, Mrs. Susan Nettles and her husband discuss their exciting trip. She enjoyed her summer and the break she had from school. "We went and had a great time," Mrs. Nettles said.

After spending all day on Daytona Beach, sophomore Adleigh Yarka and freshman Amanda Rucker visit the Florida state line. "We had a great time swimming at the beaches and hanging out with our family," Amanda said.

1) Seniors line up in a single file line, much like the first day of kindergarten. They patiently waited to receive their diploma, their first step into the real world. Even though their robes were hot, they withstood the heat for the duration of the ceremony.

2) Yu Ling Ni, watches closely as the time of her speech draws near. She always knew that she was going to make it, and with astonishing grades and an excellent attitude she became Valedictorian. Her powerful speech touched a lot of people.

3) Walking across the stage, the last few steps of twelve long, hard, and interesting years, finally makes its way to these students' feet. Once the names began to be called out, their eyes only focused on the folder about to be given to them.

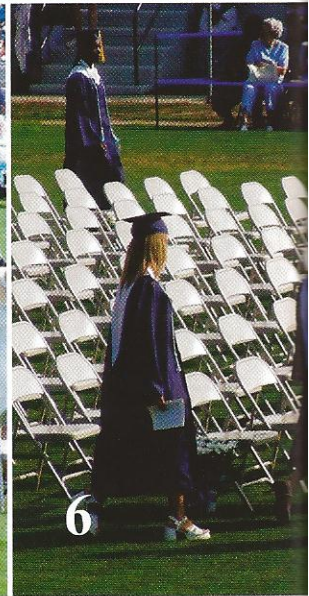

4) Sitting in their proper places, everyone waits for the program to begin. The program opened up and everyone became quiet. Graduation tended to be a very special ceremony that would remain in the hearts of students for quite some time.

5) As the sun shines, the graduates look as if they are reflecting on their past. Their childhood dreams about becoming an adult quickly became a reality. There were many opportunities layed before each graduate.

6) The Graduation ceremony tends to last for a while. However, the graduates concentrated on the act taking place, rather than their uncomfortable state.

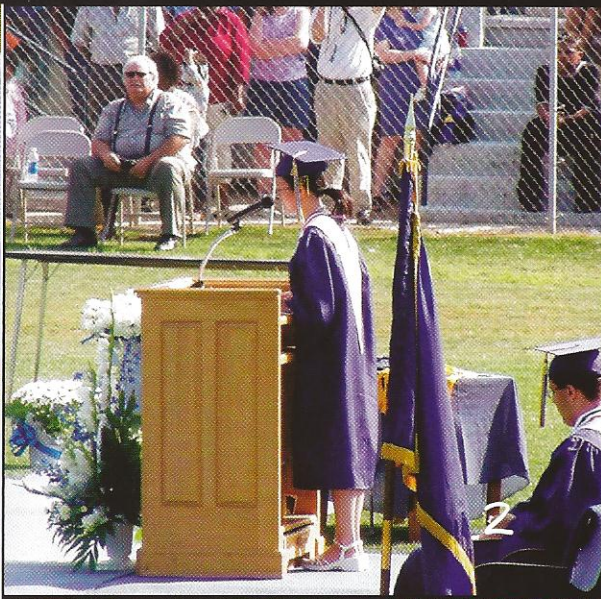

7) Carefully following the person in front of them, each graduate makes sure they watch every step. After handing their name card to Mrs. Pawlak, they attentively listened for their name to be called.

8) Mr. Bullock proudly hands each graduate their diploma. His face explained what incredible pride he held for each student. The graduates, class of 2004, finally made it through.

Let Us Shine

PROUDLY EMBARKING
ON THE FUTURE

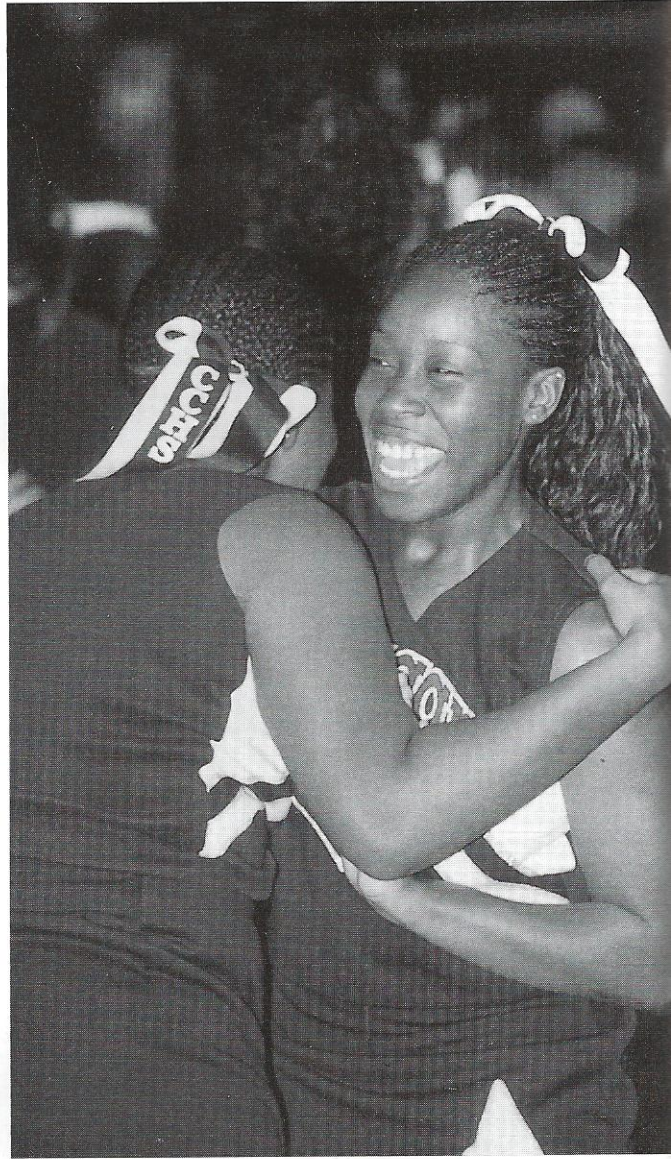

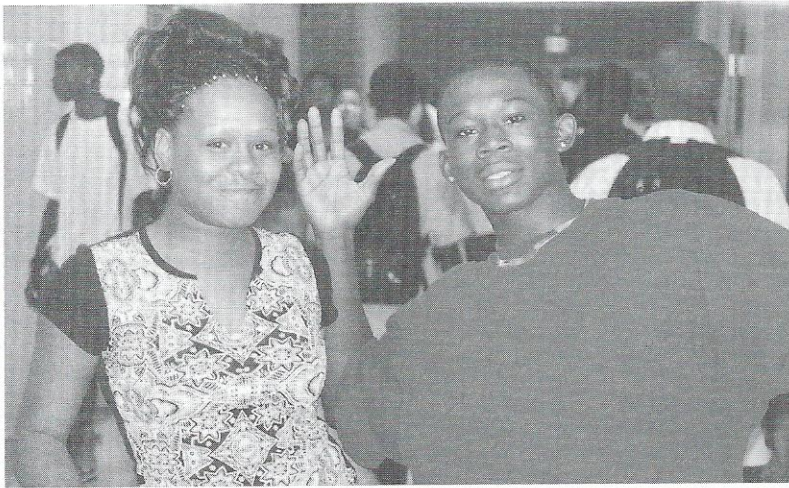

Senior Keeshan Brown's contagious smile puts people in a good mood. "My personality is very outgoing and sensitive. I love to smile and that is how people know me," Keeshan said.

Looking a little worried, freshman Zachary Singleton bites his fingernails to pass the time of anxiety. "I like to joke around, but when it comes to football I get very serious," Zachary said.

Caught off guard, sophomores Ashley McWilliams and Juashwa Brown like to show everyone their true personalities. "I would say I'm very sensitive, smart, sexy, and cool," Ashley said.

Junior Jessica Willis talks on the pay phone during school. "I am very outgoing and talkative. I take the initiative to talk to people even if I don't know them," Jessica said.

While listening to music, senior Erin-Kayla Buntun shows her carefree personality by moving her head to the beat. "I love everyone and life is just way too precious to waste with a frown," Erin-Kayla said.

NATURE VS NURTURE

Ever wondered why people acted the way they did or said the things they said? Personalities could have developed through a persons environment or have been influenced by genetics. For example, a person who had bad influences throughout his childhood might develop character traits that resemble that influence. "Personalities are like flowers even though many look alike, no two are exactly the same," Psychology teacher, Coach Hayes said.

In high school, students chose to be whoever they wanted to be. Several things could have influenced his personality, like the town he lived in or his friends. Some characterized southerners as being courteous and well mannered. "Personalities develop over time, and change due to experiences or wanting to express yourself in different ways," sophomore Victoria Barnes said.

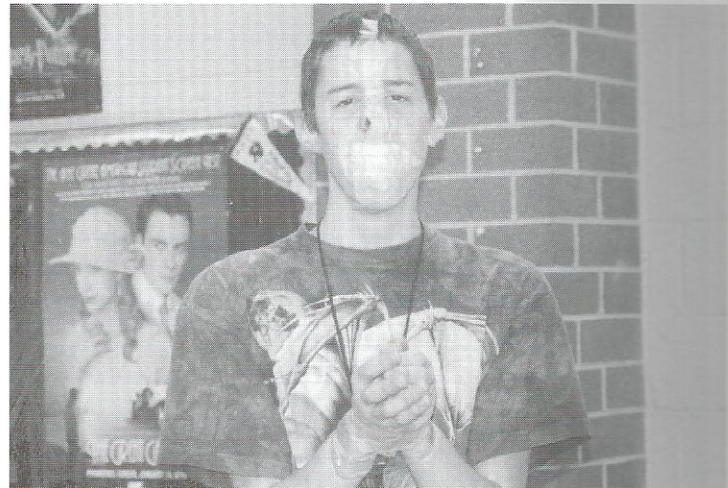

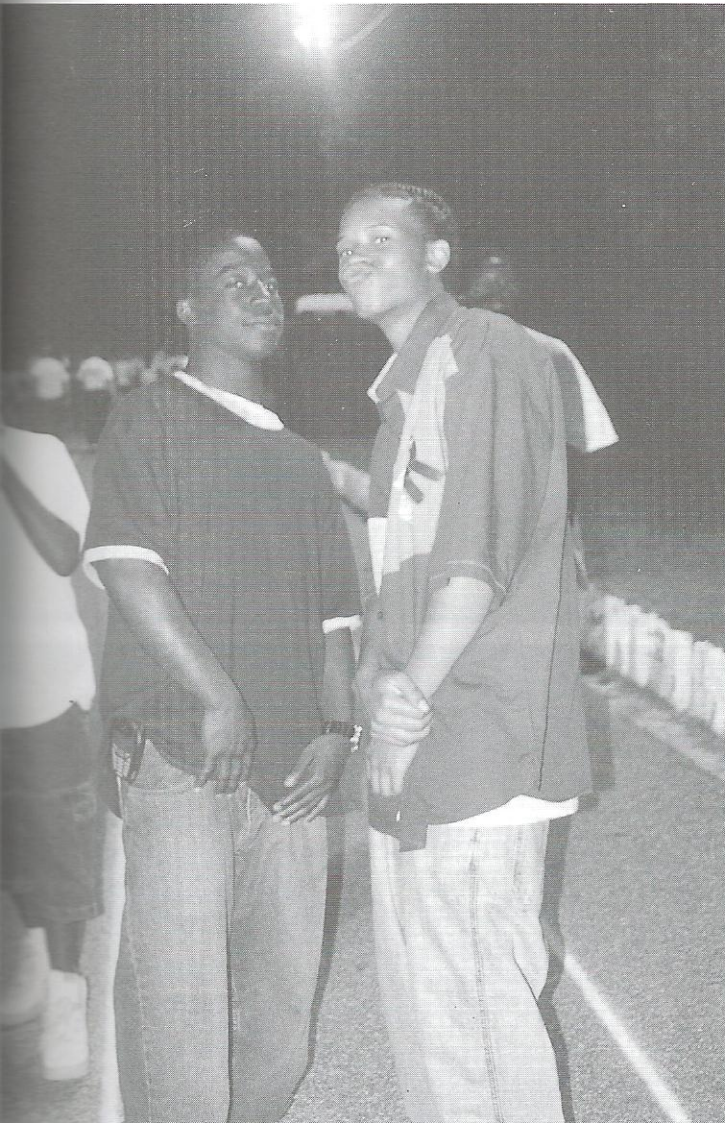

-Tara Shafer

WHAT'S YOUR PERSONALITY?

"As a coach, I am hard on my players, but as a normal person I am very laid back and easy going. Most people know me as quiet and shy, but when someone gets to know me I open up to them."

-Coach John Locke

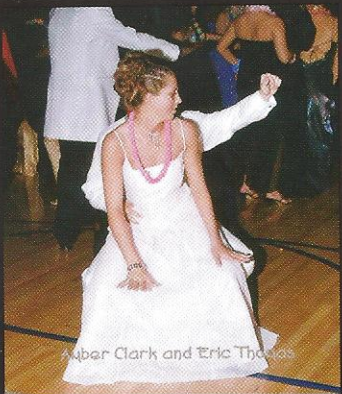

Sophomore Charles McCarter allows his class tape him up with scotch tape after they said he talked a little too much. "I will do anything, even if it's embarrassing because I don't care what people think of me. I am my own individual and there is no one else like me," Charles said.

Sophomore T.J. Avant, Greg Joye, and junior Cody Salisbury play around during 4th period. "My personality is very goofy. I like to have fun and I don't care what people think of me," Cody said.

Senior Chris Brown and Courtney Singleton show off their playful personalities through their facial expressions. "Personalities are developed over time because if personalities developed when you were born, I would never be the Chris Brown I am now," Chris said.

Each teacher gains a new perspective by increasing their education. "Life is a constant learning process with everything. Even in football, the one who doesn't continue to learn and develop is left behind and possibly doomed to fail before the whistle blows." Coach Russell said.

Coach Dale Loper impacts many children each year with life long lessons. "Fifty years from now it will not matter what kind of car you drove, what kind of house you lived in, or what your clothes looked like, but the world may be a little better because you were important in the life of a child." Coach Loper said.

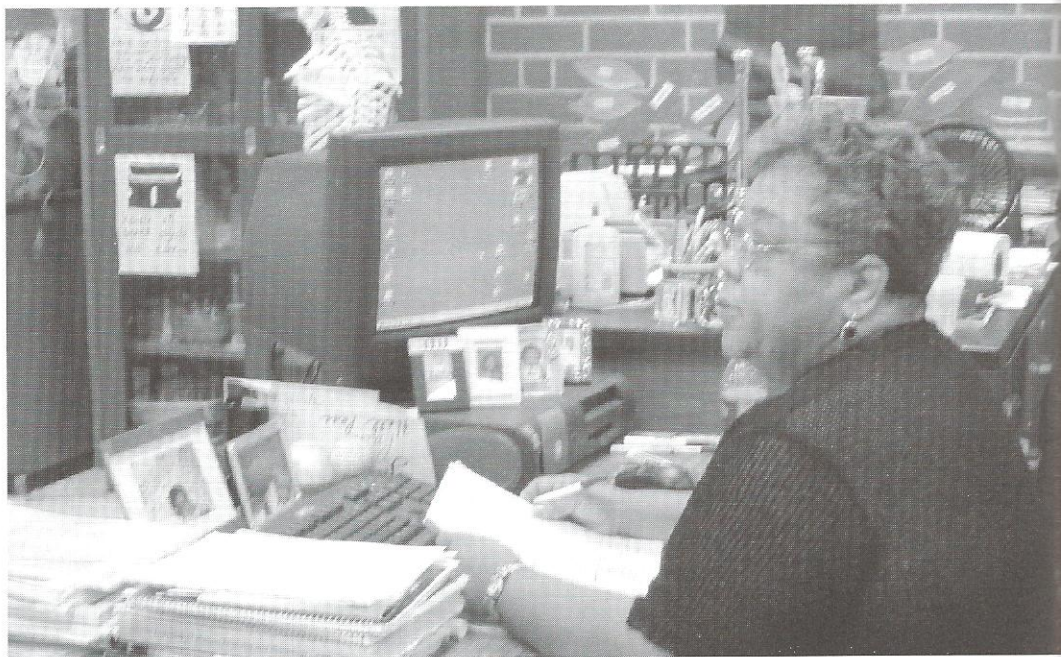

Checking a student's homework, Coach George Smith conversates with senior Emma Johnson about her day. Many teachers took the time to care about their job and students. "I love teaching because I care and I love to educate others about history," Mr. Smith said.

Teaching the class comes easily for some. "I originally got my degree in math. After a couple of years, I decided to go back and take the education classes to become a teacher," Ms. Hood said.

Ms. Arelene Finney-el helps students plan for their future in her class. "With proper guidance, young people can accomplish feats that many believe to be unattainable," Ms. Finney-el said.

Just Can't Get Enough

Two new faces arrived at school this year to take on the daunting task of student teaching; Mrs. Samantha Dyal and Mrs. Kathleen Causey. "I am studying Secondary History Education because I love history," Mrs. Samantha Dyal said.

All teachers knew that with the beginning of the year, they became one year closer to having to renew their teaching certificates, this meant going back to school themselves. "A downfall of going back to school was being burned out from having just graduated from college less than two years ago," Ms. Karen Fischer said.

The joy of teaching warmed the hearts of most. "After September 11, I felt I needed to do something to help people," student teacher, Mrs. Kathleen Causey said.

Teachers returned to school whether it led to getting their masters or just for their mandatory recertification. Either way it helped with their professional development.

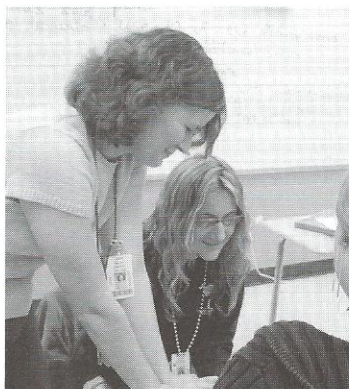

-Hope Grant

Students Teaching?

"I headed up a program called PACE. It was an alternative certification program that offers individuals who are not education majors in Undergraduate School the opportunity to participate in the field of teaching."

-Ms. Bennett

Sitting at her desk, Mrs. Donna Hodges focuses on her work. She managed to work it into her schedule to return to school. "Going back has helped me spiritually. Finally, I'll be doing something that I want to do," Mrs. Hodges said.

Helping her students, Ms. Karen Fischer shows that she cares. She just recently finished her first round of school. "I love teaching because I know that what I do is important," Ms. Fischer said.

Standing in front of her class, Ms. Kim Liles shows enjoyment while teaching math. "I love the joy of seeing someone learning," Ms. Liles said.

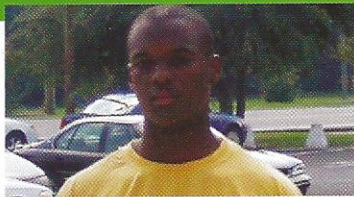

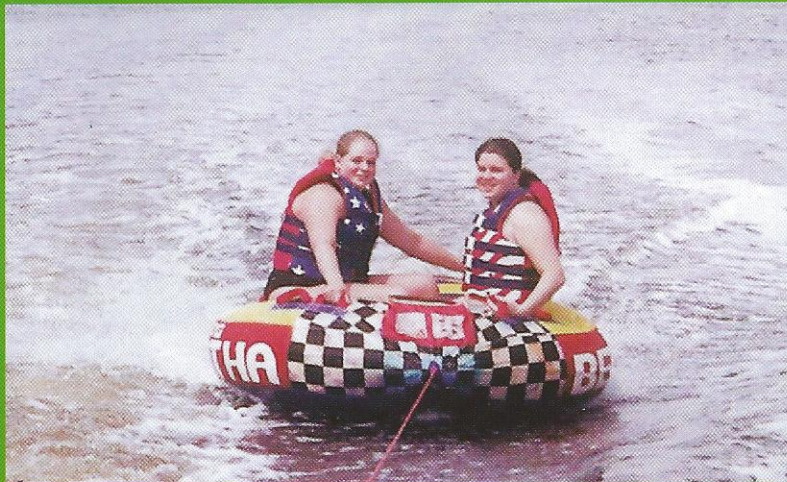

Sophomores Carolyn Henderson and Megan Musgrave "chill-out" with some cool statues during their spring break. "We had an awesome times in Myrtle Beach and we can't wait until next year," Carolyn said.

Junior Lamarck Clayton feels at ease after his trip to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. "For spring break I went to Philadelphia to chill with my uncle. We bought some clothes and we played in a basketball tournament," Lamarck said.

Cruising across the water, seniors Jessica Straub and Adrienne Boyce hang on tight. The fear of falling off in deep water always lingered in the back of their minds. "We spent a week at Jacksonville Beach and we had the best time ever," Jessica said.

Freshman Maurice Washington has a spring break full of excitement. "I had fun during spring break because I met a lot of girls and it was crazy. I love it because I didn't have to go to school," Maurice said.

In their spare time juniors Victoria Harrison and Tamara Crosby let their uncle, the photographer, capture a moment in time. "Every spring break my family goes to the beach, and that was where the picture was taken," Victoria said.

Out of Sight, Out of Mind

Many students relaxed on the beach for their spring break. The hot, soft sand between their toes made them even more relaxed. The ocean breeze cooled people off and made it comfortable to sit and relax. "It could be really relaxing to lay out and very exciting when playing volleyball or swimming with a bunch of friends," junior Victoria Harrison said.

Students took tremendous pride in their tans, because they had worked so hard to get them during spring break. They made sure they showed them off the following week at school. "Spring break is a good time to work on your tan," junior Brittnay Garvin said.

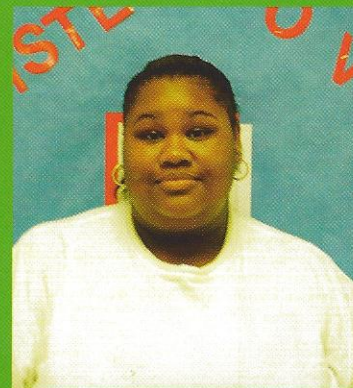

As the day dwindled down, sunburned exhaustion started to take over. However, even the worst sunburn did not stop most students from returning to the beach. "Even though I get sunburned all the time, going to the beach was still my favorite thing to do for spring break," freshman Meghan Carter said.

-Tara Shafer

RELAX AND ENJOY THE BEACH

"My spring break was a lot of fun because I sat around my house with friends and watched T.V. Even though I didn't do a lot, I still had fun."
-Senior Jameika Teasdel

Dressed to impress sophomore Mandi Warner and juniors Kim Bullock, Cameron Price, and Jennifer Goodwin are ready to go out and have fun. "We went to Edisto Beach for spring break and had a lot of fun making memories," Mandi said.

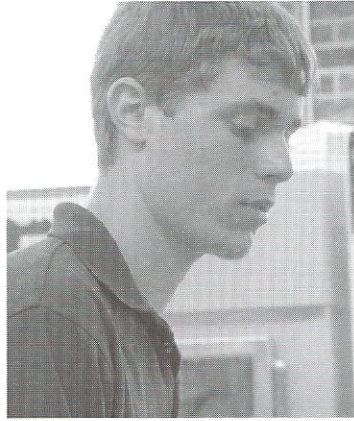

Looking forward to spring break this year, senior Shante Washington said she wanted to visit Atlanta again. "My spring break was fun because I went to Atlanta," Shante said.

Celebrating the end of spring break, junior Brittnay Garvin and her friend Lauren Bass are extremely muddy after mud bogging all day. "We had alot of fun during spring break," Brittnay said.

Moore's employee, junior Dahlia Desantiago checks the price on a pair of shoes. "Moore's was my favorite place to work because it was the only place I have ever worked," Dahlia said.

Junior Derek Andrutat busily bags groceries for a Bi-Lo customer. "Bagging groceries was the easiest part of my job as long as the customers were nice," Derek said.

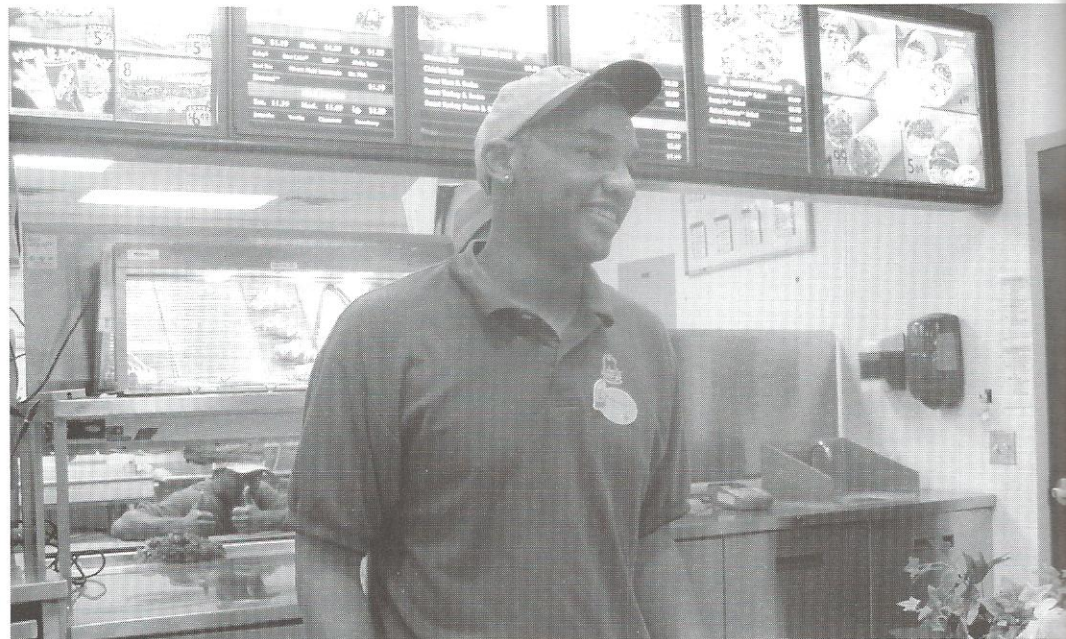

Dominos employees, seniors Vickie Hoff and Jessica Breedlove take pizza orders over the phone. "This was the only job I could find where I got paid to talk on the phone," Vickie said.

Senior Jessica Anderson, a Foodland employee, studies her customer's coupons to make sure they pay the right amount. "It was important to be fair when dealing with customers because without them, I would not have a job," Jessica said.

Arby's employee, senior Emmanuel Memminger dashing smiles as he takes his customer's order. "I always smiled like that when I was working. I just couldn't help it," Emmanuel said.

Workin' Hard for the Money

Workplaces ranged from fast food joints like Taco Bell and Burger King to more conservative places like the public library. "I haven't worked in a lot of places, but I love having a job. It gave me a sense of freedom and responsibility," senior Rickie Starcher said.

Jobs were found in many different ways. One way was through an interview and another was through a relative with connections. "My mom's former student is the captain at the fire department, and he helped get me into the department even though I was 15 (you must be 16 to join)," junior James Waddell said.

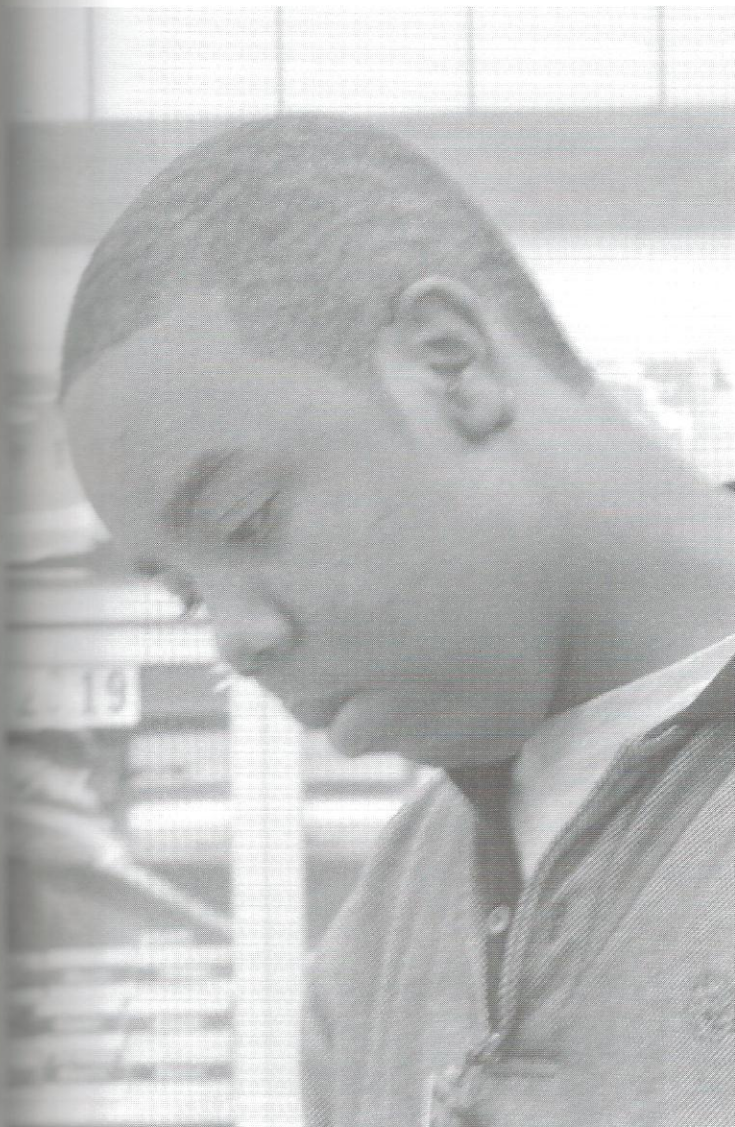

Finding a job proved to be hard, and finding a good job was even harder. Students took the opportunity to get a better job, when available, especially if it involved a pay increase.

-Leah Waters

It's Mine, All Mine!

"I benefitted from my job through physical fitness and an education in botany."
-Junior Eric Avant

Senior Suzanna Cox busily rings up items for a customer at Reids. "I loved working at Reids. The people were nice, and the pay was good," Suzanna said

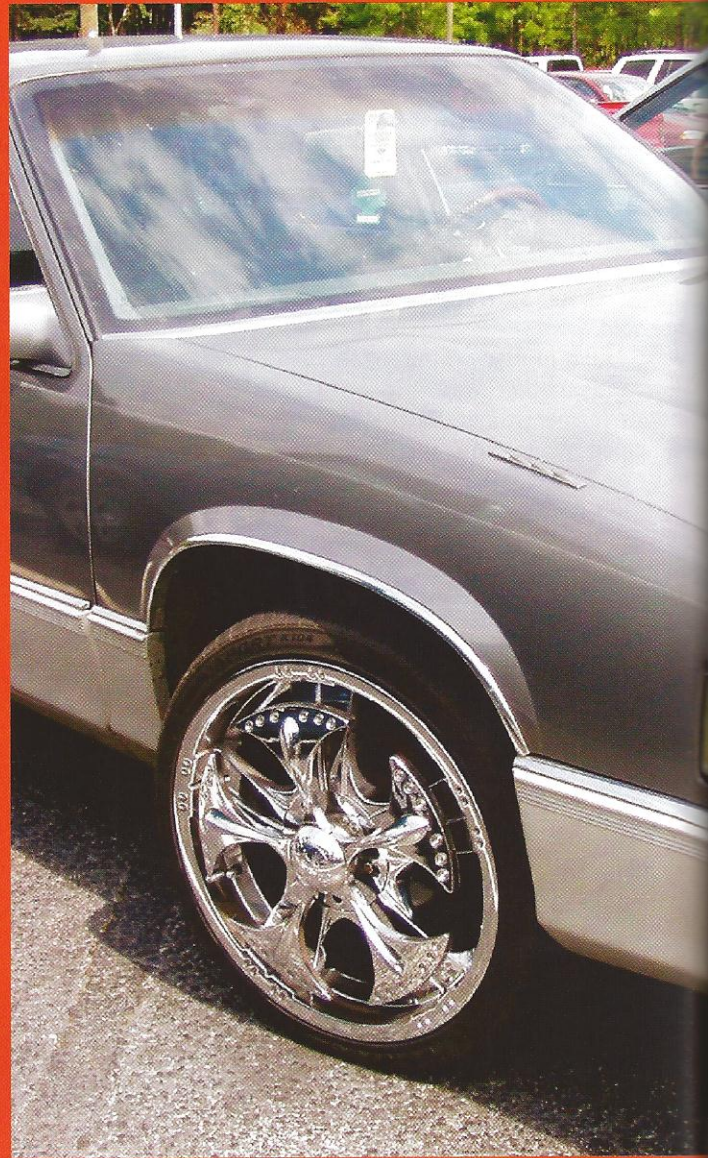

Junior Latria Grant simultaneously scans groceries and calculates her Bi-Lo customer's total purchase. "It was a lot harder than it looked because I had to concentrate on one thing while doing another, and if I messed up I had to start over," Latria said.

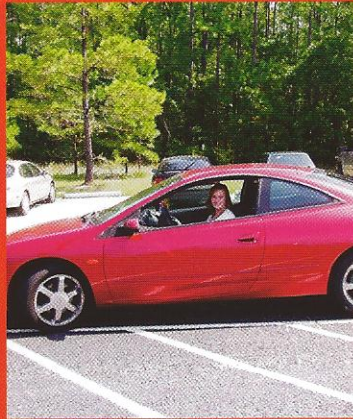

Piggly Wiggly employee junior Cameron Stephens checks prices while waiting for his shift to be over. "Piggly Wiggly was the best, but it was all about the dollars to me," Cameron said.

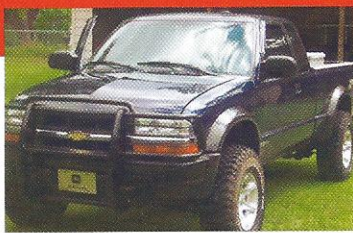

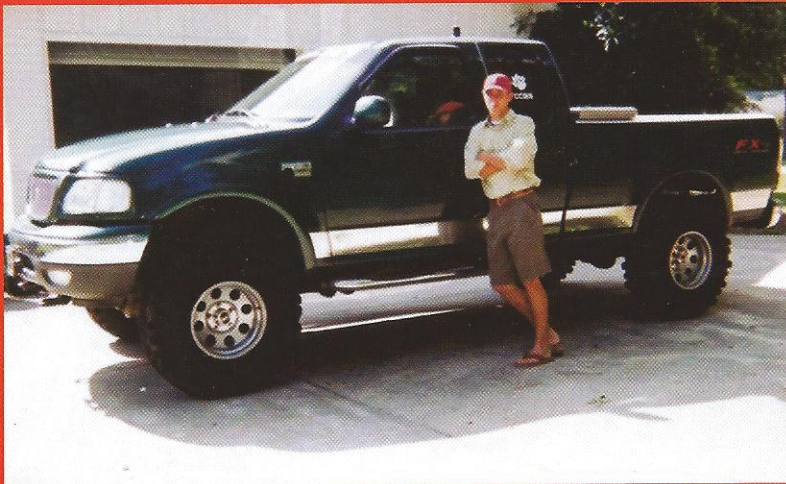

Spinning its way to the top, this grey '89 Cadillac, owned by senior Herbert Fennell, won the title of Most Special Features. He spent over $2500 to specialize his car and was not finished yet. "I put so much time into my car that I think it is the best car at the school," Herbert said.

Cruising on cloud nine, junior Cameron Price rides along in her 2000 Burgundy Cougar. After graduation she planned on trading her car in and getting an updated Jeep Cherokee. "I practically begged my parents for this car, and since it was not too expensive, I got it," Cameron said.

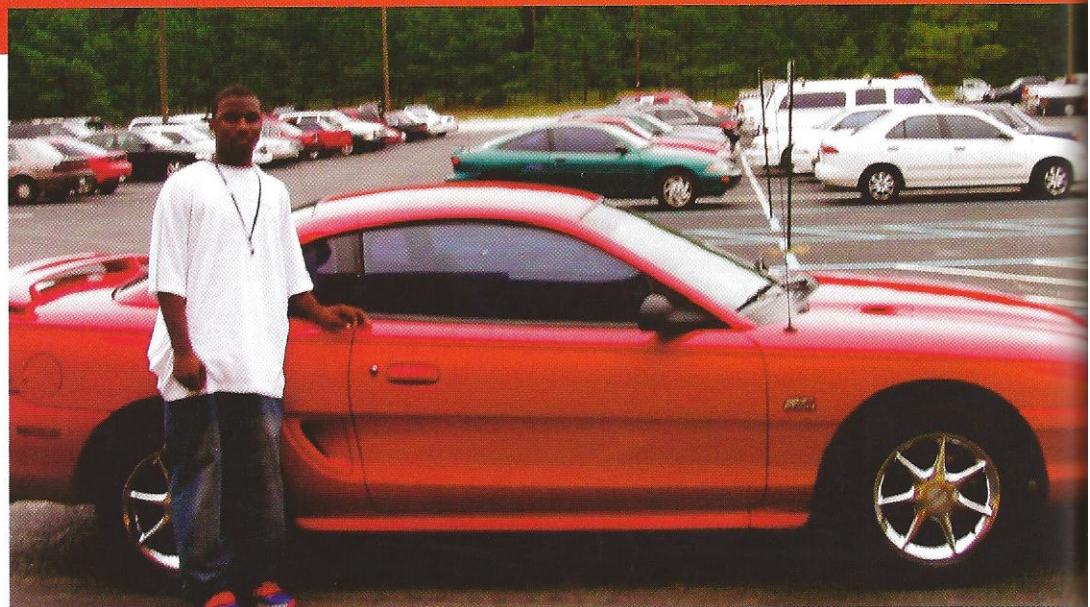

Propped up against his baby, junior Jeffrey Ament poses by his Ford F150. He spent nearly $5000 to specialize his ride, and then traded it in for another truck. "I ride by my truck at the dealership every day and feel sad, because I want it back," Jeffrey said.

Looking nice, junior Jamie Polk's 2000 ZR2 gets him around town. His truck, bought in July, has had $2200 worth of features added to it. "What can I say? I love my truck. Driving it was when I had time to myself," Jamie said.

Leaning on the scene, sophomore Elton Brown proudly sports his 1996 Red Ford Mustang. With 15 inch chrome rims, it often takes the center of attention. Past down from his mother, he always knew that it would soon be his. "I knew ever since middle school, that once I got my license it would be mine," Elton said.

Momma & Daddy Got Me Riding Happy

Reving up their engines and weaving through traffic, teens rushed to school to show off their hot wheels. Teens spent thousands of dollars on their automobiles. "I spent about $5000 on mine," junior Jeffrey Ament said. The personalizing of rides sent out a challenging message to the other drivers. "I think that I can handle Rodney Brown in a race," sophomore Elton Brown said. Rattled by Hollywood's box office hits like "Fast and Furious" and daytime sitcoms such as MTV's "Pimp My Ride", and TLC's "Overhaulin"; many teens felt punished if they had to ride around in a bum ride. "The car must be bumping, or shining or something spectacular for it to be an official ride," senior Keeshan Brown said.

-Marissa Bright

TEENS SHOW OFF THEIR PERSONALIZED RIDES

Squinting at the thought of her ride, Mrs. Travis is proud of the car that transports her back and forth to where she needs to go. Between being a full time mom and teacher, she feels safe in her '96 Honda Accord. "I have always driven a Honda. I have never had any maintenance done on it and it still has never let me down."
-Mrs. J. Travis

Not settling for less, senior Keeshan Brown smiles proudly by her 2002 white Ford Expedition. Bought by her brother, she felt very loved and safe in her large stylish SUV. "My brother always makes sure his baby sister is taken care of and I'm loving it," Keeshan said.

Clear the way and stop the madness, as Senior Sargent Bodison's Ford Explorer comes through. She has gone through 2 cars this year and her previous car, a Crown Victoria, had to go. "I have gone through so many cars since I became a Resource Officer in '99, that I have lost count," SSGT. Bodison said.

Sitting in the sun is Mrs. Mitchell's 530i breezy blue BMW. Mrs. Mitchell was an administrator that took her job seriously and loves her well earned car. "I really worked hard for this car and I'm going to enjoy every second driving and sporting it," Mrs. Mitchell said.

"Tattoos should be legalized here; it is our right to do what we want with our bodies," senior Jeremy Johnson said.

Freshman Brittney Jenkins and her friend, Brook, hang out at the movies on a Friday night. "Brook is my best friend, and we always go to the movies to hang out and have fun," Brittney said.

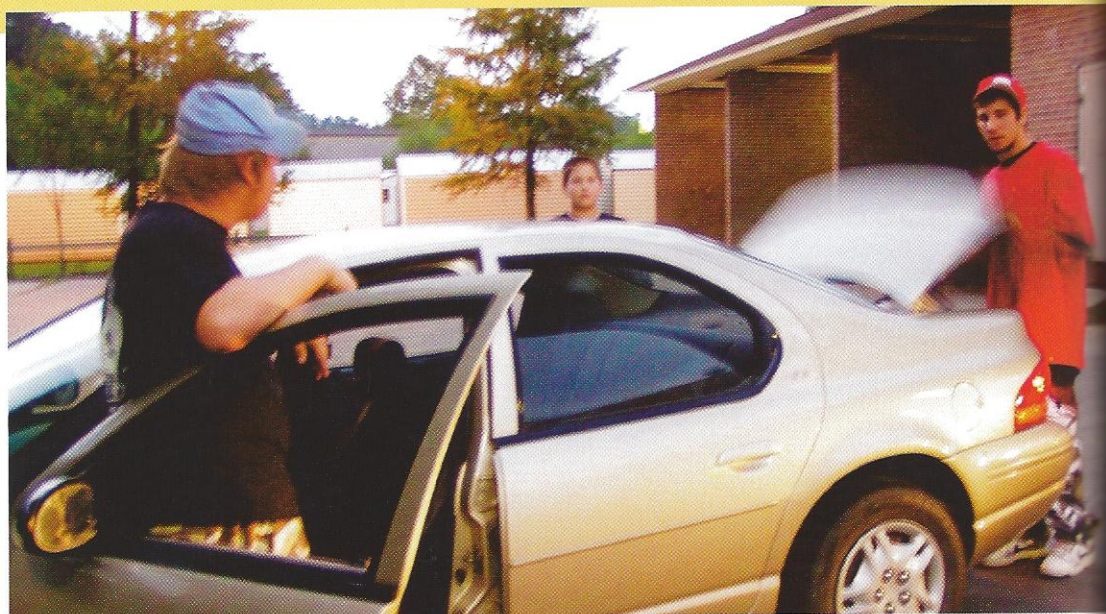

Senior Whitney Anderson goes to the Colleton Library to work on a project. The library was the spot to be when there was work to be done. "It's the best place to go to work on a project," Whitney said.

Juniors Zoie Crosby and Toni Cook grab something to eat at McDonald's. "McDonald's is a good place to go if you want to hang out with friends and get some food," Zoie said.

Standing out at Jamie's Car Wash, junior Brad Weatherford cleans out his car. "I come up here to see friends and whenever I need to clean my car," Brad said.

Oh What A Night

Walterboro, known for its small city limits, proved to be an overall hot spot for teens and their friends. Students went to certain places they knew they would find their friends like Jefferies Boulevard, Ivanhoe Cinemas, and Wal-mart. "There's about three or four places in town I go," senior Stephen Blackmon said.

At some places they went, there were lots of people and other times there were only a few. Even with only a few friends some of the best memories happened to be made. Some students just sat around and watched movies; others hit the road and cruised around for a night out on the town. Going different places gave students a chance to build new friendships and bond with new people. Whether they cruised around town or hung out with friends, students found a way to enjoy themselves. "I never went anywhere by myself because my friends always go; it was more fun with friends," freshman Josh Saimes said.

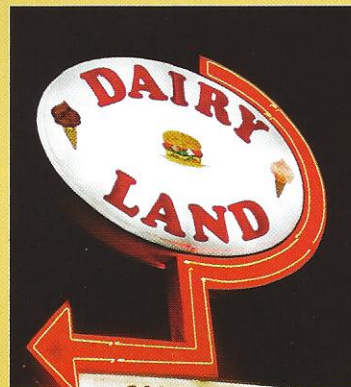

-Amber Souza

HANGIN' OUT, HAVIN' FUN

"I hang out with my friends in the Wal-mart parking lot because most of them work up there. We'll stand around and talk or find something else to do."

Shooting some pool with friends, sophomore April Allen hangs out at the bowling alley on a Friday night. "I hung out with friends at the bowling alley because it gave me something to do and my friends were awesome," April said.

Dairy Land is the place to be after a home football game. It has been around since our parents were in school, and they enjoyed it then to. Crowds of people went to enjoy the food and meet up with their friends.

Hanging out in the Wal-mart parking lot, sophomore Miles Wiggins and senior Katie Carter stand and talk. "I always saw my friends at Wal-mart. I went there just to see friends or to get something I need," Katie said.

The Beat GOES ON

Rhythm and Blues

The Band of Blue began the year with determination at heart. The band took on longer practices and a harder routine. "This year I think our show was very unique and exciting," sophomore Kavita Patel said.

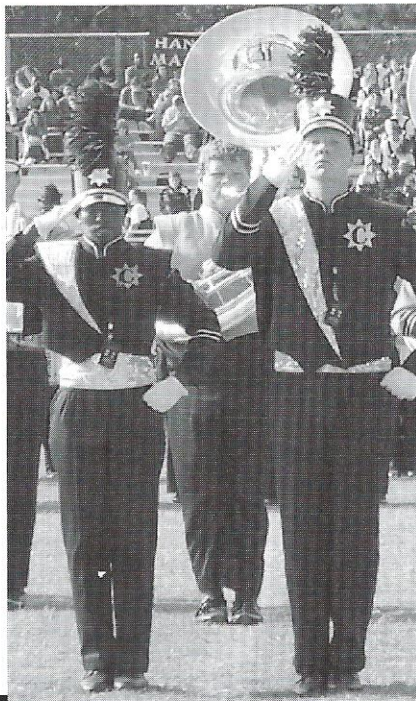

Knowing that this was their last year with Bill Young, the band knew they had to step up their game plan. The track field was named after him for all the years and titles he had given to the Band of Blue. "I want to see all of our hard work pay off at State," junior Leslye Bailey said.

The show this year had the theme 'Old Man and the Sea'. Its music relaxed audiences, only to surprise them with an upbeat contemporary drum feature and catchy dance steps. "We were good, we just needed to prove it at our performances," junior Edwin Kinsey said.

The band finished third in their lower state competition and seventh at state. The band's performance left them with high hopes of taking one of the top spots in the 4-A competition and left many in the band with smiles. "There was not one judge that thought we were not good until the Saturday of the competition. We also got a standing ovation, which was what was so ironic. All we could do was to keep trying," Band Director Bill Young said.

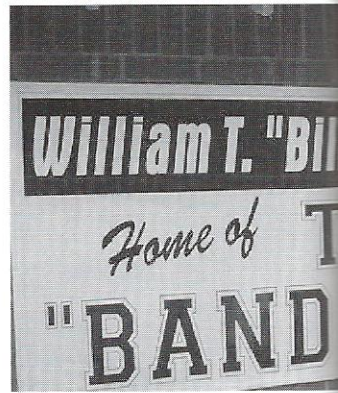

- Marissa Bright

"Being a drum major has made me a better leader and a better person."
Adrienne Gant, 12th

Band director Bill Young has spent many years and dedicated a lot to the band. He was honored with the track field being named after him. "It was really convenient," junior Shadonna Brown said.

Beating their drums in the line of fire, the Band Of Blue drumline performs in the Homecoming parade. The drum line marched from the vocational school to the track field. "It was good getting attention, but we were also nervous," junior Jare Williams said.

Was all of the hard work worth it?

"Every band member knows that marching was extremely difficult and tiring, but it was all worth it in the end."

Sarah Hartenburg, 12th

"Band was very fun, and I know it will benefit me in the future."

Jackie Moultrie, 10th

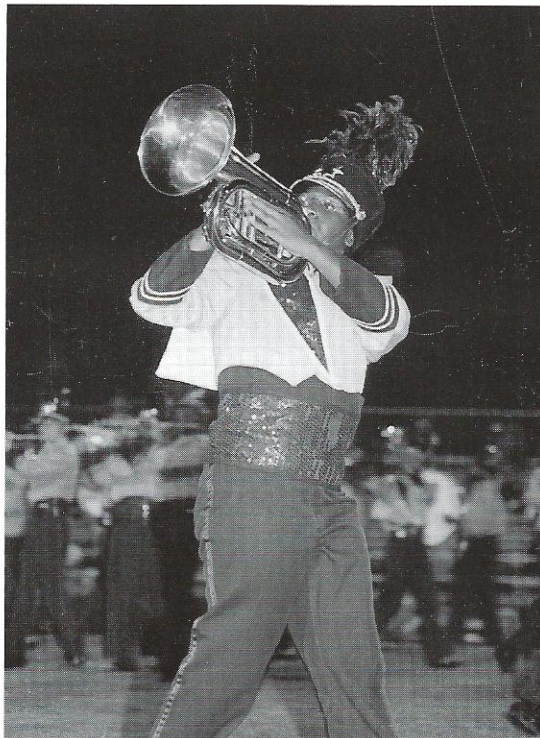

"I loved being in band. It was exciting and it kept me busy."

Cierra Olyer, 11th

Senior Jennifer Hankerson plays her clarinet at practice. Jennifer believes that she had to be a dedicated person to stay in band for four years. "I was in band for four years and I enjoyed the payoff of it every year," Jennifer said.

In a perfect line, the tuba section shows off their skills to the audience. Tubas were the largest and the most noticeable instruments on the field. "Being a tuba player was very hard work. It was a very heavy instrument and it's sometimes hard to keep up," sophomore Trace Taylor said.

The band, playing like a boom box at the pep-rallys livens up the crowd. They played stand music and some musical hits from the radio. "We wanted to play more, but we have to stop when told," junior Eric Beach said.

Junior band member Cassie Glover plays with all of her heart and ability. "Band had a promising team to be involved in and it was fun," she said.

Color Me Happy

Practice makes Perfect

For many rookies, as they were called, this event was special. "This is my first year. I wanted to try something new because I wasn't the type of person who even thought about doing anything that had something to do with the outdoors," sophomore Brittany Ford said.

The stamina it took for each member to dance among blaring instruments built character. The colorguard team began practice at camp and while the band sweated on the field, colorguard sweated each day in the commons area. The music played from a boom box while each girl tried over and over again to learn the many twirls and throws of the practice flags. Once competent in the basics the music of "Old Man and the Sea" was introduced and the girls started the tiring process of learning the routine. "It helped me learn to work as a team," freshman Amanda Rucker said.

Mrs. Meashach drilled the team continually while thoughts of the first performance swam in each team members head. After that first performance the team endured practice after practice to make the show perfect. "This was a very young group, but they were very hard working. They improved each and every week," Mrs. C. Meshach said.

-Julia Travis

"This was my first year in colorguard. The colorguard was fun but it took a lot of hard work to remember the routine."
Britini Kirkland,
9th

Holding the flag to the right and getting ready for the next cue, freshman Jennifer McCall stands perfectly still. "I really enjoyed working with the guard and band. This year was filled with a lot of memories that I will never forget," Jennifer said.

Freshmen Amanda Rucker appears wide eyed and alert as she times her flag toss to the beat of the music. "I enjoyed my first year in colorguard," Amanda said.

Did they really like all of the hard work and long hours?

"Being co-captain has been a tremendous reward for the work I have put into colorguard. I loved what I did and I would do it all over again. I am going to miss the memories and my girls."

Amber Clark, 12th

"I love being in colorguard. We came a long way this year. I can't wait until next year, we will be better."

Sledah Garrett, 11th

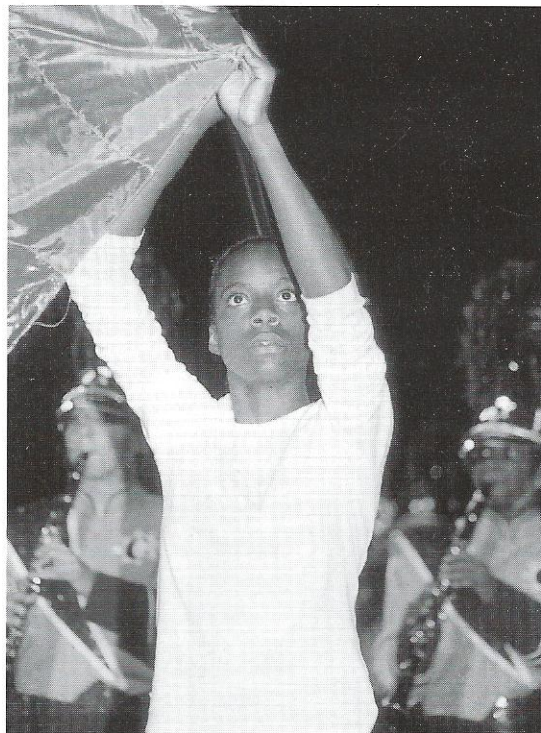

I really enjoyed colorguard this year. The rookies came a long way. I hope we have more people try out next year."

Siera Robinson, 10th

Colorguard moves easily throughout the band at each performance. They made the show colorful and spectacular to watch.

Standing at attention, senior Ashley Hiott prepares for her next move. "Being co-captain has definitely been an honor. I have worked very hard for the past four years and have enjoyed every minute of it," Ashley said.

Sitting in the stands at the pep rally, the colorguard cheers on the band. "This has been a crazy year, one I will remember. I am glad I decided to try out for colorguard. I will forever love all of my teammates," junior Luvenia Evans said.

Concentrating on holding the flag at the right angle, junior Brittany Stephans works her magic. "Being in band these past two years has been so much fun. I wish I would have started colorguard my freshmen year, but I still have a year left. I know it will be a good one," junior Brittany Stephans said.

Hot Like Fire!

If you can't stand the heat get out of the class!

Interviews and taking pictures could be fun, but for journalism students it meant hard work and dedication. "Journalism was hard, but only if you came to class not wanting to work," junior Morgan Drawdy said.

Doing well in English played a big part in becoming a journalism student. Being accepted into the class signified that each student passed English I with flying colors. Each student had to be responsible for making deadlines and taking a final exam. "I'm not a very good writer so this class was a challenge for me, but I'm getting better by the day," junior Eric Sally said.

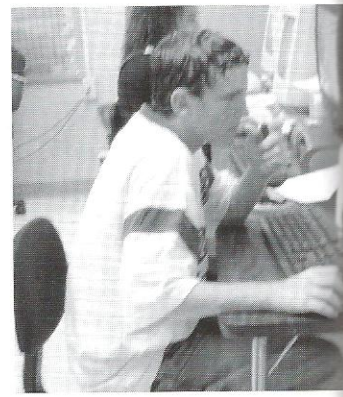

No student wrote copy without making mistakes, but they tried their best to make the newspaper and the yearbook successful. Journalism also proved to be a way to make friends. "Maegan, the editor of the yearbook staff, was a very high-spirited person and was very easy to talk to," senior Hope Grant said. The yearbook and the newspaper staff both hated the deadlines and correcting copies, but they loved the result of all of their hard work.

- Lastanza Rivers

While figuring out a problem with a picture, senior Maegan Causey tries her best to lighten the mood. Maegan, as Editor-in-Chief, handled daily problems by talking with her team. "The editors were also my friends, and they always tried to do their best. Working together was a fundamental part of being a professional team," Maegan said.

Trying hard to make his deadline, sophomore Ryan Broach types as fast as he can. "I really like this class because it will help me in the future. I would like to be a journalist," Ryan said.

With all of the commotion going on, Tara manages to help the seniors fill in their important paperwork on senior portrait day. Seniors had four opportunities to get their pictures taken. "It was a very hectic day, but I made it and had fun," junior Tara Shafer said.

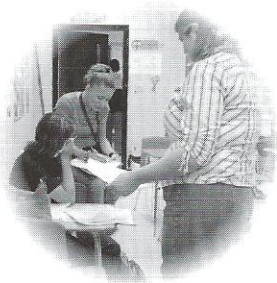

"If there's a book you really want to read, but it hasn't been written yet, then you must write it." -Toni Morrison.

"It was a very fun class because it was something new for me and it helped me with my career."

-Shatiema Stephens, 12

"This was my first year in journalism. It was fun and it was a great experience, but the class could be very hard at times."

-Ashley Strickland, 12

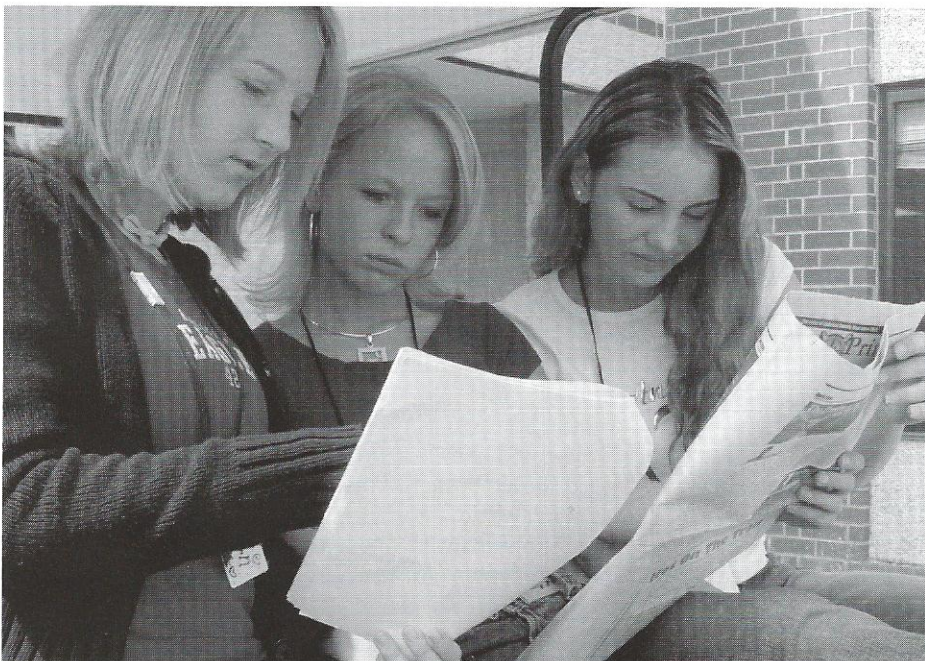

"I loved helping students gather news and designing the paper. The final product of hard work always made me feel good."

-Mrs. Brown, Advisor

With deadline coming up soon and the newspaper still not done and there is no time to look for a chair. "I was frustrated because my deadline was due and things were not going as I planned," sophomore Annie Gregory said.

Taking a break from the classroom, juniors Morgan Drawdy, Whitney Smoak, and senior Elizabeth Norton go outside for fresh air. "I enjoyed journalism, it was a good way to meet people and it gave me a chance to express my views on the things going on around me," junior Whitney Smoak said.

Trying to see if Donavon is the right person for her article. Tisha prepared for the last interview of the day. "I enjoyed interviewing people because it gives me a chance to interact with my fellow peers," sophomore Tisha Andrews said.

Making the last of her corrections for her student life spread, senior Lauren Moody tries to make sense out of her student's work. "This was my third year working on the student life section, and it was very fun to do," Lauren said.

Voices From

Colleton High

Figuring out the parts to play, learning lines, and putting a play together took time and effort from a dedicated group of people. Most of the people in drama had a passion for what they did. Transforming into a different character and performing made drama a challenge. "My favorite thing about drama was being able to make people laugh," junior Will Robins said.

Mrs. Gantt's drama class worked hard throughout the year. The class practiced every day for their play "Voices from Washington High". "We tried to practice at least three days a week after school," junior Jessica Ford said.

Before a performance took place, nervousness and excitement occurred. Going on stage in front of an audience full of strangers made the cast nervous. Each person had a specific way of dealing with stage fright. Some took time to relax, while others tried to remember everything they learned. "I had to have a Mellow Yellow before I performed, otherwise, I was nervous," sophomore Douglas Ranley said.

The drama class built great relationships with one another. This made the class easier and more enjoyable. All the hard work the students put into performing paid off in the end when they received satisfaction from their audience.

-Ashley Strickland

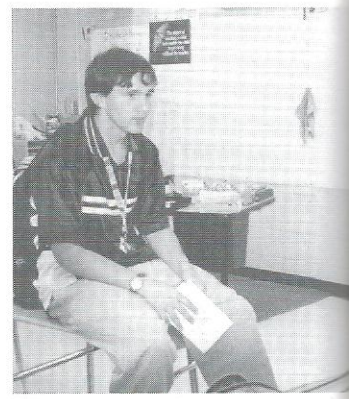

"Learning my lines was difficult at first, but after I learned them, they were cool."

Charles McCarter, 10th

Going over their lines together, sophomores M. Douglas Ranley and Lauren McLees work on their play "Voices from Washington High." Communication helped everyone with learning and preparing for the play. "I liked rehearsing lines with my classmates because everyone was so funny," Lauren said.

The cast of "Voices From Washington High" get together to perform for a dress rehearsal. The students rehearsed in order to practice one last time and figure out what needed to be done. "Dress rehearsal really helped a lot for the big performance: we got to practice and learn from our mistakes," junior Ashli (Ashley) Vatne said.

Sometimes it is easier to pretend to be someone else than it is to be yourself.
-Unknown

"I like the play 'Voices from Washington High' because I think it was a good example of how high school works today."

Kyle Thomas, 12th

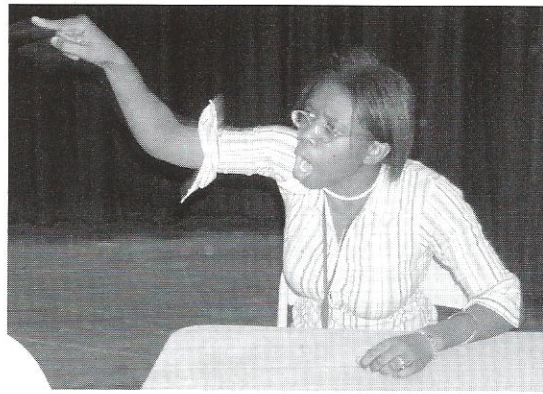

"I liked teaching Drama because I think the class gave talented students the opportunity to shine."

Drama teacher Mrs. Gantt

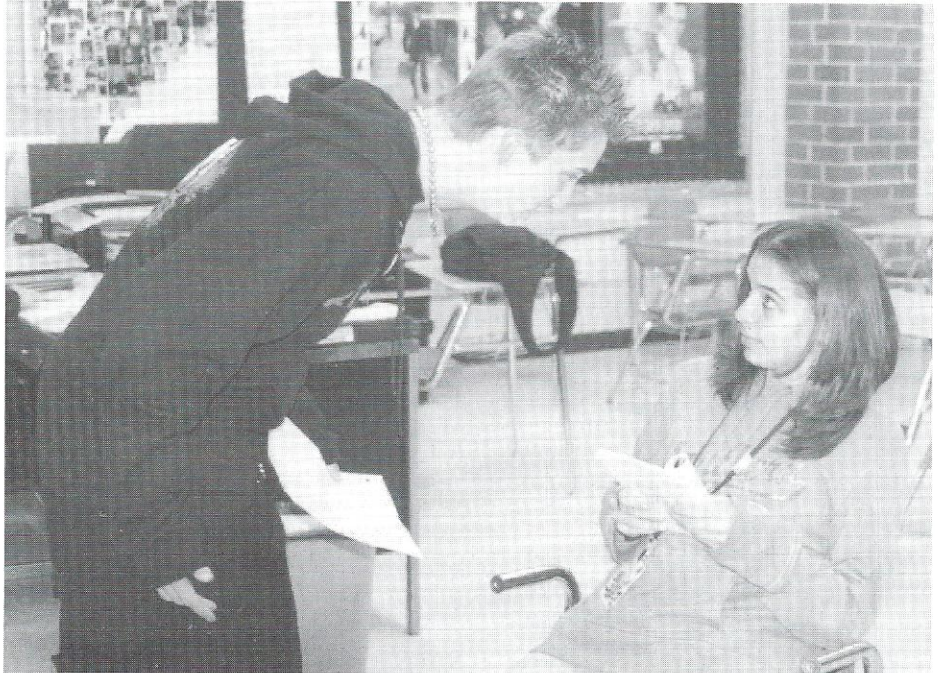

"Drama class really helped me because I used to be quiet and shy, but now I have more confidence in myself."

sophomore Matthew Porter

Pointing her finger with rage, senior Courtney Colleton's character, a mom, expresses her anger. Even though Courtney did not take drama, she still volunteered to help out with the play. "Being in drama gave me the opportunity to express myself," Courtney said.

Getting into character, junior Will Robbins takes his anger out on sophomore Savannah Lane. Drama provided students with the opportunity to fully express themselves. "My favorite thing about drama was the fact that I got to be loud and have fun at the same time," Savannah said.

Discussing their scene, juniors Jessica Ford and Anita Getters practice until they get it just right. Performing became a new challenge for many students. "This was my first play, and I just wanted to concentrate and stay focused," Jessica said.

Working behind the scenes, sophomore Kayla Souza makes some last minute adjustments to the equipment used in the play. "Even though I didn't perform, I had an important part working backstage," Kayla said.

The Best Of The Best

Leadership, Scholarship, Character

Determined to make a difference, National Honor Society members dedicated their time and effort into making the community a better place to be. The members put forth effort in everything they did and many people looked up to them for that reason. NHS members studied hard, dedicated themselves after school, and volunteered during their free time. "A NHS member was required to dedicate themselves for forty hours of community service a year. It was not that hard if one didn't mind helping the community," junior Cameron Price said.

National Honor Society focused on dedication. "NHS was an organization that recognized high standards and good qualities while integrating community activities," junior Anita Gethers said.

The National Honor Society members involved themselves in Adopt A Highway, a Halloween Carnival, math tutoring after school, Relay For Life, and many more non-profit activities. For some, like senior Lee Stroud, NHS allowed the opportunity to give back to the community and make it a better place for future generations.

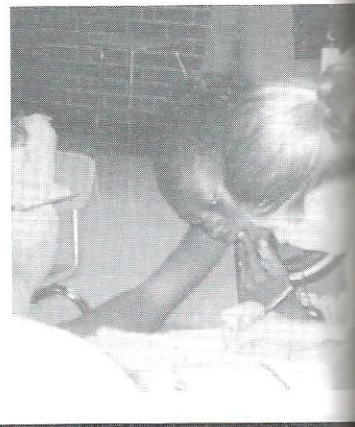

With twenty-nine new members inducted, NHS members focused on making a difference in the community and in the school.

-Tara Shafer

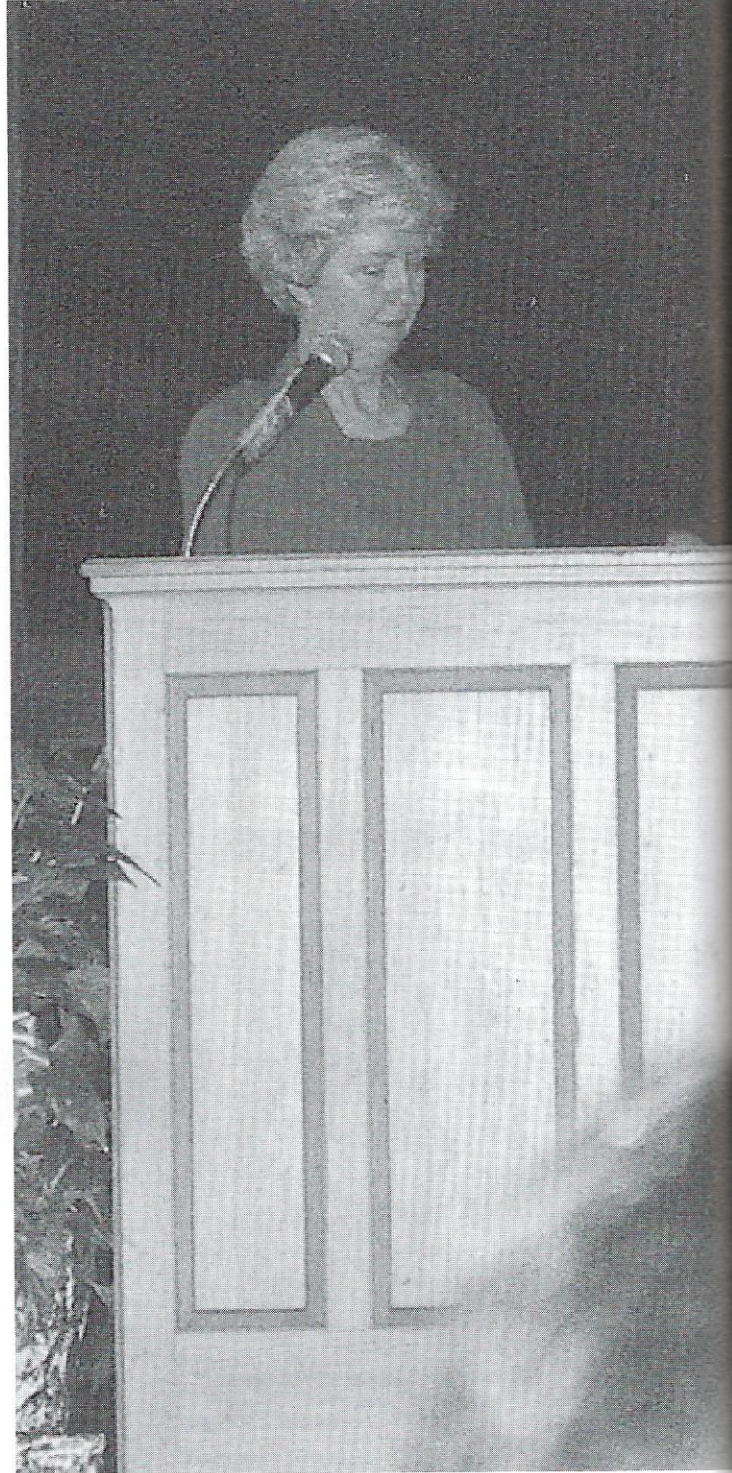

"I feel that NHS was a good way for me to give back to my community, and by helping with the community service projects I showed others that I truly cared."
Jayelia Smalls, 12th Grade

Senior Christina Crosby tutors a student in need after school. Every hour she volunteers gets logged with NHS. "Tutoring was an opportunity to help those that are not as academically gifted," Christina said.

The ten year veteran advisor of the National Honor Society, Mrs. Murdaugh, gave some encouraging words to new members. "This is such a wonderful group of young people, each willing to improve leadership skills, while dedicating time to service projects in the community," Mrs. Murdaugh said.

What does National Honor Society mean to you?

"It was a great honor to be in such a nationally accredited group. The National Honor Society was a guideline for the best life I can make for myself."

Sagar Patel, 11th Grade

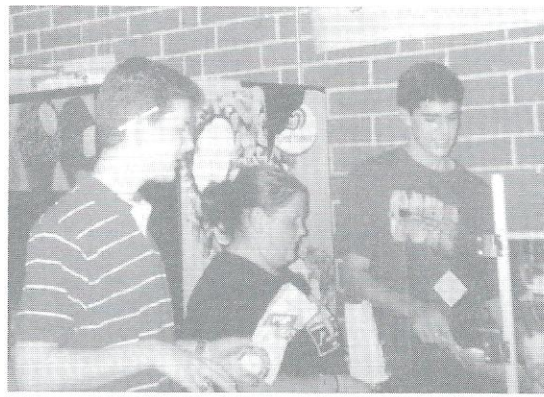

"NHS was my chance to help and give back to the community I live in. There was always such a great feeling after helping someone."

Raymond Jacobs, 12th Grade

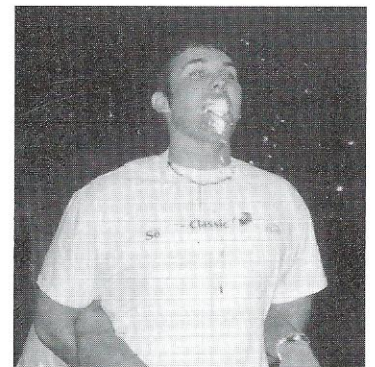

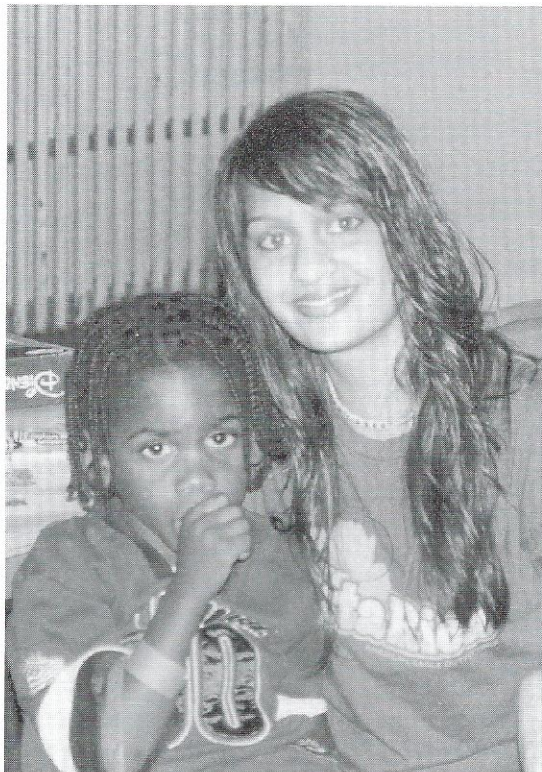

"The National Honor Society program taught me how to better myself as a person in the categories of leadership and character."

Anita Gethers, 11th grade

Seniors Josh Lyons, Nikki Lemacks, and Raymond Jacobs share the wealth and give out free popcorn at Open House. "I enjoy NHS because I get to help people, even though the forty service hours can be a lot," Josh said.

Twenty-nine new junior and senior members were inducted into National Honor Society based on their character, service, leadership and scholarship. With candle in hand, many of the new members were hoping they didn't catch anything on fire.

Putting on a comedian show at one of the meetings, senior Lee Stroud gets some laughs from the crowd. He was accompanied by the arms of senior Raymond Jacobs. "NHS was a great way to get to know people better, and make a difference in the school," Lee said.

Volunteering by babysitting, senior Pam Patel soothes one of the little kids being watched at the Women's Health Day Clinic. Pam was willing to give up her afternoon to help with babysitting. "Babysitting was one of the service projects I do for my NHS service hours," Pam said.

Order In The Court

Justice knocked at the door of the future

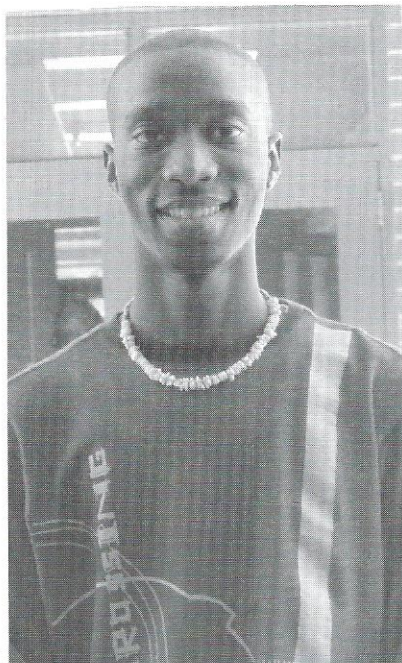

The Youth Court program, helped keep students in school and out of trouble. It gave them hands on experience with mock trials. Deputy Alyssa Bodison, the advisor over youth court, has helped keep the members organized and on task. The court had seventeen members and more students became interested as the program advanced. "At the beginning of each year, students can go to Ms. Bodison's office and fill out a form to join," senior Sasha Brown said.

Youth Court members had different roles in court such as: bailiff, court clerk, solicitor, and defense attorney. Mr. Thomas or Mr. Cleveland played the judge in the mock trials. The students had to deal with real cases and real trials. They used Mr. Thomas' classroom for their meetings and court sessions. "We get a lot of help from the teachers, from the parents and from the community. They helped with fund raising and anything else that we may need assistance with," sophomore Lakenya Yates said.

Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Chisolm, Mrs. White, and Ms. J. McMillan also volunteered and helped the members with their cases and meetings. The program had many successful activities that helped the community. "We had so much fun last year with everything we did. Even when I could not make the meetings everyone informed me on anything that I needed to know," senior Dustin Deloach said.

-Lastanza Rivers

"This program has helped me a lot with everything that I have been through this year. I've learned many new things and I'm very thankful."
Dustin Deloach,
12th grade

Busily brainstorming about the next case, seniors Sasha Brown and Tangale Wiggins keep themselves busy before the meeting begins. "I try to make every Youth Court meeting but sometimes I can't and officer Bodison understands," Tangela said.

"The Colleton County Youth Court has been an effective program since 2002. The students that come through the Youth Court program are held accountable for their actions. Our Youth Court volunteers learn responsibility as well as the law and our criminal justice system," advisor Alyssa Bodison said.

Do you like being in Youth Court?

"I love being in Youth Court, and if I could be in it next year I would."

LaQuanda Murray, 12th

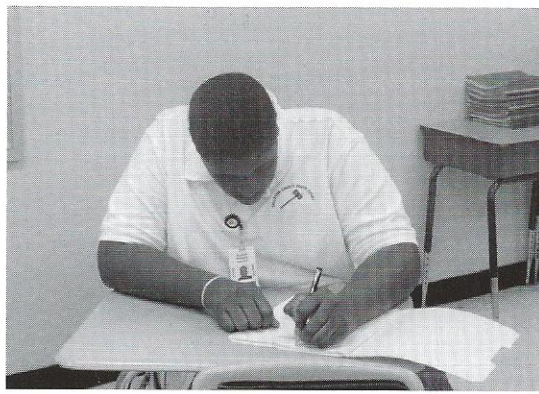

"I love being in Youth Court. I love the people in it and I hate the fact that this is my last year. I encourage everyone to join next year."

Sasha Brown, 12th

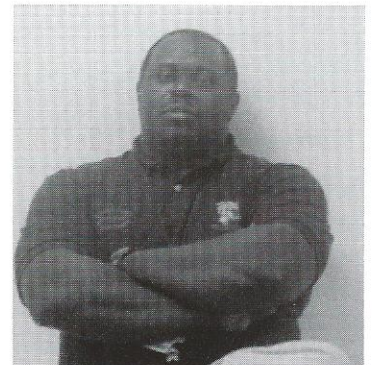

"I really have learned a lot of things this year and I have really enjoyed being in Youth Court."

Lakenya Yates, 11th

Making sure everyone in Youth Court makes it, junior Shelton Williams checks the attendance. "I love Youth Court: it not only gives me something to do, but it also helps me learn more about the law," Shelton said.

With a little help from the Explorers, Youth Court holds a booth in the Wal-Mart parking lot. The members made an impression on many children by taking their finger prints and giving them rulers, safety rules, and candy.

Showing the youth court members that trials mean serious business, Mr. Tomas waits for everyone to quiet down so that the meeting can begin. "Youth Court was a wonderful organization that exposed all of the facts of the legal system," Mr. Thomas said.

Making sure the children's hands are clean, after taking their finger prints, everyone pitches in to help. "I was unable to make it out there but I heard a lot about it and all the kids enjoyed themselves," senior Steven Varnado said.

So Much RESPECT

Keeping in Line

Started in 1993 by Lieutenant Commander Charles E. Armentrout (U.S. Navy Retired), Naval Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps has been a program for young adults of all racial and social backgrounds. The program assisted students to be more informed and responsible citizens. NJROTC gave the students a positive feeling toward themselves. "If I listened well in ROTC, then it would help me to do better in other classes that I had," sophomore Richard Lyons said.

The NJROTC boasted impressive armed and unarmed drill, color, rifle, and orienteering teams. They participated in eight drill meets and 4 parades throughout the school year. They also hosted a drill meet, rifle match, and an orienteering meet during the school year. "I believe NJROTC is a good program because it instills discipline and shows a person how to give respect. It is a good way to show leadership and develop teamwork skills," Corps Commander Cadet Latina Washington said.

Having earned Distinguished Unit status six out of the past seven years. "NJROTC gave me an overall sense of achievement," freshman Niaja Colleton said.

-Kevin McCubbins

"I believe NJROTC was a good program because it instilled discipline and showed a person how to give respect. It was a good way to show leadership and develop team work skills."

Latina Washington,
12th grade

The cadets pose after graduating from Basic Leadership Training at Parris Island, SC. The unit struggled through and conquered this event in June.

The NJROTC Color Guard led by Cadet Porscha McMillan shows off their talent at a home football game. The Color Guard participated in many events this year including football games. "I really liked being on Color Guard. You got to do a lot of stuff and be seen by many people in the community," said Junior Jessica Garris.

Why did you endure NJROTC?

"BLT was cool because that is where I am going to be when I join the Marines and the DI's were pretty hot!"

Shella Belring, 11th grade

"I liked NJROTC because I think that it was the best thing anyone could experience."

Melinda Marsh, 9th grade

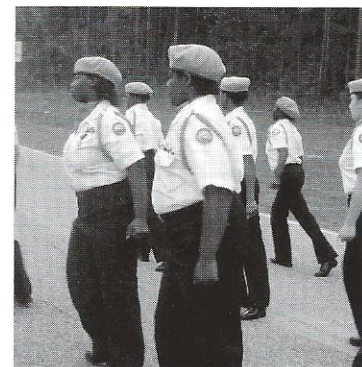

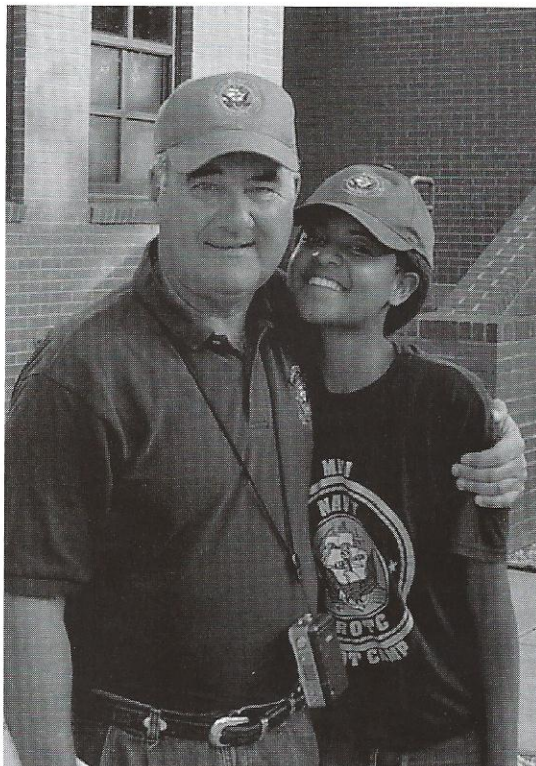

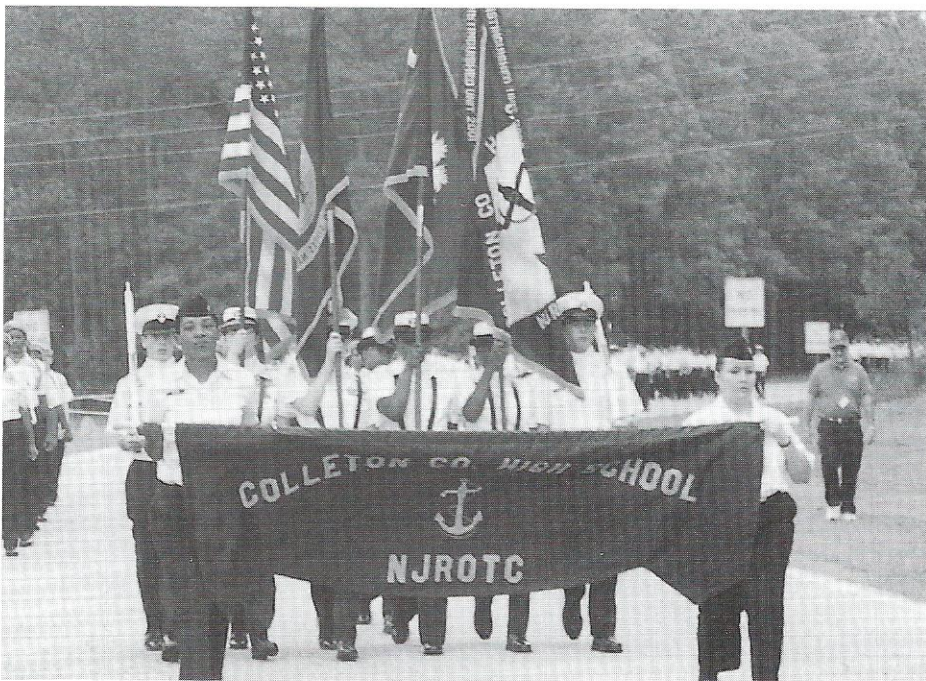

"I liked NJROTC because it gave me a sense of pride and something to be a part of."

Mark Groves, 11th grade

Junior Amber Woodcock sways on the monkey bridge at USMC Recruit Depot Parris Island, SC. The NJROTC's Basic Leadership Training was a two and a half day Marine Recruit training experience. "It was awesome and it proves that girls are tougher than boys," Woodcock said.

The Color Guard marches skillfully at the Homecoming Parade. Sophomore Kevin McCubbins had been on the color guard for two years. "Color Guard was a really fun team to be on because I got to carry the national colors, it was a real honor," Kevin said.

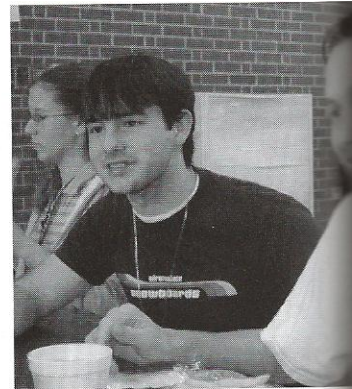

The unarmed drill team strut their stuff at the Homecoming Parade. Sophomore Latavia Donaldson was the battalion Chaplain this year. "I like being on drill team because it teaches you to march better and our fancy routine is really cool," Latavia said.

LCDR Armentrout with senior Nicole Polanco at Basic Leadership Training in Parris Island. "The instructors were like fathers and role models to most cadets because of their undying love and devotion to the corps of cadets," Nicole said.

DECA vs. HOSA

Seniors Mack Altman III and Restin Drawdy laugh with their friends at lunch. "DECA offers those pursuing a business career the opportunity to advance their professionalism, performance, and presentation skills through competitions," Mack said.

HOSA member, senior Latoya Ellison checks the blood pressure of a fellow HOSA member. "In HOSA we basically pretended to be in the medical profession," Latoya said.

Make A Difference

HOSA stood for Health Occupation Students of America. DECA stands for the Distributive Education Clubs of America. Mrs. Barnes founded the HOSA program and Mrs. Scott is the advisor. Mr. Kubik founded DECA. "I liked Mrs. Barnes and Mrs. Scott because they were more like friends," junior Jessica Willis said.

Along with volunteering, raising money for associations, and going to conferences, HOSA members participated in clinicals and shadowing projects. Their community projects consisted of blood drives, safety awareness fairs at Northside, and raising money for Alzheimers patients and research. Although DECA never participated in any community projects, they competed at competitions. "The competitions and my participation as a DECA member have made me a better entrepreneur," junior Dorothy Williams said.

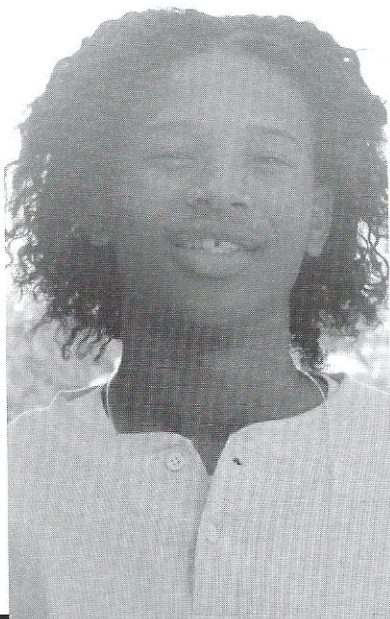

HOSA differed from other school organizations because it did more hands on activities. Helping people in need played an essential part of what made HOSA special. "HOSA was special because it offered the members a good perspective of the health care field," senior Pam Patel said.

- Leah Waters

"I joined DECA because I thought that it would be fun and that I would learn something, and I did."

Chris Brown,
12th

Things that we accomplish in youth makes us who we are today.
-Unknown

"DECA is a great way to learn leadership and how to work with other people to achieve a shared goal."

Regina Pencile, 11th

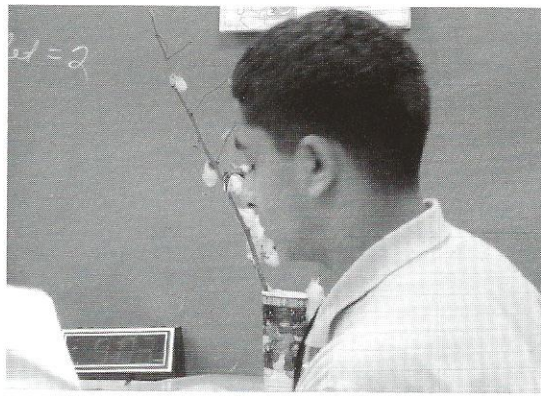

"DECA is a marketing club for inspiring minds who hope to join the marketing field."

Dorothy Williams, 11th

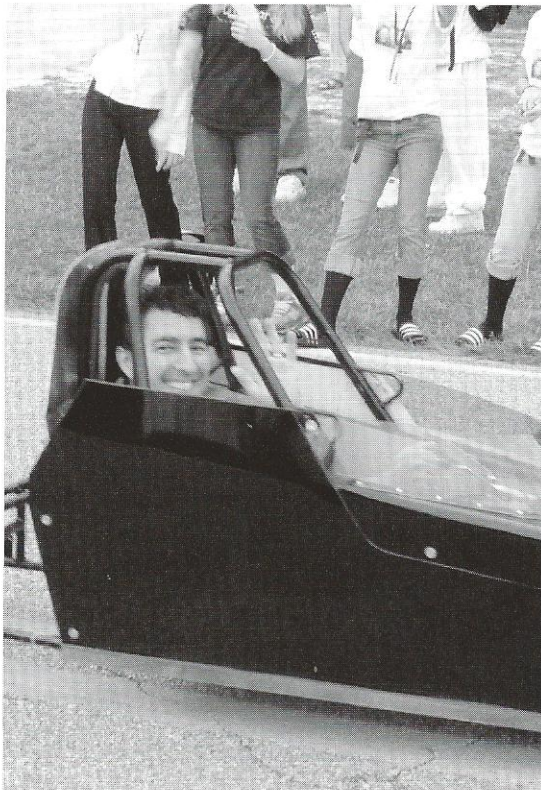

"The best part about DECA is going to competitions, doing well, and then moving on to the next level."

Lon Bergen, 12th

DECA member, junior Sagar Patel studied his marketing papers in order to prepare for the upcoming competition in January. "We prepared for the competition at the last two meetings we had," Sagar said.

Seniors Laquanda Murray and Ashley Edwards, also HOSA members, show off their HOSA training. "Being in HOSA helped me prepare for my goal of being a nurse," Laquanda said.

HOSA member, senior Pam Patel stood in all her glory after completing her clinicals. "All the work that I did in HOSA lead to my performance in the clinicals," Pam said.

Mr. Andy Kubik rides smoothly in the parade. "I thought it would seem cool to the students, but it ended up being more fun for me," Mr. Kubik said.

Masters Of KNOWLEDGE

All About Running the Race

Darkness filled Mr. Smith's room as students actively voiced answers about History, English, Science and Math. Nineteen students participated on the Academic Team. One freshman, four sophomores, seven juniors, and seven seniors. These students challenged themselves in a game that tested their skills. The knowledge master, a test given by their coordinator, Mr. Smith, served to provide rankings amongst the team. "The knowledge master was not about how much I know, but how well I used my common sense," sophomore Rachel Hanson said.

With all nineteen members, only twelve actually participated in the competitions. "Although we had tough competition, we ranked high considering the odds," Mr. Smith said.

Every year seven to eight competitions kept the team on their toes. The team averaged around one or two trophies per year. Many members found the team to be enjoyable and a good way to educate themselves. "Over all, you have to be knowledgeable about something in every area," senior Brice Griffin said.

-Marissa Bright

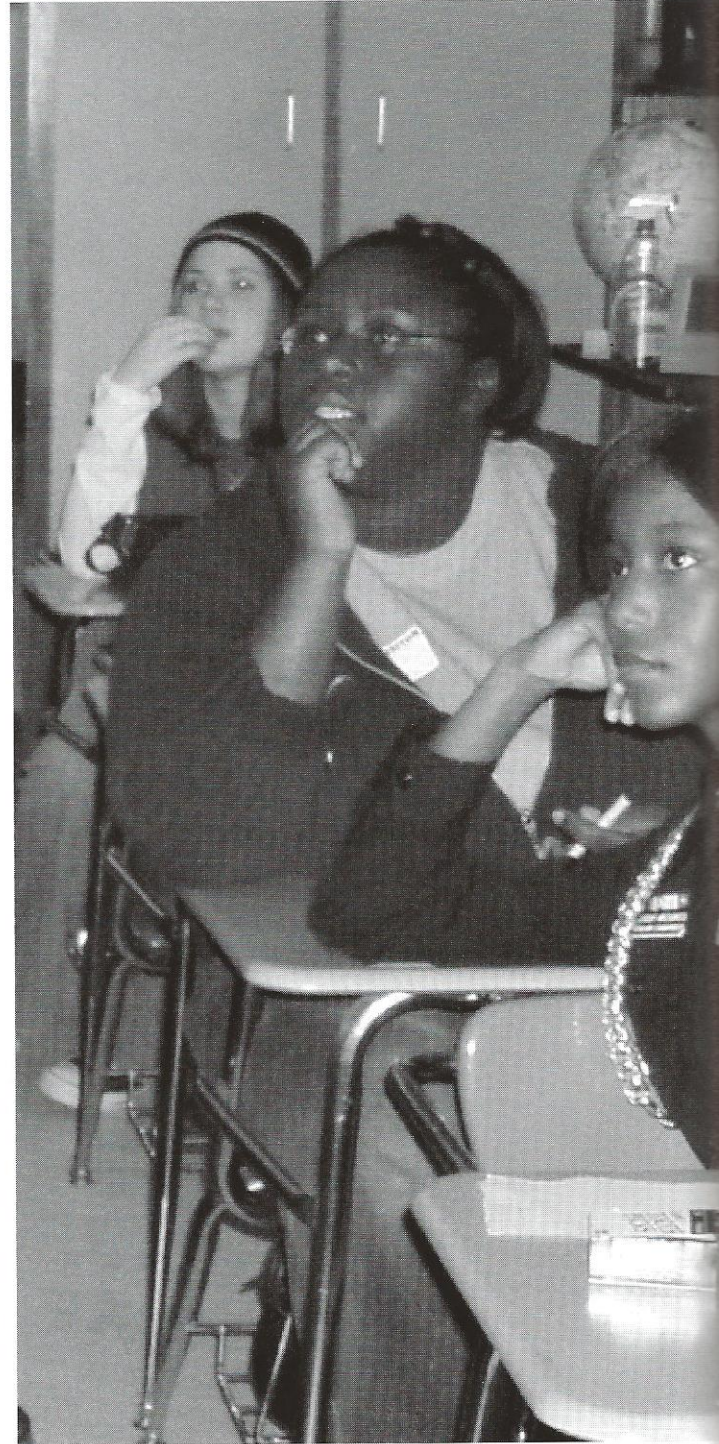

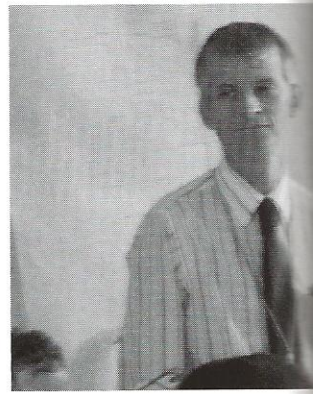

The academic team did well this year, and only missed going to Nationals by a couple of places.

Alex
Hartenburg,
10th

Checking answers and the attention span of the students, Mr. Smith watches them go to work. "Our team is pretty impressive this year," Mr. Smith said. The team had twelve active members and they took every question seriously.

Great minds think alike, and seniors Latina Washington and Khalliah White, along side sophomore Margaret Cogswell proved it to be so. "The team is challenging but it is exciting to be a part of it," senior Khalliah White said.

How do you feel about the Knowledge Master competition?

"The knowledge Master wasn't always about how much you knew, but how well you used common sense."

Rachel Hanson, 10th

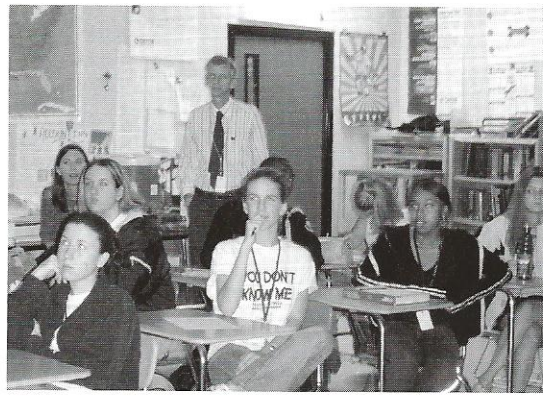

"Only half of Knowledge Master was knowing, the other half was learning things I didn't know."

Kari McIlwain, 12th

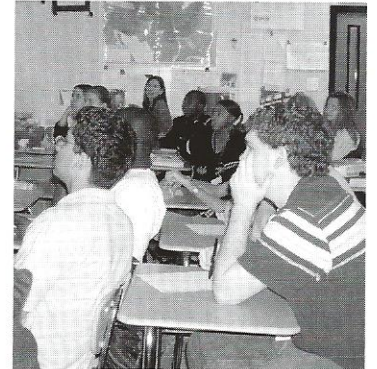

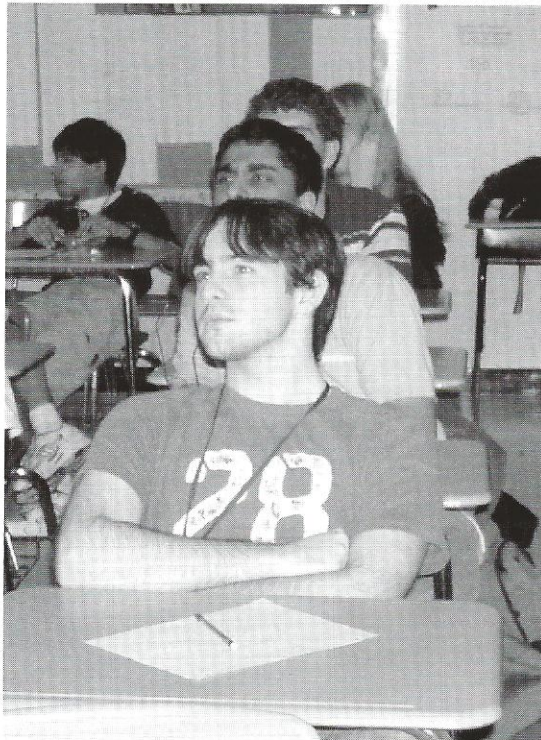

"It was fun to get out of class, but it was still a challenge."

Brice Griffin, 12th

As Coach Smith teaches his players about how the time works in competitions, junior Meredith Foss loses focus. "I like the Academic team because it lets us study things of our interest," Meredith said.

Focusing on the prize, senior Michael Stone answers questions the Knowledge Master feeds him. He felt that Coach Smith challenged everyone to the extreme. "The Academic Team was great because it was like having one class that covers all subjects," Michael said.

The Academic Team tests their skills by answering timed questions. The process of elimination helped them answer many questions. "Our team this year was very focused and dedicated," Coach Smith said.

A little frustrated and confused senior Mack Altaman sits back and contemplates on the answer. "Competition and knowledge, there is nothing better than trying to see if you are one of the best," Mack said. He felt there is a combination needed of the two to compete well.

Setting Involved

Taking Charge

Student Council made it their goal to increase student involvement at school. The student council had meetings after school and decided what kinds of things that they could do to help our school. They also attended functions around the state to see how other schools improved their environment. Members helped to better our environment making signs. "I liked making the signs for Student Council, and I was really happy when I saw my sign hanging in the commons area," junior Meredith Foss said.

The biggest success that the student council had was planning the homecoming parade. They worked tirelessly with school administration and various groups and clubs to organize a funfilled morning for the student body. "SGA did an outstanding job organizing our first annual Cougar Homecoming Parade. It was a great start for a great Cougar tradition," Mr. Runyon said.

Student Council members also made it possible for the student body to enjoy music while they dined in the commons area. They also picked up trays, cleaned the tables and cleaned the floors. They had a district rally November 1, 2004. Student Councils from other schools met in the commons area and discussed a wide variety of topics. The topics ranged from fundraising ideas, ways to improve the school, to how to get involved in the community. "I think the rally was a good idea, because it gave us a chance to talk to students from other schools, and we got some good ideas that students here may have never thought of," junior Leah Waters said.

-Amber Souza

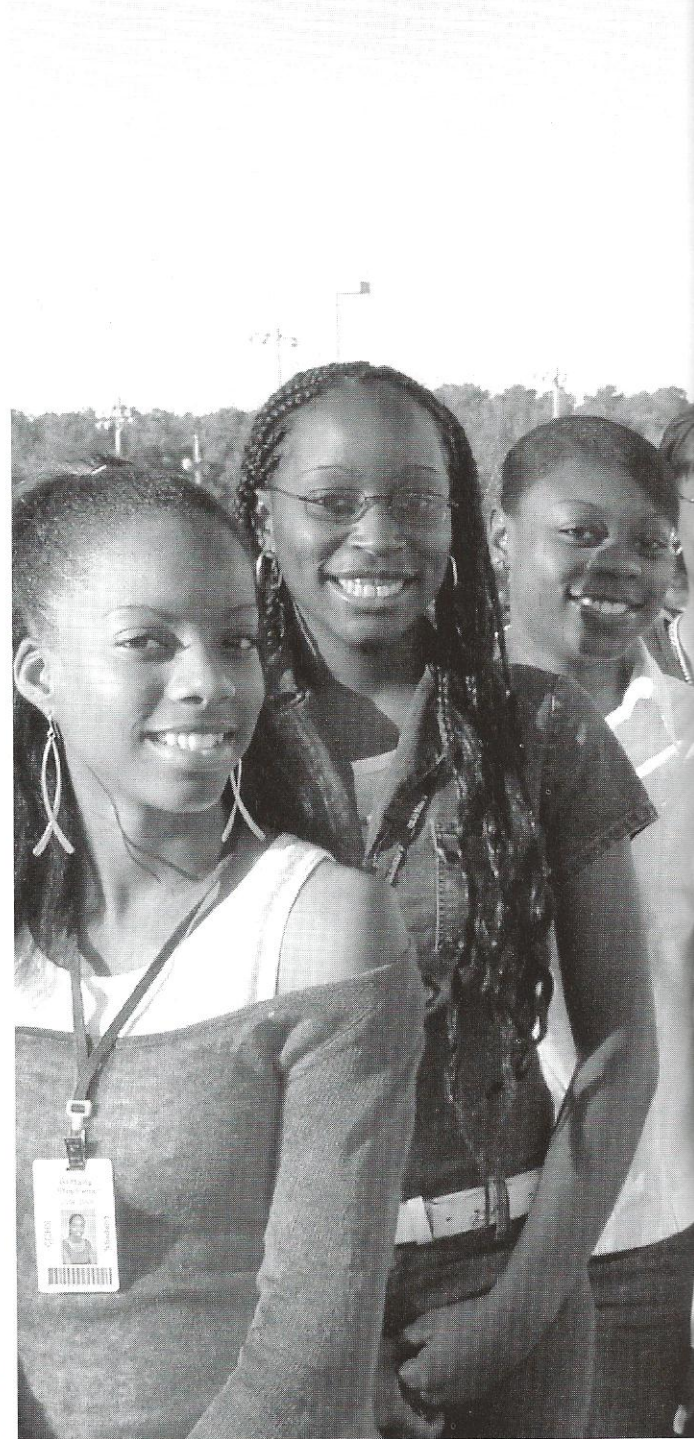

"I think the rally was a good idea, because it gave us a chance to talk to students from other schools, and we got some good ideas that students here may have never thought of," Leah Waters, 11th grade

Senior Student Council members Chantel Washington, Nicole Polanco, and Porsha McMillian pose in their tackiest dress gear. The girls really showed that they had spirit by helping support school functions.

At a meeting in Student Council, Siedah Garrett, and other members decide what to do to help out the school. "I like being in Student Council and getting involved," Siedah said.

Why Do You Like Being In Student Council?

"I like being in Student Council because I like being able to have a part in what goes on in my school."

Brian Haynes, 9th

"The major thing I like about Student Council is the teamwork and all of the creativity that the students have."

Shaina Ford, 11th

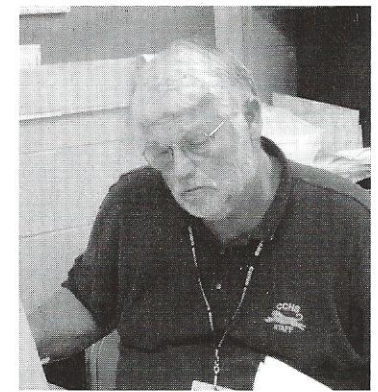

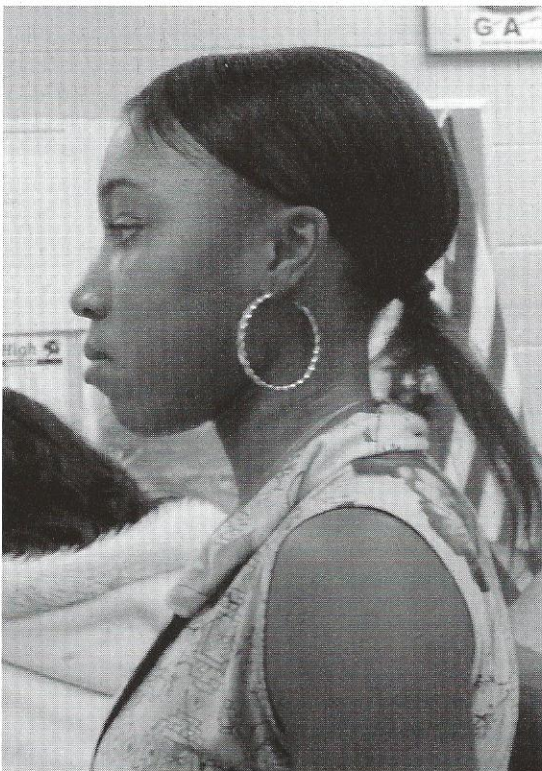

"I enjoy Student Council because it gives me an opportunity to become a leader and not a follower."

Laquinta Magwood, 10th

Contributing ideas, freshman Raven Johnson writes down some ideas about how to make the district rally operate smoothly. "I'm ready for the district rally. I think it will be great," Raven said.

Seniors Laquanda Murray, Ashley Singleton, Deshawn Mitchell, Rickey Langdale, Nicole Polanco and Kenyatta Greene pose on Edisto Beach. "The students in Student Council enjoy being the leaders of the school, but we also like to have fun. Our beach house meeting in Edisto was a great success and we can't wait to do it again," Ashley Singleton said.

Sitting at his computer, Mr. Tower reviews the schedule for the district rally held by Student Council. "I look forward to the district rally; I think it is a great opportunity for us to meet with other Student Councils from other schools," Mr. Towery said.

Trying to do her best, junior Regina Pencile works on a poster for student council. "I like making posters and helping out with Student Council," Regina said.

Career

JumpStart

A Great New Beginning

The vocational school made a great place to jumpstart a student's career. Many students took advantage of that opportunity. "I think that taking this class will help me get a job faster in the future," senior Sasha Brown said.

Many students drove harder when the class got difficult, but there were some students that did not try as hard and they didn't succeed. "I feel that the harder a class was the better I would feel if I succeeded in it. I passed my class with a 90," junior Timothy Kelly said.

Being able to take two classes at the vocational school made a great change on the best career for a student. "I was taking Pre-Engineering and Computer Application at the vocational school, I like Pre-engineering better than the other class," sophomore Melvin Cambell said.

The Vocational School made a lot of people excited about their future. "I learned a lot from Health Occupation at the vocational school, we had a chance to go to the middle school to try to convince students to join the class when they come to the high school," senior Iesha Brown said.

-Eric Salley

"I liked masonry it was pretty easy once I learned the mechanics."

Michael Daise, 11th

Rachael is making sure her measurements are right with a protractor so she can get her work exactly right. "Our class uses all kinds of rulers and objects to make sure we get our measurements right," sophomore Rachael Hanson said.

Senior Dequez Washington and Dexter try to finish their class work in a hurry. They both looked forward to seeing the final product. "Masonry is so easy to me and I enjoy doing it," Dequez said.

Will You Pursue This Class As A Career?

"I definitely will pursue something dealing with computers in an office because I learned how to type very good at the vocational school."

Ivory Shider, 10th

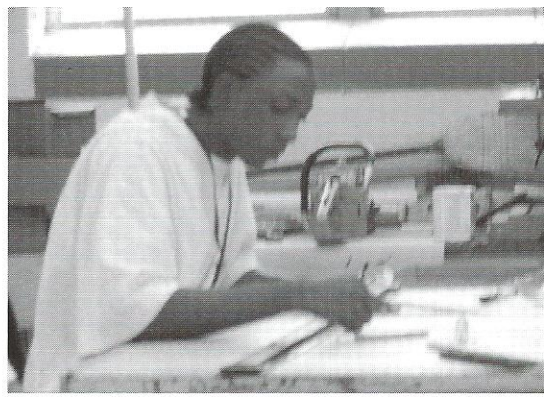

"I will pursue this career in the future, I want to be an auto mechanic with collision and fixing body parts on cars."

Curtis Schmidt, 12th

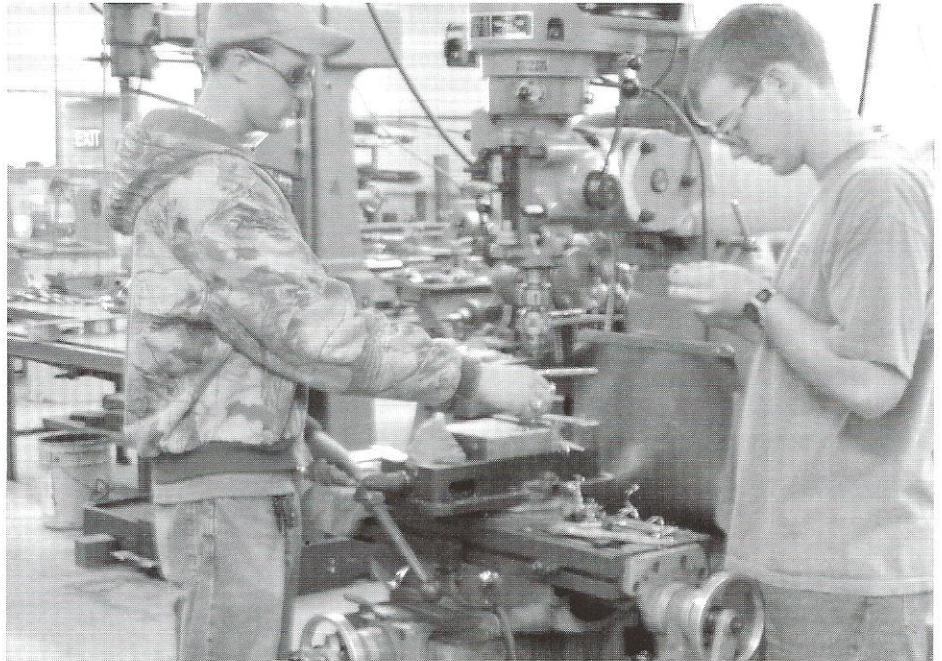

"I will not pursue this career I just am taking something at the vocational school to get credit."

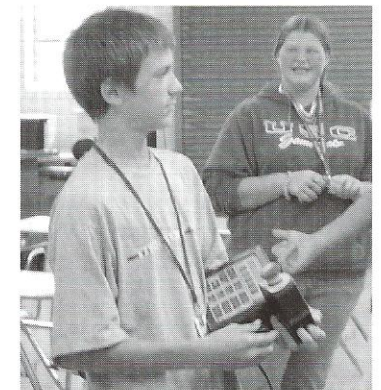

Adam Shider, 9th

Blake tries to make his measurements perfect everytime so he can get a good grade. "I like to do my work perfect or I just don't do it at all," senior Blake Mosley said.

Allan and Josh are making a hole in the metal to make sure it fits in the machine just right. "I like doing machine work it's fun but it is also complicated, I just have to be patient most of the time," senior Allan Lake said.

Sophomore Alex Hartenburg controls a machine with the special kind of remote. "I had fun dealing with the machine. I just had to be careful and make sure I didn't break or damage anything," Alex said.

Senior Erica Overton tries to finish her HOSA work on the computer before the class ends. Students found it difficult to access a computer outside of class. "I have to hurry to do most of my work in class," Erica said.

Sweet Southern Singin'

A lot of hard work and dedication came from the members of chorus. The students worked hard to perfect every one of their performances. Mrs. Drawdy strived to see that her chorus was the best that it could be. Chorus required patience, understanding, and team work. Everyone worked together to achieve a common goal: a great performance. "I didn't get nervous before performances because I knew if I messed up the rest of the chorus would still carry on, so it wouldn't be so bad," senior Andrew Siegler said.

Their effort showed in all of their performances. Mrs. Drawdy also offered lessons after school. The members learned new vocabulary words, new music notes and warmed up before they started singing.

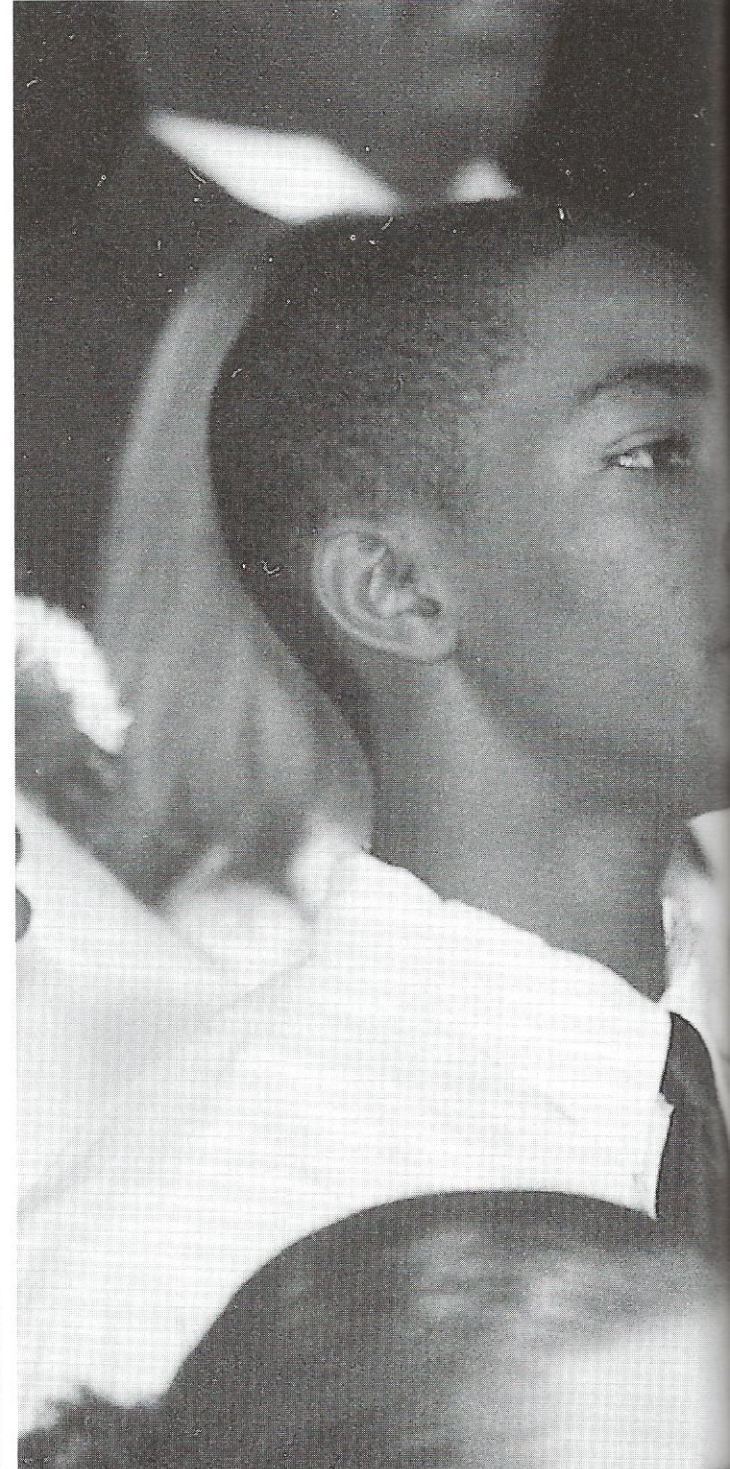

At the beginning of the school year they practiced for the homecoming football game by singing the Alma Mater and National Anthem. They then started practice for a competition called All State, held in Charleston. "I thought people in my class were talented because they took what they learned and perfected it," senior La'Quaysha Grant said. Each and every student gave their all and never gave up. They wanted to be the best and make their chorus the best it could possibly be.

-Amber Souza

Concentrating on his music notes, junior Ahmad Brown performs with the chorus at a Friday night football game. "I've been in chorus since I was in eighth grade and I love singing," said Ahmad.

Singing her heart out, sophomore Allison Hudson sings the National Anthem. "I really love chorus. It is the best way to get rid of a bad mood and Mrs. Drawdy is the best," Allison said.

"I really love chorus, singing is something I love to do, and I would really love for us to win all state."

Jasmine
Murphy, 12th
grade

What does chorus mean to you?

"Chorus meant that I worked hard, I practiced, and I sang my heart out."

Andie Cook 11th

"Chorus meant I had to be willing to sacrifice a little of my time, even if that meant giving up something else in order to make my performance the best it could be."

Justin Vaughn 10th

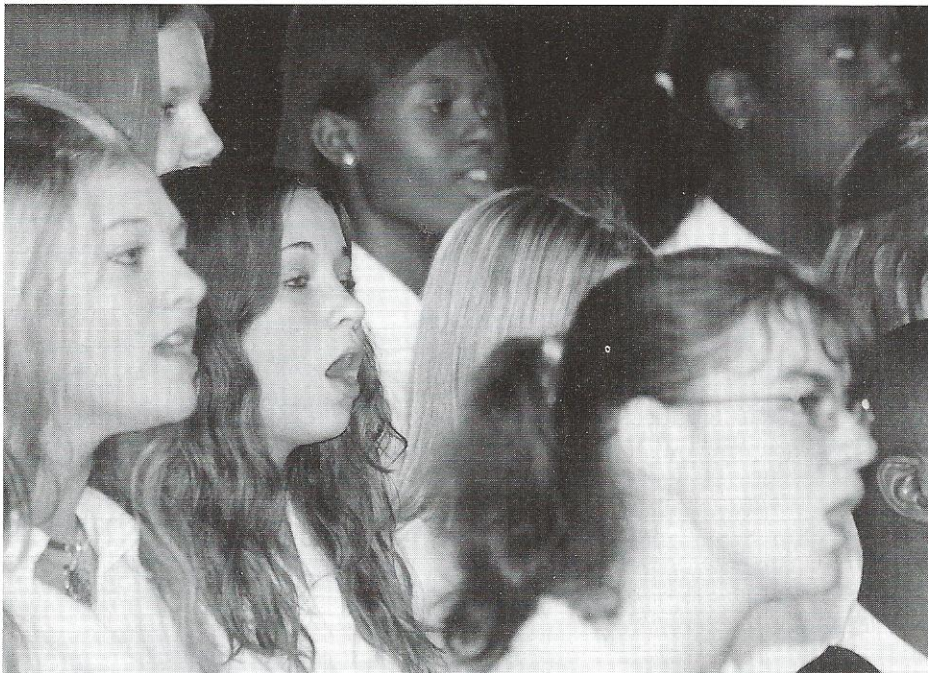

"Chorus meant trying my hardest and giving my best whether I was practicing or performing."

Allison Hudson 12th

Hitting every note, sophomore Ellie Upchurch sings the National Anthem alongside Emily Blakenship and Courtney Brown. "I thought chorus was great. I sang everywhere I went," Ellie said.

Sophomore Hannah Lane sings with her fellow chorus members. The chorus had a tradition of singing the Alma Mater and the National Anthem at the Homecoming game every year. "I love being in chorus because singing is so much fun," Hannah said.

Mrs. Drawdy plays the piano while her students sing along. Mrs. Drawdy was a big influence on most of the chorus members. "I was very proud of my chorus students and what they accomplished, they all worked extremely hard," Mrs. Drawdy said.

Junior Heather Reeves is anxious for class to end and chorus practice to begin. "I liked being in chorus because I like to sing. It was my favorite class," Heather said.

Working Hard To Achieve Success

Most classes had projects to complete on a regular basis. Projects could be for a grade in a class, or for fun in a group or club. Projects required a lot of thinking and a great deal of time; however, the more effort one put into a project, the more they got out of it. They also allowed students the opportunity to take a break from the normal everyday learning process. "I liked class projects because they gave a more in-depth experience to the learning process," senior Raymond Jacobs said.

Teachers came up with specific projects to help advance the learning process. Although they seemed difficult, they stimulated one's mind and learning abilities. Projects could also be enjoyable and fun for the students. "The best assignment was one that was both enjoyable and challenging," Mr. Drake said.

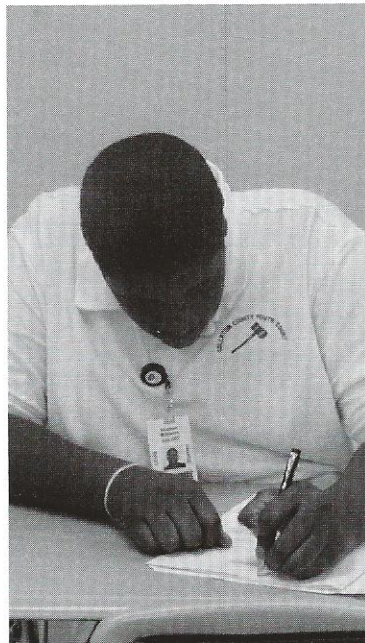

Working hard and paying attention helped when completing a project. Students tended to wait until the last moment to begin an assignment. Effort played a major roll in the grading process.

Knowing one's teacher also helped because each teacher had their own set of guidelines that they used to grade the projects. "I like it when students listened, followed directions, and turned in neat, clean, and easy-to-appreciate work," Mrs. Waddell said.

-Ashley Strickland

-Eric Salley

"I like doing projects for test grades instead of having to study for a test."
Shelton Williams,
10th grade

Sophomore Antonio Banks proudly presents his project to his classmates. Antonio's project dealt with WWII. "Presentations are fun and easy, but it requires more time than tests," Antonio said.

Mrs. Pawlak's students take a class picture after they finish completing their world recipe day project. During the class, students ate food from all around the world. "I love doing projects, it's better than doing boring class work," junior Dominick White said.

Do You Like Projects Or Tests?

"I like projects because they take a lot more time and effort than a test does. Projects give people a challenge."

Derrick Fields, 12 grade

"I like doing projects because they are more hands on than tests, you can be more creative with a project."

Brittany Eustace, 9th

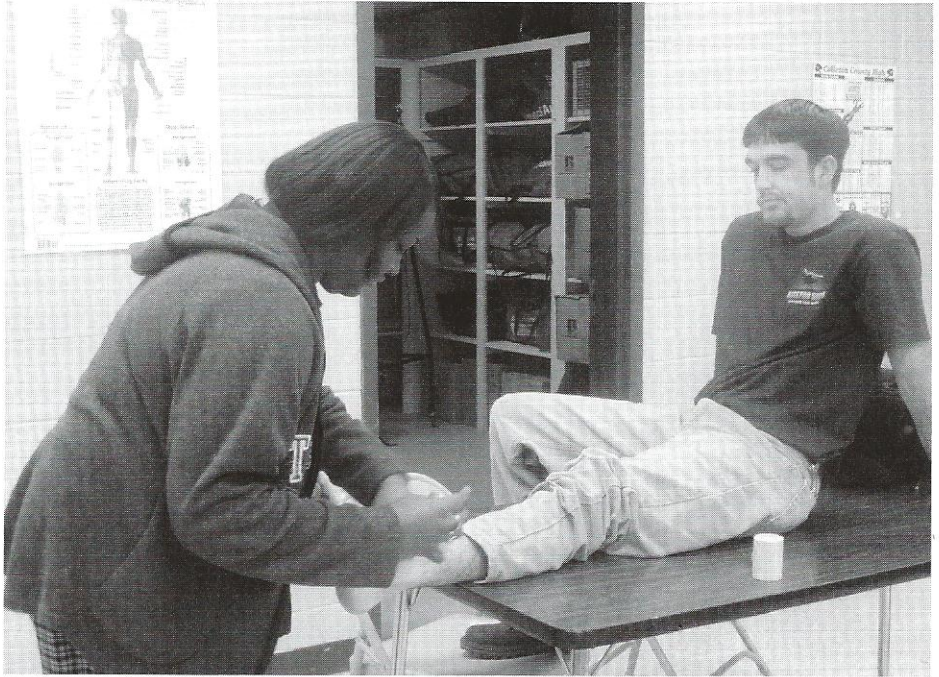

"I like doing projects because they are easy and I get good grades on them."

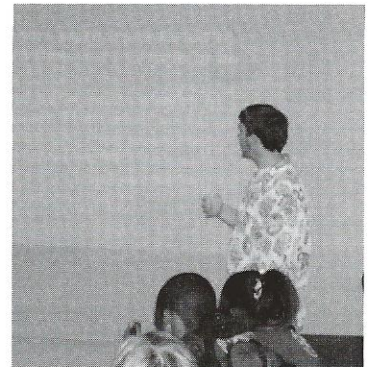

Cody Williams, 12th

Juniors James Waddell and Shontae Young show off their "Fall of the House of Usher" class project. Mrs. Brown has given the assignment for years. "I had fun while I helped create the poster," Shontae said.

Learning to fix an injured ankle, senior Leah Aiken tapes senior Dusty Strickland's ankle. Taking sports medicine meant having many class projects involving taping. "I like taping because hands on activities were the best way to learn," Dusty said.

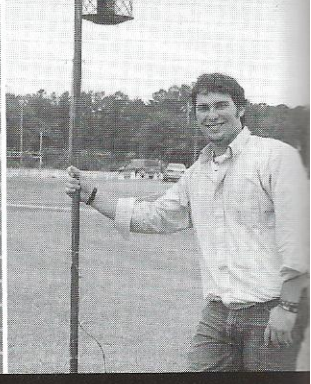

Sophomore James Edwards has a great time finishing his WWI project for Mrs. Travis. "I like doing projects for Mrs. Travis; she gives really good grades," James said.

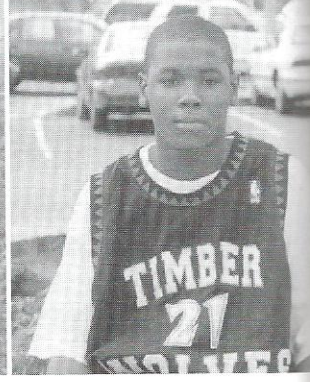

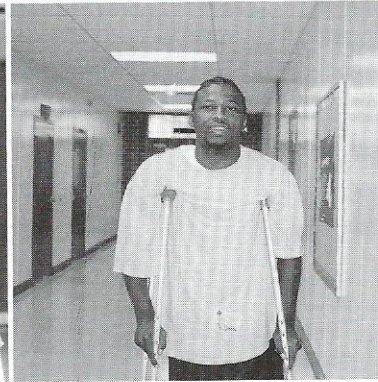

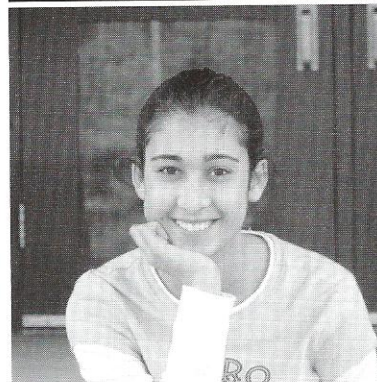

Lindsey Hiers, Meagan Donker, Channing Derry, Bonnie Cole, James Waddell, and Benjamin Boyd paint the cougar on the football field. "I had fun helping put the cougar on the field," senior Channing Derry said.

Rasheed tackles an offensive player and keeps him pinned to the ground. "I had fun hitting people it was the best part of playing defense," senior Rasheed Fair said.

Staring at the ball, Brandon gets ready to get straight on line with his teammates. "I have to be straight on the line so the referees won't call off sides on me," sophomore Brandon Green said.

Getting ready to toss the ball, senior Courtney Singleton makes sure he doesn't get hit by a defender. "I had to look over my shoulder continuously to make sure I didn't get tackled," senior Courtney Singleton said.

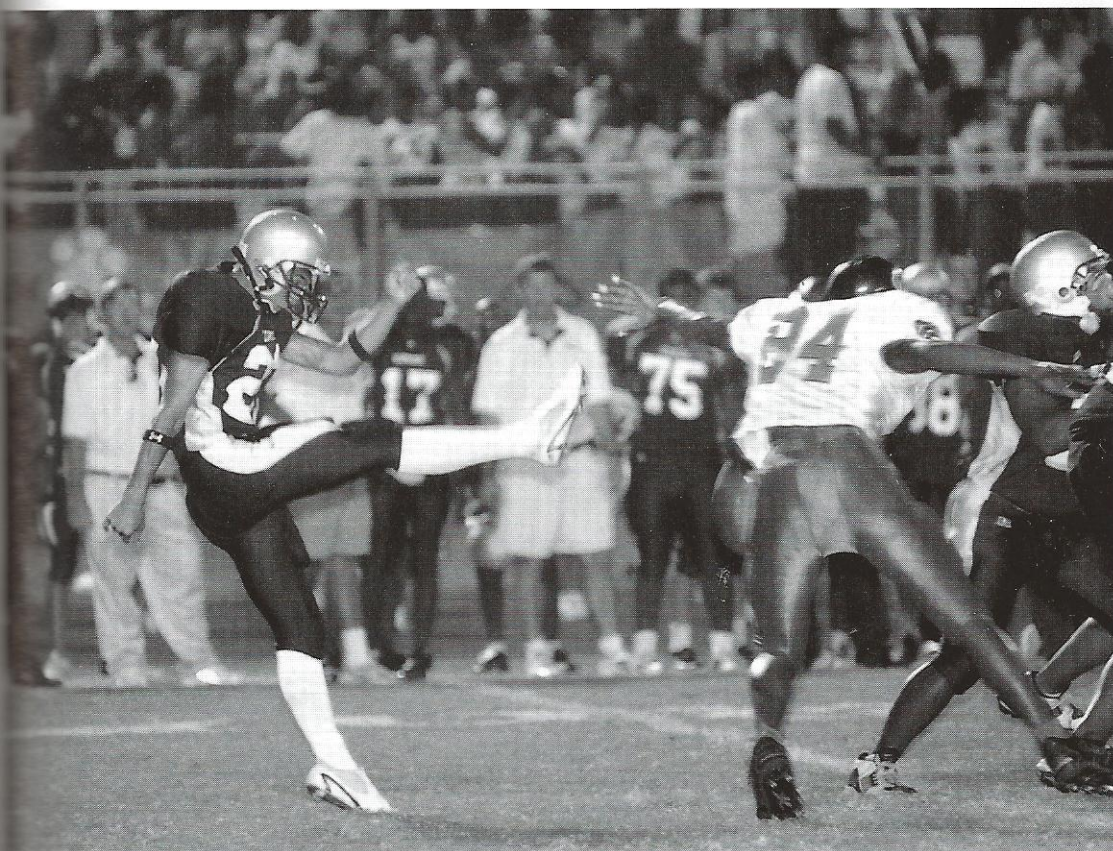

Getting ready for the snap, senior Rasheen Pinckney keeps his eyes on the defense. "I had to keep a close eye on the defense before the play started," senior Rasheen Pinckney said.

Looking over the defender, junior Ronald Robinson looks intimidating. "I liked to look down on the other players. It made me look bigger," Ronald said.

NO GAMES, JUST SPORTS

Punting the ball, junior Morgan Mabry forces Timberland to begin the play further down the field. "My job was to get the ball in a spot where our defense could stop the other team from scoring," junior Morgan Mabry said.

Take It To The Field

Pride and energy filled the hyped football players before they took on each game. Some pre-game rituals included praying and joking around. "Before a game I try to zone out and get my mind on the game," junior Donald Robertson said. A few players said that nervousness was present while on the field. The crowd kept the players nervous and excited throughout the game. "I am nervous because of the crowd yelling and rooting and I don't want to disappoint them," junior Morgan Mabry said.

TAKING SPIRIT TO THE FIELD

Senior Dee Jenkins looked out onto the football field and saw her team score another touchdown. "Cheering and watching the game at the same time became a little hard, but I managed," Dee said.

Always Spirit, All the Time!

Varsity cheerleading coach, Deborah Harris, tried her hardest to get the cheerleaders ready for the Sertoma Classic. Unfortunately, they did not have the opportunity to attend. Despite that unforeseen obstacle, the cheerleaders' spirit remained high. "I liked Coach Harris; she was a great coach and she had a lot of experience, so she knew what she was doing," senior Nicole Bunton said.

The grueling tryout process in April 2004 resulted in the coming together of twenty girls and the first male cheerleader to the varsity squad. "We had to attend a three day session where we learned a cheer, a chant, a dance, and the correct way to jump. On the last day we repeated what we learned in front of a panel of judges, and the persons with the highest scores in the 11th and 12th grades made the varsity squad," senior Amber Cunningham said.

Cheerleading proved to be special to different people for different reasons. Whether it was getting into the games for free or just the love of it, all the varsity cheerleaders had his or her own reasons for being on the squad. "We are different from other people and we are always there for our teams," junior Morgan Drawdy said.

- Leah Waters

Junior Morgan Drawdy feels the burn as she gave her all. "I did not think the football team would win without us," Morgan said.

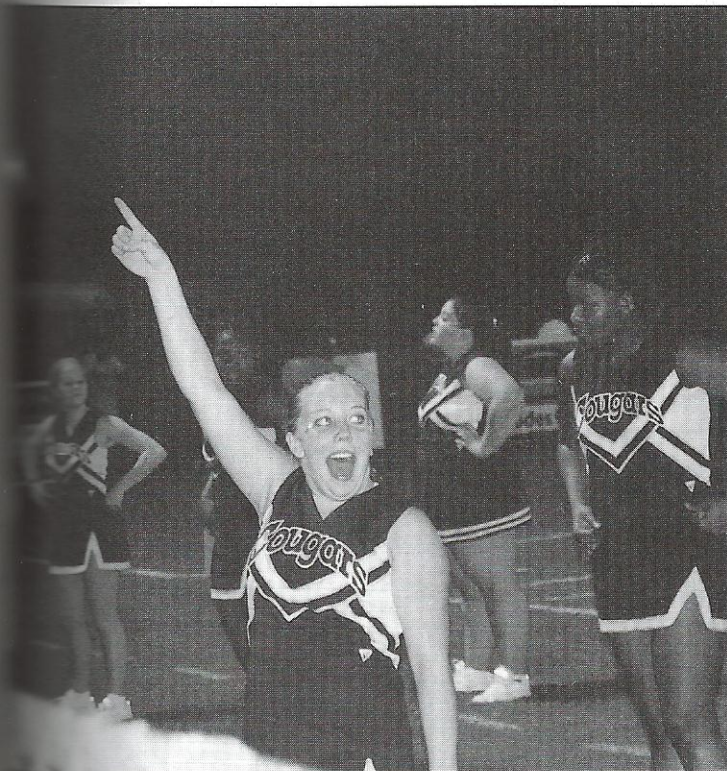

Senior Bonnie Cole cheers with her fellow varsity cheerleaders to pump up the crowd. "I tried to show my spirit in a way that would inspire others," Bonnie said.

Senior Nicole Bunton claps to the beat of the band drums as she cheered her team on. "The varsity squad made it look easy to cheer and clap," Nicole said.

Varsity cheerleader, senior Amber Cunningham, cheered on her team during the home game against Berkeley. She looked over her shoulder a lot of the time to see how her team performed. "We all cheered for the same reason, to help our team win," Amber said.

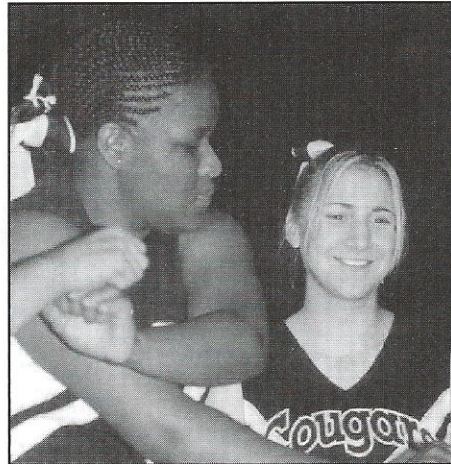

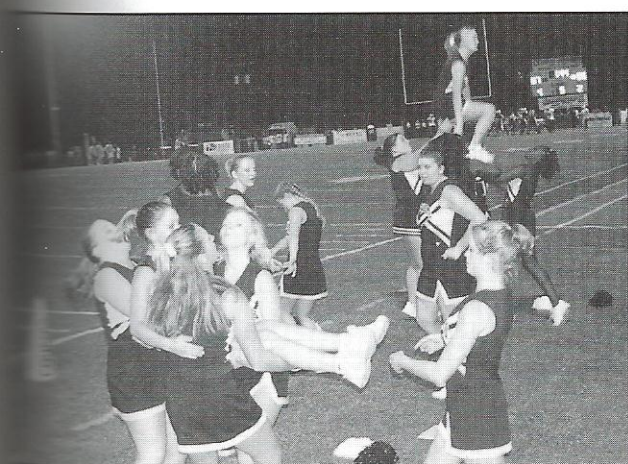

As they expressed their spirit to the crowd and the football team, the varsity squad shouted, "We're number one!"

Sophomore Brittany Boyd along with her fellow varsity cheerleaders, dropped their pom-poms to shake their stuff for the crowd. "We did not do it for ourselves, we did it for our team," Brittany said.

Junior Shannon Keeling along with the varsity cheerleaders prepared to stunt for the crowd. "My favorite part of cheerleading was stunting because I'm a flyer," Shannon said.

Sophomore Rachel Culpepper shined brightly as she cheered for her team to win the game. "I thought that the cheerleading squad's spirit helped the team win," Rachel said.

THURSDAY NIGHT LIVE

Setting up for the tackle, the boys concentrate on who has the ball and what the other team will do. They acted and thought quickly. "We have to keep our eyes on the ball just incase the other team tries to trick us," freshman Vincent Edwards said.

It's Show Time!

In blue, silver, and white, the football squad began to power up for a new season. "I loves playing football because it was fun, breath taking and it took effort, hard work and commitment," freshman Zakary Nadzack said.

The players realized that they had to work hard and be dedicated. "For those who never played football but wanted to play, my advice to them was to do as they were told. They have to be willing to learn," sophomore William Cannon said.

-Hope Grant

Using their time out wisely, the boys gather together to discuss what to do next. They found a plan that worked. "We're only allowed to call a time out if we really have to." junior Earnest Smith said.

SHOUT IT OUT

SCREAM FOR YOUR TEAM

The Junior Varsity Cheerleaders helped pump up the football players.

Cheerleading proved to be more than just skirts, smiles, and pep. Sometimes cheerleading required a little blood, sweat, and tears. "Lots of work went into cheerleading that no one really thought about," sophomore Stephanie Castles said.

The cheerleaders practiced during the week after school. They worked on stunts, dances, cheers, and jumps, and they gave their all in everything they did. The girls showed their dedication by being at every practice and never once missing a game. "I sacrificed a lot to be there and make things happen," sophomore Prenita Hudson said.

Cheerleading challenged the girls, but it kept the team's spirit alive.

Concentrating on her arm motions, freshman Callie O'Conner practices before a JV game. "We always practiced before games to make sure we knew what we have to do," Callie said.

Working hard to perfect her cheering, sophomore Emily Blakenship reviews a stunt with the rest of the junior varsity cheerleaders. "I loved all the girls on my squad; they were all very sweet and I knew I could ask any of them for anything," Emily said.

Putting in a little extra effort, sophomore Jaime Johnson learns a new cheer. "I liked learning new cheers especially if it was a cheer I can get into," Jaime said.

Taking a little time to relax, sophomore Taiessa Andrews stops to take a silly team picture. "I think this year went really well as far as cheering went, and we all got along great," Taiessa said.

Stopping for a quick snapshot, freshman Tori Brown and sophomore Stephanie Castles flash big smiles. "The rest of the girls made cheerleading lots of fun, there was never a dull moment," Tori said.

Sophomore Courtney Brown cheers her team on. "We were more than just cheerleaders, we were sisters and cheerleading was awesome!" Courtney said.

GOING THE EXTRA MILE

Runners faced obstacles during the 2004 cross country season. The sun drained energy as sweat poured down the team's bodies. Gasping for air, the team ran with persistence. Runners looked to the team for support. "The team was my inspiration," sophomore Annie Gregory said. Runners stayed healthy by going on personal diets. They set goals and reached them. "I stopped drinking soda and eating sweets," said junior Bhavina Patel. The team had a goal to be state qualifiers so the competition grew stronger as the season ended. "The region race was the most important race," Coach George Smith said.

-Brandi Traynham and Ashley Strickland

Out-running his opponent, junior Andrew Johnson keeps up with his pace. Running at a set speed was important. "I ran my own pace regardless of everyone else around me," junior Andrew Johnson said.

Eager to start off well, the varsity boys leave the starting line. Starting off well was not as important as maintaining strength through a race. "Every race was just practice for the regional race," Coach Smith said.

Clearing her mind, senior Leah Ellison concentrates hard. With each race the runners became more aware of what to expect. "The races began to seem longer, but they weren't easier," Leah said.

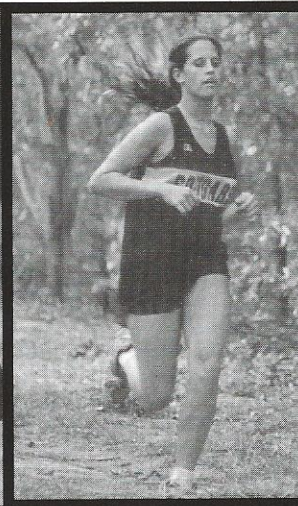

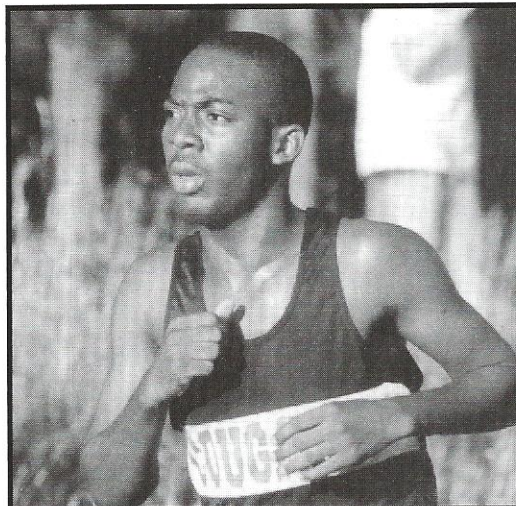

Trying to win, junior Matthew Boles races along his path. The locations of each race were all different. "Each race was a challenge, and I never knew what to expect until I got there," Matthew said.

Running through the woods, sophomore Ashleigh Yarka keeps up with other runners. Being motivated helped the runners to do their best. "Cross country was a fun sport if I was willing to work hard," Ashleigh said.

MAKING RACQUET

Playing tennis required a lot of practice. The tennis team knew how hard work benefited when they performed well.

The girls practiced at home and as often as possible. "We practiced every day for about two hours," senior Whitney Anderson said.

The team of 2004 consisted of new players and experienced players. Playing tennis allowed freedom and the ability to relieve stress. "I felt free being able to hit the ball and release my stress," senior Katrina Gethers said.

This year became a learning experience for newcomers and a great accomplishment for experienced players. "We were close and everyone involved supported me," junior Shania Ford said. The team received motivation through each other's support.

- Ashley Strickland

The tennis team unites before their matches begin. The girls played an opponent one at a time. "Everyone should give tennis a chance," junior Yvonne Cochran said.

On her way to practice, sophomore Ashley Garrett grabs her racquet. The team learned what it took to play tennis. "Tennis took a lot of practice, and I hope to play next year," Ashley said.

Waiting for the ball to return to her, Veronica Taylor plans her next move. The girls practiced when they could to be prepared. "Practice paid off because we had a good season," Ashley said.

The team tries to take their mind off their competition by relaxing. Having a clear mind helped the girls to concentrate well. "My favorite thing about tennis was thinking on my feet," senior Whitney Anderson said.

Tiffany Rose, Shania Ford, Chelsey Edwards, and Veronica Taylor spend time together and help motivate the team before the game began. The team had a great deal of support and motivation for each other. "We all got along well, and we always made each other laugh," Shania said.

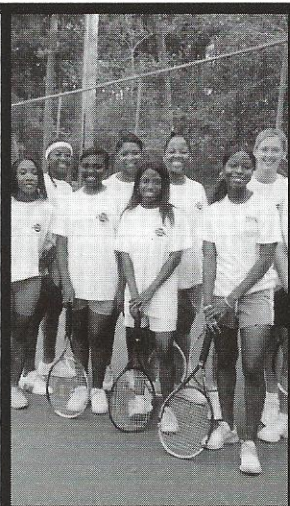

"I tried tennis because it looked fun, and once I tried it, I really liked it."

Khaliquah Campbell said.

"The tennis team has definitely come a long way since the first year," Ashley Singleton said.

New Coach Mrs. Rizer was welcomed with open arms. She took over the JV coach position. Many players said she was a great coach. "Even though she wasn't my coach, I saw the progress she made with JV. She seemed like a good coach," junior Tara Shafer said.

Waiting for the serve, the varsity volleyball team gets down and low to receive the ball. Reception was the key to making a good play.

The hardest server on the team, senior Casey Crosby intimidates many other teams with her powerful serve and spike. Some of the players looked up to Casey a lot.

Serving it up, junior Amber Redman smacks the ball with her perfect technique. She has been playing volleyball for a long time. Playing this sport happened to be one of her favorite things to do.

Making a great serve, junior Natasha Gillard did not miss many of her serves. She was one of the best servers on the team. She learned a great jump during the season making her an awesome spiker.

SERVING IT UP

Stretching is the most important thing in sports, and these volleyball players took it very seriously. They stretched before every practice and every game.

Laying It All On The Line

The lady Cougars worked hard at every practice. "We do serving, spiking, and setting drills. Also, the running and conditioning really helped us be a better team," junior Rebecca Jacobs said.

The sound of the balls smacking arms and floors produced racing hearts and rapid adrenaline flow in many volleyball players. There had to be a reason for each volleyball player to work so hard. "I played because it was one of the only sports I can play for hours and not get tired. Also, I love how it pushes me," sophomore Savannah Lane said.

-Tara Shafer

Ronald shoots down the court with the ball in a home game against Stratford. "I like to use my speed to go from one end of the court to the other for a basket," junior Ronald Robinson said.

TESTING THE LIMITS

Filled with a tremendous amount of energy, Colleton County's basketball prospects held tryouts for a week in November. "I was very scared up to the last day of tryouts. I didn't think I would make it."

junior Justin Reeves said.

When the Coach posted the final roster, a numerous amount of students became highly disappointed.

"When practices started I thought that I was going to die."

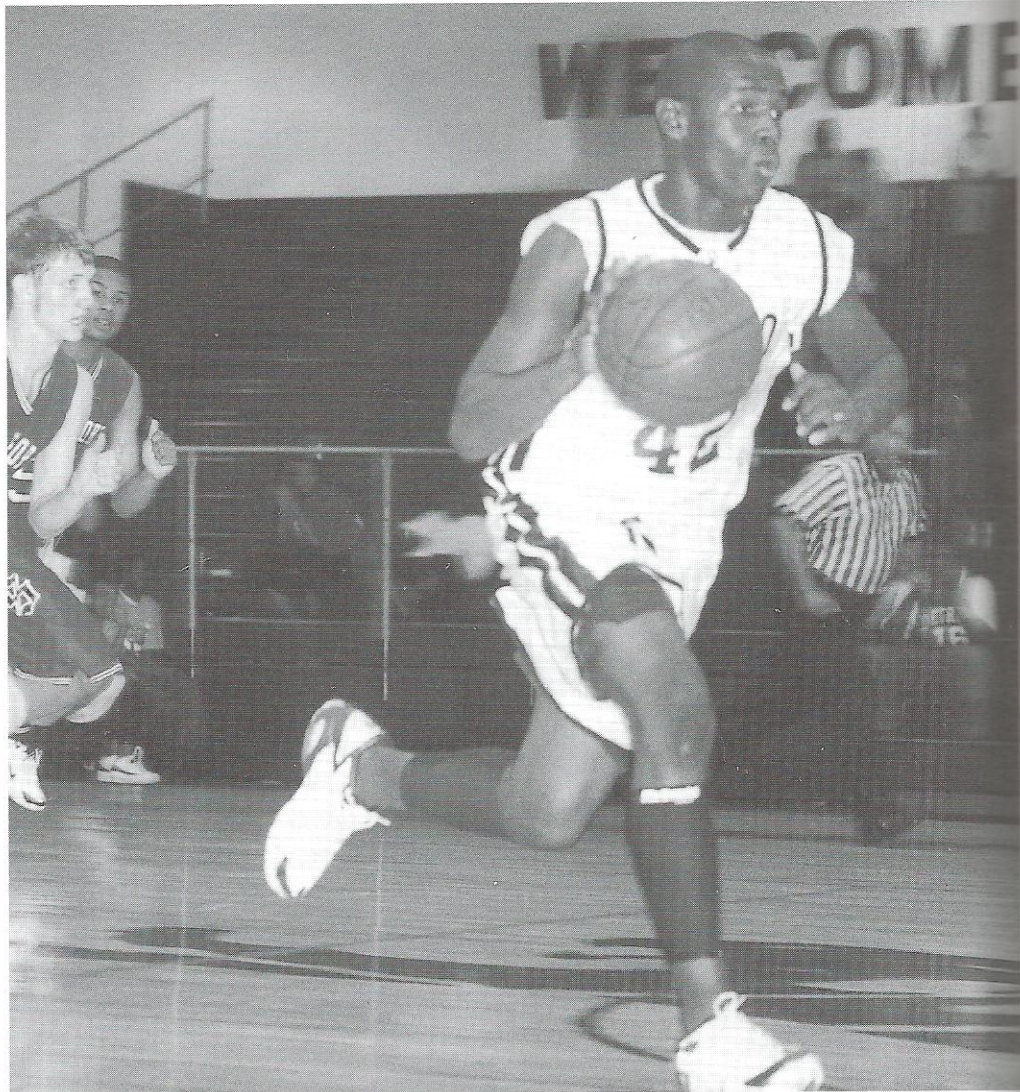

junior Donald Robinson said.

Practices thrived on hard work and determination from the players every night. "I just want them to practice in an championship effort every night, so they can turn their basketball program around," coach Michael Tew said.

Jasper slides on the floor while he continues to keep the ball on the floor. "I had to keep the ball bouncing so I couldn't get a travel called on me," junior Jasper Farmer said.

Brandon Givens changes his form in the air over a Stratford defender. "I can change my shot in the air because I am tall enough and I can jump high enough to still make the shot," sophomore Brandon Givens said.

Flying through the air, Elidjah goes in for two points against Berkeley at one of the Cougars home games. "I can jump well for a person of my size, so I like to use my jumping ability in games," junior Elidjah Michael said.

Chris sneaks around a corner to get pass a defender before he is called out of bounds. "I like to edge pass the defender at the last second to score a basket," senior Chris Brown said.

Racing down the court, senior Brittany Grant swipes the ball from an opponent. "Before the game I sit back and relax and think about the game ahead of me," Brittany said.

Doing her best to jump the highest, senior Yasmin Hamilton leaps into the air to retrieve the ball. "I think teamwork is important because we play a better game when we work together," Yasmin said.

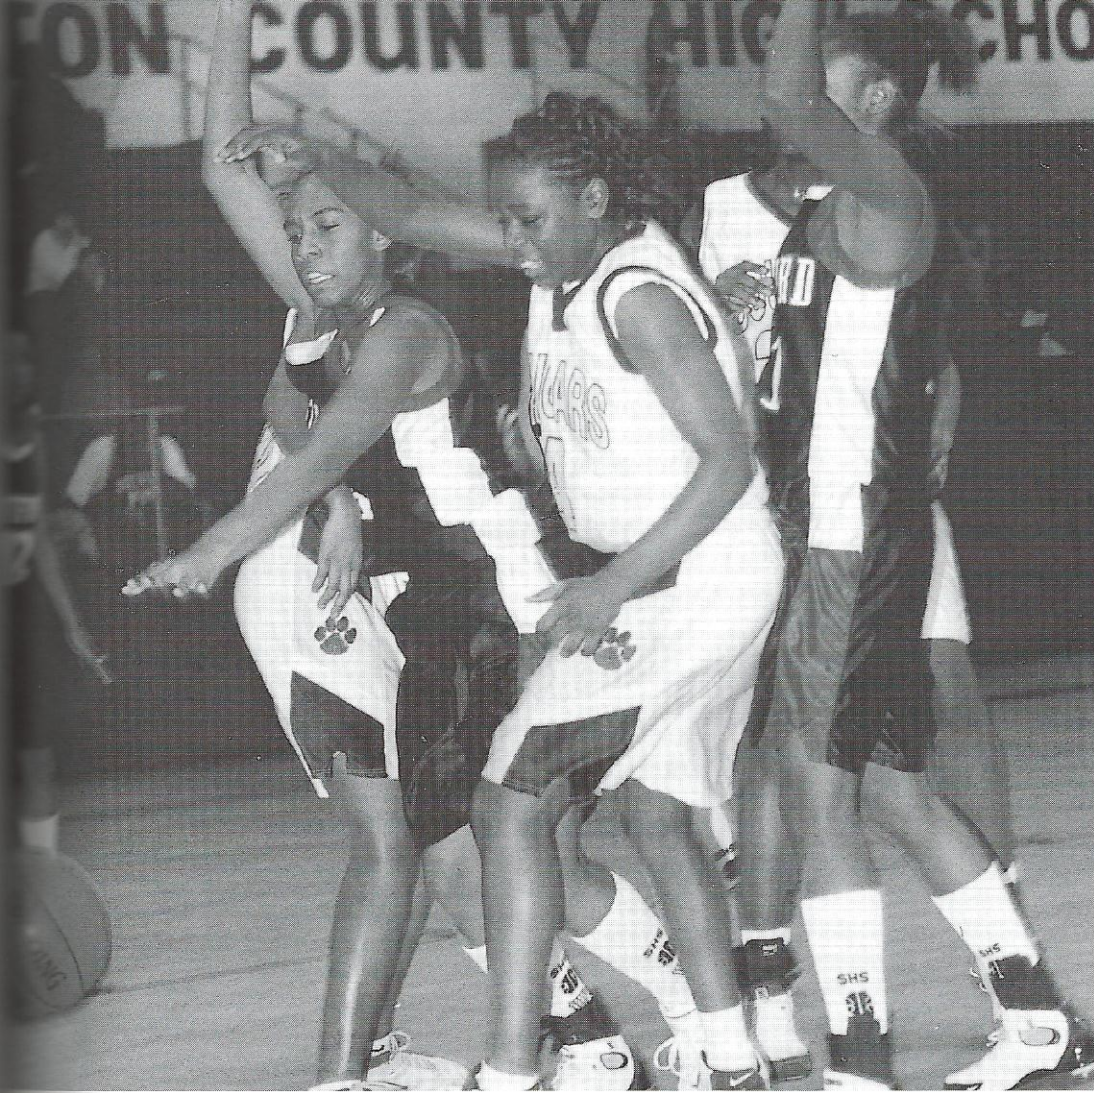

Being quick on her feet, forward Natasha Gilliard sets up for a pass to score. I think that the coaches do a pretty good job, and we work well together as a team," Natasha said.

Blocking to the best of her ability, center Branshea Brown moves in front to grab the ball. "We practice before the games so that we play our best when it comes down to it," Branshea said.

Assistant Coach Dawn Rizer, takes a break from reviewing team plays. "The lady cougars are having an up and down season, we are still looking for a floor leader. With two wins in the conference we are eyeing a play-off spot," Coach Rizer said.

Fighting hard against her Stratford opponents, forward Selita Hills hits the ball out of the grasp of another girl. I practice with the team here at school, but when I'm home I usually just try to relax.' Selita said.

MAKING IT COUNT

As their hearts raced and the concepts of basketball pressed their thoughts, the varsity girls basketball team prepared themselves for the game ahead. Basketball demanded a lot of dedication as well as patience amongst themselves and their team mates. Team work was among their top priorities. Each girl had their moment to shine. "There really isn't a best player because we each have something to contribute to the team," junior La'Kia Grant said. Working as a team made all the difference.

Even if it meant pushing themselves to the limit, they always gave their best.

THEY SHOOT, THEY SCORE

Starting the season with high hopes of winning, the boys prepared for victory. Tryouts were held in early November to develop a team of champions.

"Basketball is what I have always loved to do," sophomore Jabree Salley said.

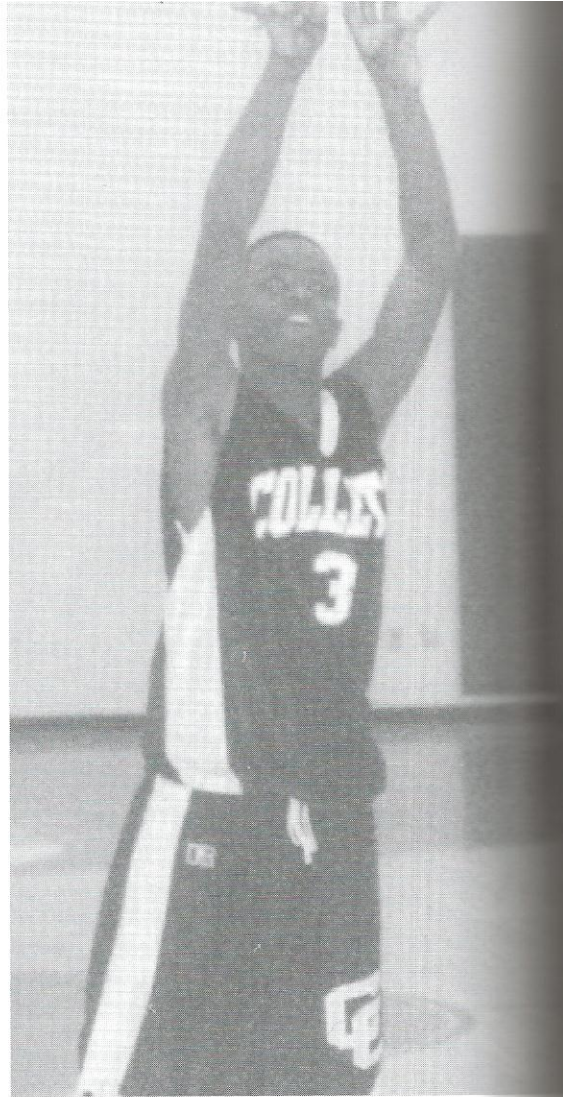

A lot of the players got the extra practice they needed over the summer. The practices prepared them for the upcoming season. "I played midnight basketball over the summer at the recreation center," sophomore Calvin Young said.

For some, basketball became a means of escape. It helped many people out. "Playing basketball helps me keep my grades up better than I use to," sophomore Deshaun Holmes said.

-Hope Grant

Showing off his skills, Kelvin Gant shoots a basket. Fortunately, his skills worked in the Beaufort game. "We all played as a team that night. That's why we are 8-4," freshman Kelvin said.

Taking on the job went to coach Dwayne. He did his best to make sure everything ran smoothly. "What I do to prepare my JV team for battle is work them extremely hard in practice and focus on fundamentals," coach George said.

Going for the basket, Brittany Reed tried not to let the other opponent block her shot. She kept her eye on the hoop. "I love basketball, and I always try to do my best," Brittany said.

GET READY

With new players and a new season, the junior varsity team geared up. Tryouts were held in the school's gym on November 1 and 2, 2004. For some, tryouts came easy. "Tryouts were not hard because I knew what I had to do," freshman Mara Broughton said. For many, they knew what to expect. They already knew what they hoped to gain from playing. "I want to continue to play throughout high school. After that, I would like to attend Duke University and may be go pro," freshman Brittany Witherspoon said. As the season came to an end, the girls debated whether or not to come back. They even began to recruit new players for a new season. Some even gave out advice. "When it's time to try out, all you can do is your best," freshman Angel Farmer said.

Phil Maffei wrestled his opponent to the mat in an attempt to pin him. "I like wrestling because everyone on the team is a family and always there for each other," senior Phil Maffei said.

ON TOP OF THINGS

Sliding and tossing their way to the mats, the wrestling team kicked off the second season with a bang, in preparation for the playoffs held in February. Quickness, strength, and talent made wrestling different from the other high school sports. To some, the skill and discipline it took to be a wrestler made it different. "I joined the team because I considered myself to be a very active person and I always wanted to play a sport," senior Stephan Lapresta said.

CHARGING THE NET

With a full season ahead of them, the varsity boy's soccer team launched to a new season. They accomplished their main goal which was to work as a team. "I enjoyed working together with the team this past season," senior Kevin Kinard said. Their cooperation with one another landed them at the top, with a great season behind them. With the ball in the net and the cougars' hands raised triumphantly in the air, the team made many goals. Practice makes perfect, that's how the old saying goes; however, "I don't think that we should have more practices, but I do believe that practices would be more effective if they were lengthier," Taylor Smith said.

-Lastanza Rivers

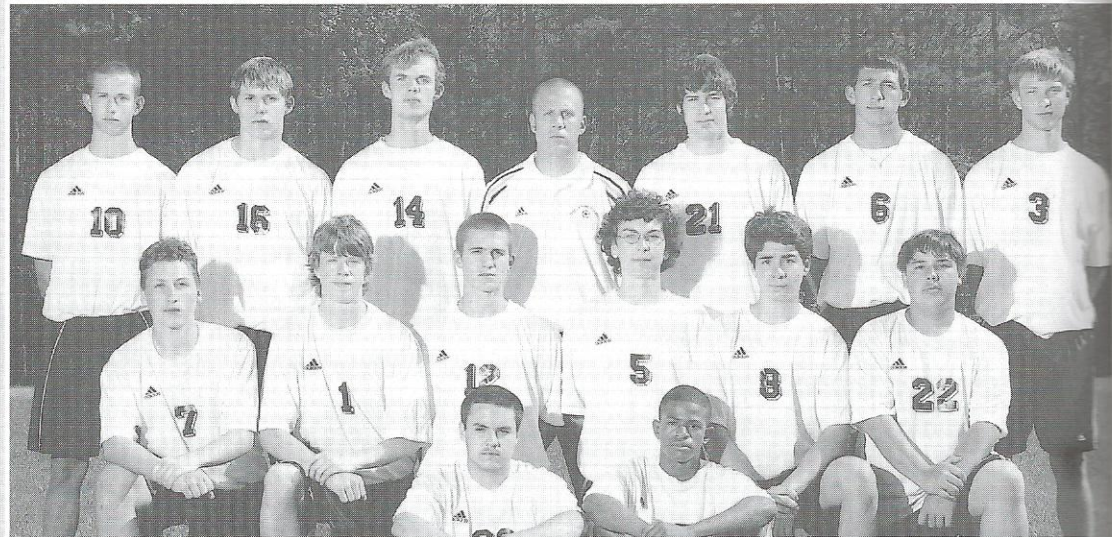

Sophomore Jacob O'Quinn accidentally kicks the soccer ball into the path of the opposing team scoring for them. "I was sending the ball up field to Eric and it didn't go as planned." Jacob said.

Senior Robert Pence's legs get twisted as he kicks the soccer ball. He tried to keep the team in the game by scoring a goal. "I like playing soccer it is a hard sport but I enjoy playing," Robert said.

HEADS UP

With a look of determination, sophomore Jennifer Goodwin manages to keep up with the ball. "Our team this year has many talented players and we have done very good and even made playoffs," Jennifer said.

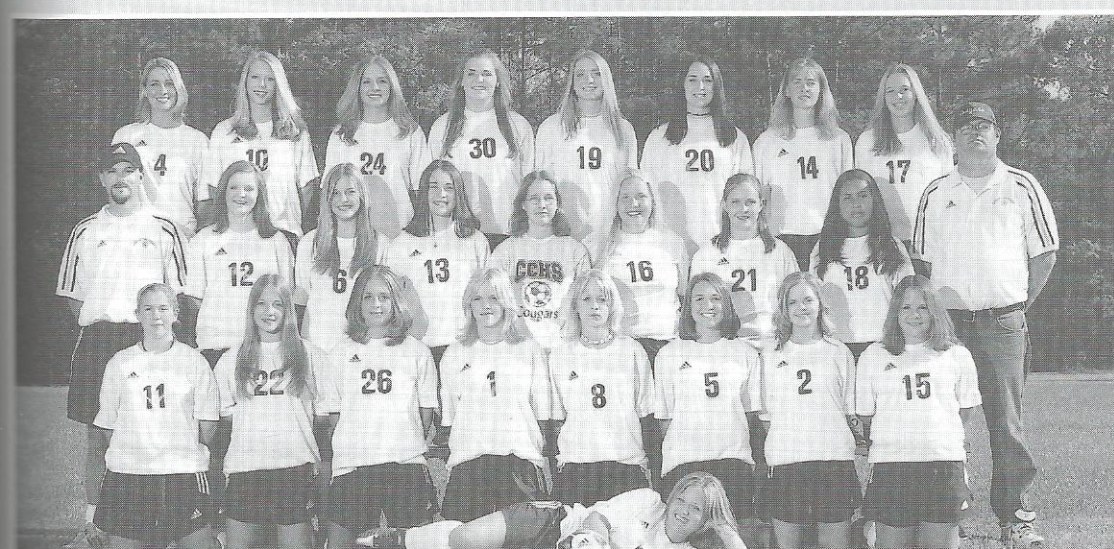

Trying to keep up senior Mamie Foreman runs after the ball. "It's really challenging, the strategy and physical aspect of the game is really difficult to master sometimes," Mamie said.

The girls soccer team tried to stay fit and focused at every practice and game. Many of the players had years of playing time, while others were just beginning the process of learning. "It's possible that you could have never played the game before, but you can quickly learn with Coach Reid's help," sophomore Jessica Wills said.

This year, Coach Reid and the girls hoped to come out with a winning season, make it to the playoffs, and set up a battle for the state title, which the school has never won before. "With three games remaining in the season, we've had the season we've ever had. This is the result of the hardwork and dedication of the team," Coach Reid said. Coach Reid helped out beginners and former players. The season held the ultimate challenge for the girls soccer team. The girls needed dedication and hardwork for a successful season.

COOL RUNNING

Mr. Haynes talks to the coach from Beaufort High School about their most competitive runners on the team. Mr. Haynes coached the track team for the past five years.

CARRYING THE TORCH

Aiming for State at the beginning of the season, the track team put in a lot of hard work and dedication trying to meet their state goal. The team did qualify one runner for State and coach Rickey Haynes, felt the hard work had paid off. "A lot of our athletes showed considerable improvement by the end of the season," he said.

Next year the team hoped that new talent would send even more runners to the state competitions. "I definitely plan to join the team again next year," junior Novi Umler said.

-Hope Grant

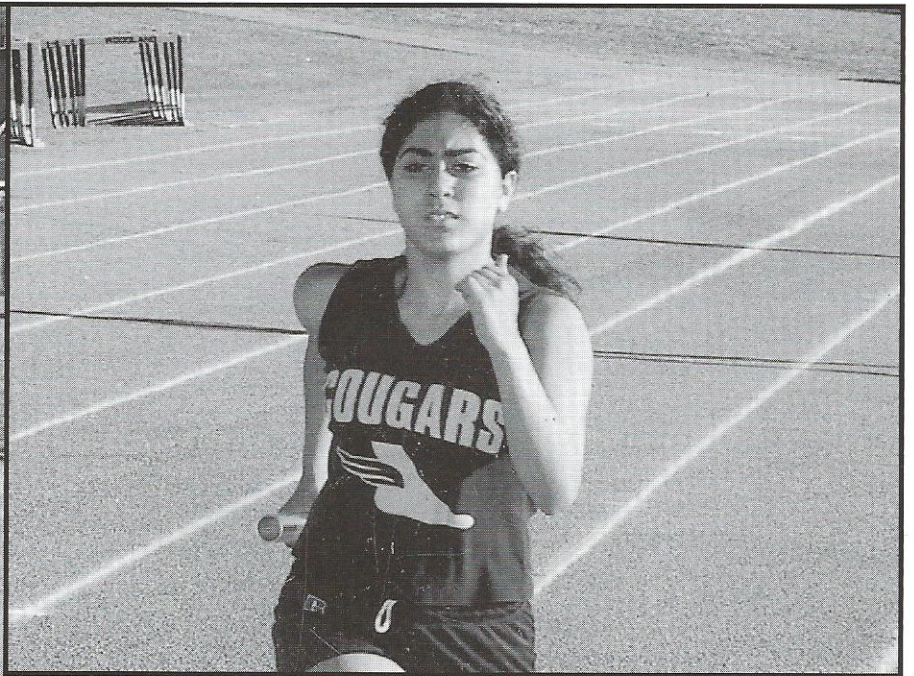

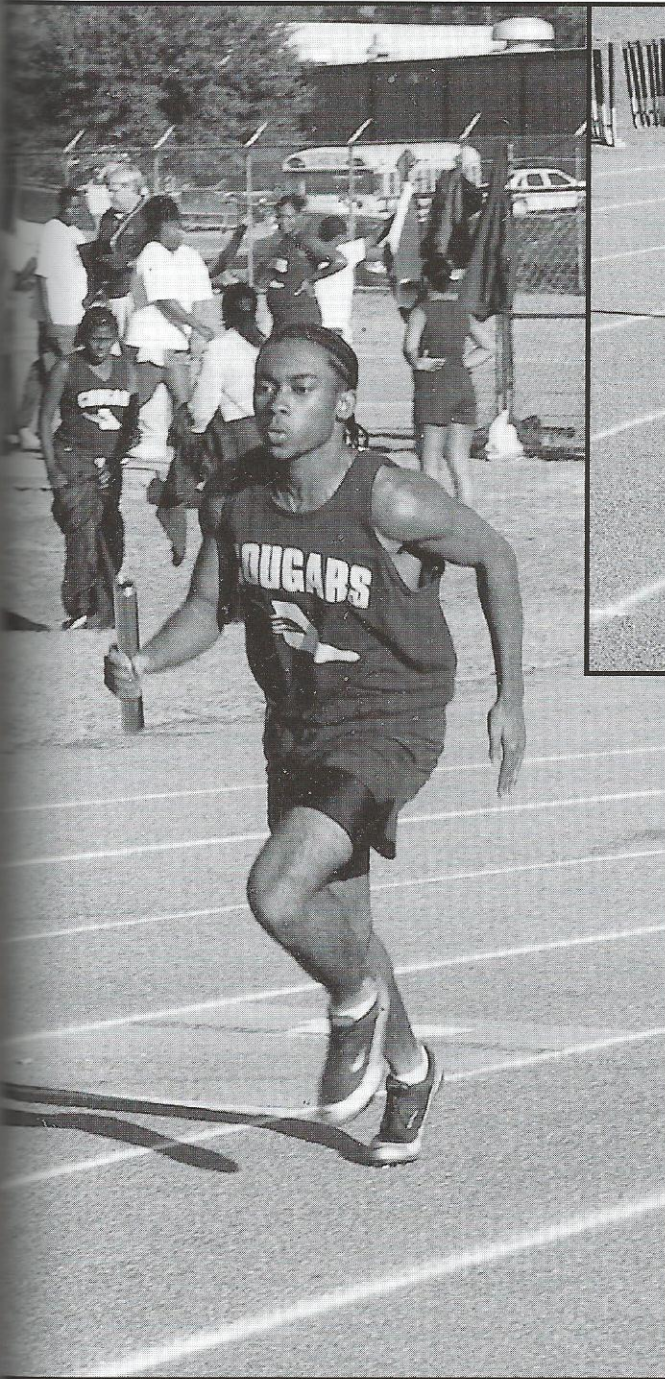

Freshman Charlie Anderson attempts to jump over the hurdle and succeeds. He ran track for the first time this year. "I enjoyed being in track, it was just something I liked to do," Charlie said.

Former Junior Nicole Cummings takes a turn at the shot-put while Mr. Haynes looks on. "As a member of the track team I really enjoyed the field events. Being number one in shotput and disc, I plan to continue this year and do my very best," she said.

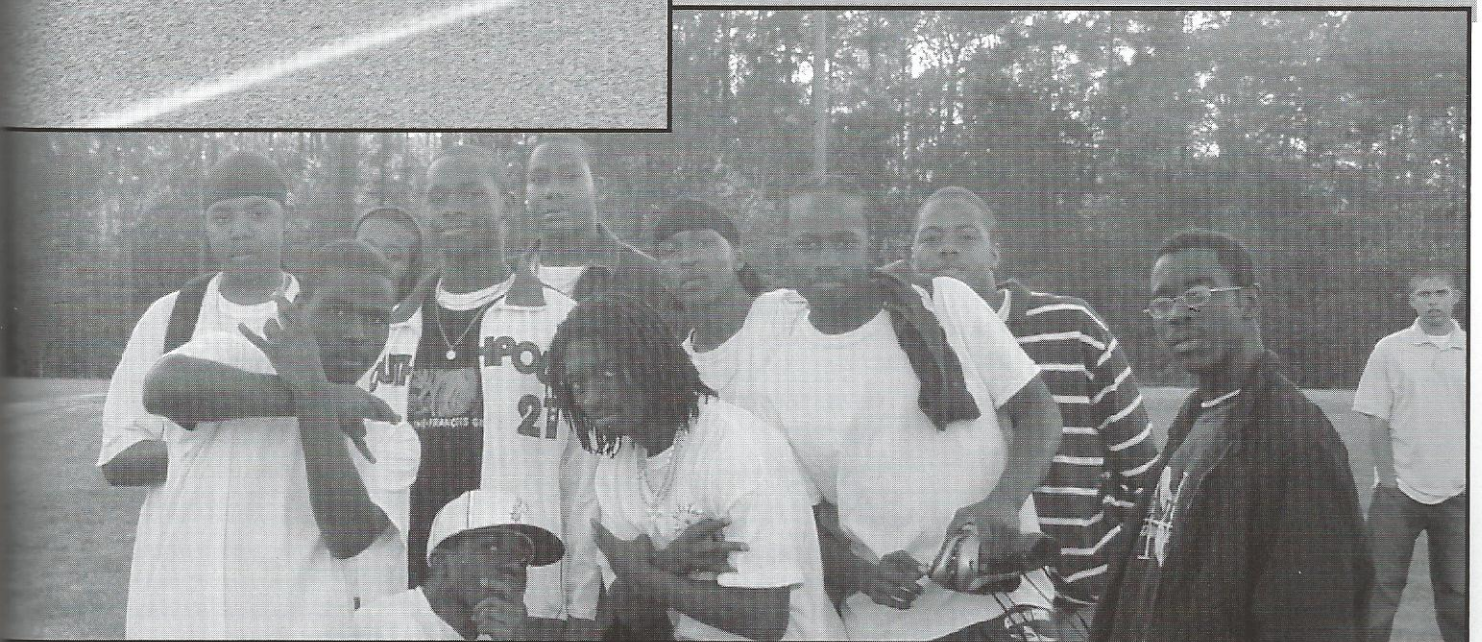

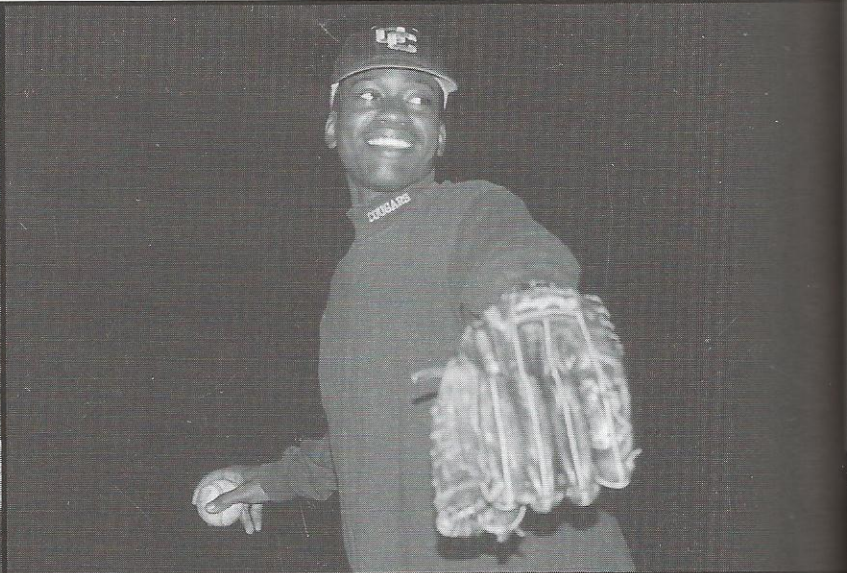

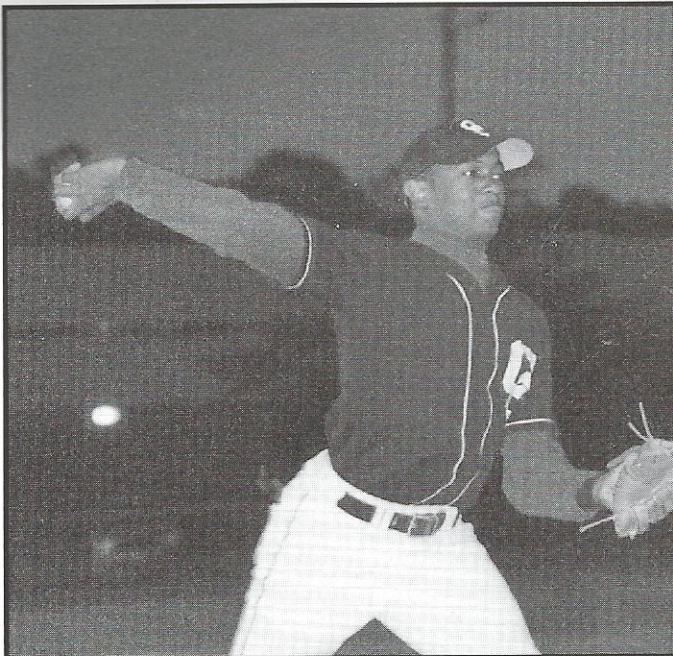

Former senior Cindy Cortes runs to the finish line. Cortes ran in track for all four years of High School. "Track can get crazy at times but the challenge makes it worth while," Cindy said.

Former junior Antonio Davis strives to make it to the finish line. "I enjoy running track because it relieves a lot of stress," Antonio said.

Posing after a big win over Woodland and Beaufort, the boys huddle to celebrate. The team competed with all of their strength and agility. "Track was an individual sport; what you put in to it was what you got out," former senior Antoine Francis said.

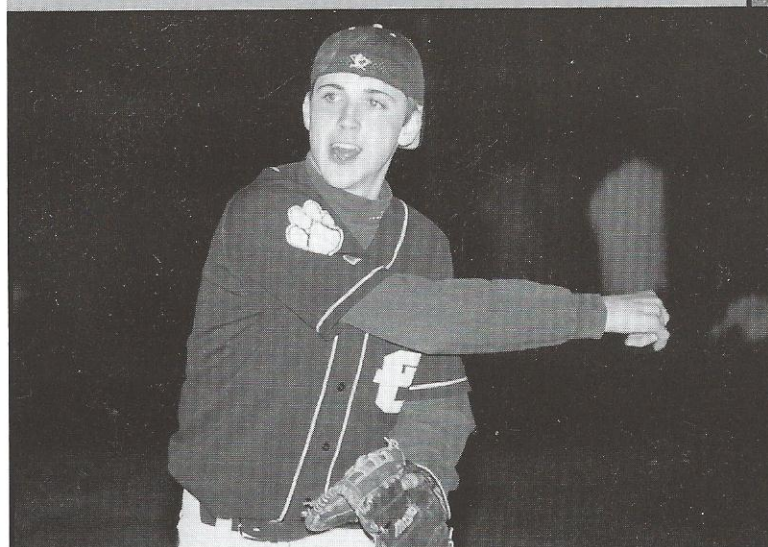

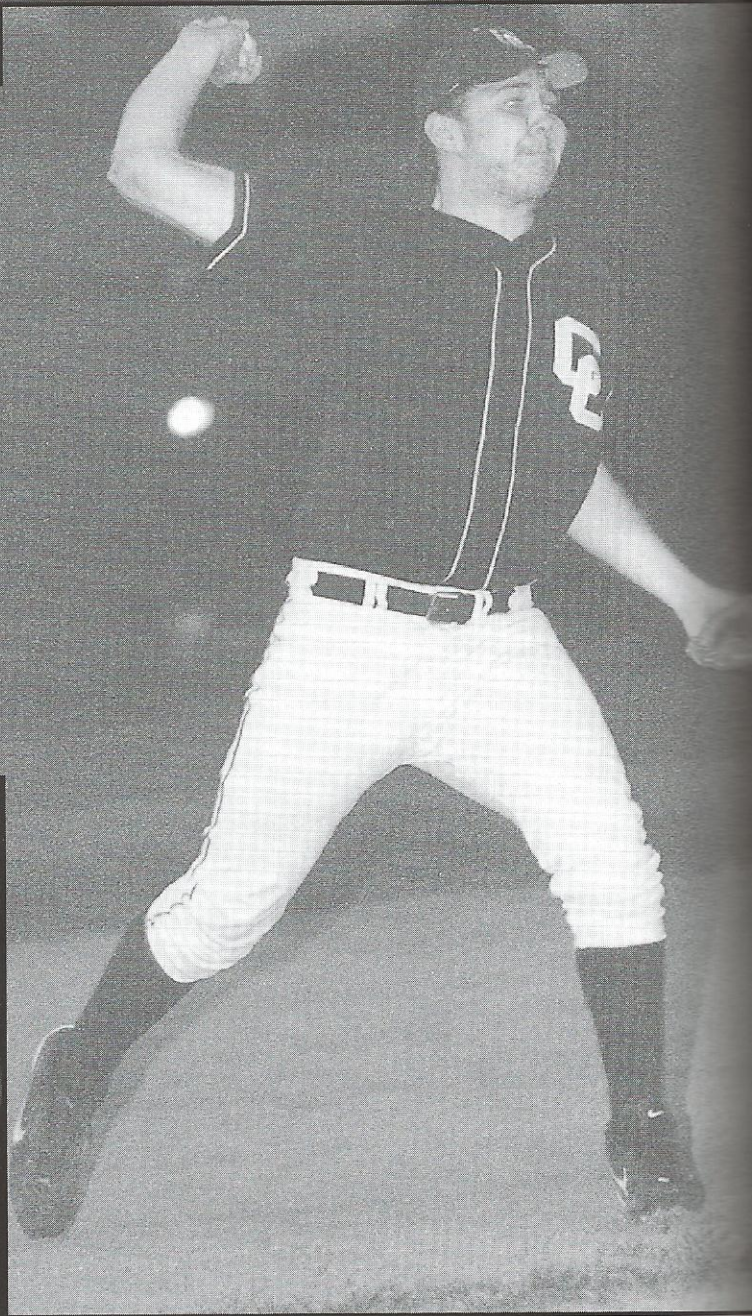

Former senior Travis Adams hurls the ball to third base in hopes of getting the runner out. "This was my senior season on the baseball team and my fourth year. It was fun while it lasted," Travis said.

Former senior Joel Brown expresses his love of the game by the big smile on his face during the evening practice. "I do it all for the love of the game," Joel said.

Former junior Lee Stroud pitches the ball to home plate. "I had a great time getting to know everyone and playing the sport I love. I look forward to my final year of varsity baseball," Lee said.

Former sophomore Justin Reeves throws the ball to second base. Knowing he threw with just enough strength, a smile appeared. "Not too many underclassmen were given the chance to make an impact on the varsity team," Justin said.

THE GRAND SLAM

Former junior Drue Davis rears back to pitch the ball back to his teammate. "I enjoyed playing baseball for the Cougars. All the players worked hard and so did the coaches," Drue said.

THREE STRIKES, YOU'RE OUT

Varsity baseball proved to be important to the players as well as the coaches. The demanding nature of the sport required constant dedication to play successfully. "Each player put a lot of effort into the game, and without all of us, winning would have been harder," former senior Larry Richerson said.

Some students hoped to go pro, a popular dream among high school athletes. "I'm hoping to be seen by a scout and maybe do something with my life," sophomore Justin Reeves said. This year the team tried their hardest to be successful.

"Baseball was a difficult sport because I had to be watching ten different things at the same time," former senior Travis Adams said.

-Hope Grant

The baseball team gather before their game for a quick prayer to help boost their spirits. Some of the players thought that praying helped to relieve some of their nervousness.

Before the season began, the softball team prepared for victory. Practice lasted two hours a day. "Coach was hard on us about practice," former freshman Brittney Padgett said.

Both teams had players who knew what to expect. Many of the girls have played for years. "I've been playing since I was really young," former senior Kathy Doyle said. Softball provided an opportunity to play a fun sport. The girls had confidence and determination.

"Motivation brought success," former freshman Selita Hills said.

TEE FOR TWO

Birds chirped as the smell of the freshly cut, sweet grass filled the air. A warm breeze blew out of the south. Morning dew glistened on the grass unfettered by previous golfers in the early morning sun. Looking down the fairway, a flag stirred with the gentle breeze.

Coach Wheeler held try-outs in the middle of February. He had played golf leisurely for nineteen years when he decided to coach it as well. "I started being around golf courses as a teenager with my dad. I carried bags and tried to play some times," Coach Scott Wheeler said.

Coach Wheeler knew that being a coach for the golf team was his cup of tea. However, only four high school students decided to join the team. Former senior David Anderson made the team for the second year in a row. "The life of a golf player in one word was strenuous. At the high school level most of all, a golf player had to handle school work on top of hours upon hours of practice," David said.

Without practice the team would have never gotten better. By the end of the season, both Coach Wheeler and the team were satisfied with the knowledge that all of their hard work had paid off.

-Julia Travis

Former sophomore Charles Maness tees the ball up during practice at Dogwood Hills golfing range.

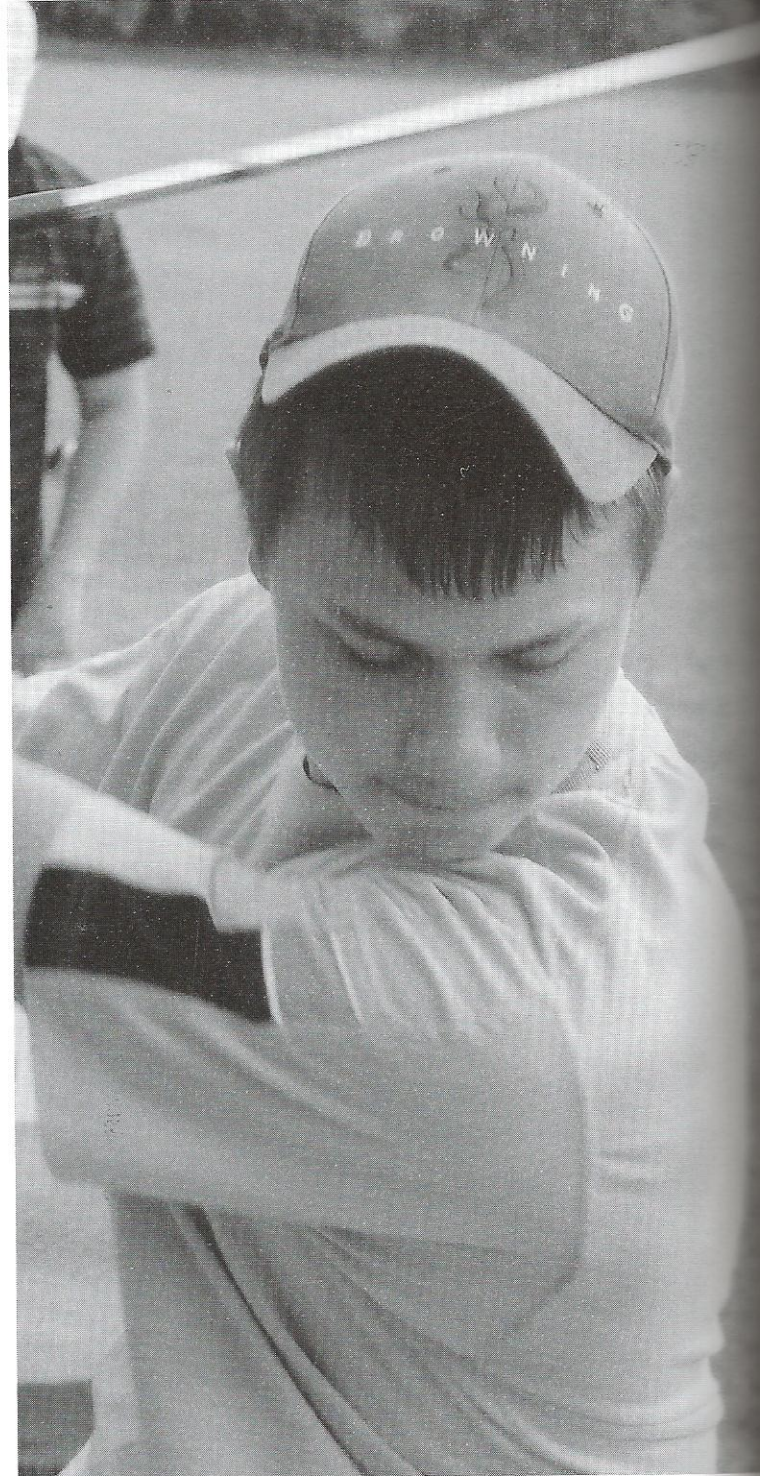

Charles has golfed for two years. "The life of a golfer is easy, it is the sport that is difficult," he said.

Charles Maness, David Anderson, Coach Wheeler, Dustin Hardy, Michael Avent and Kyle Albright prepare for practice at Dogwood Hills. The team, though relatively new, looked forward to a good season.

Former freshman Dustin Hardy lines up his shot. "My brother Robbie and I have been playing golf for about three years. Coach Wheeler has been taking time to help me learn the skills it takes to be a good golfer," Dustin Hardy said.

Patently waiting to get in the game, the seniors watch the game from the sideline. "It was funny because one of the juniors slipped and fell," former senior Margaret Smith said.

WOMEN IN ACTION!

The crowd went wild as the Powder Puff game began. "I think the seniors are going to win, because we practiced more, have more players, and we have better skills," former senior Tommie Chisolm said. Well the game ended up as Tommie had predicted, the seniors won and deserved it. Between turnovers the students sang and danced to the latest music. The half time entertainment gave everyone a good show. Four male cheerleaders came out onto the field wearing their most elegant attire. The one with the most applause, Lee Stroud, won Homecoming Queen for the Powder Puff game.

-Faith Crosby

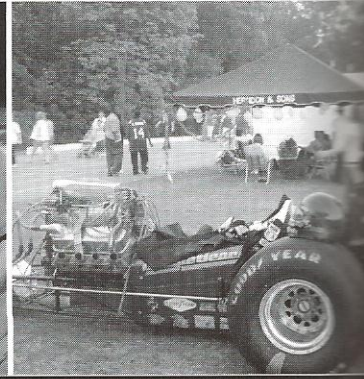

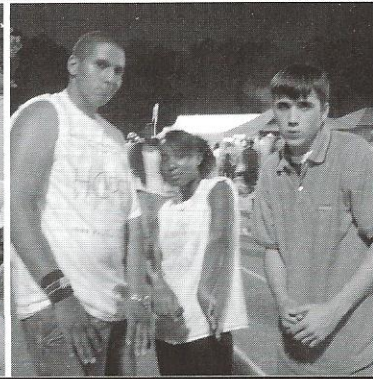

Making fun of the other team, former junior Leah Ellison laughs after she makes the one and only touchdown for the juniors. "It was funny because at first we thought we were going to win but instead we lost," Leah said.

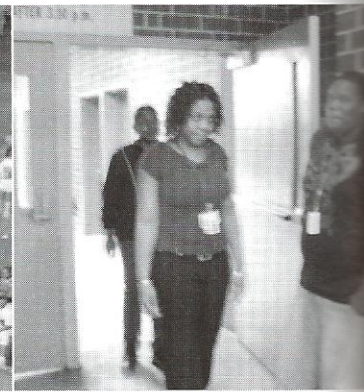

Former junior Josh Lyons touches up his make-up before halftime. "It was embarrassing in the uniform, but it turned out to be lots of fun," Josh said.

SUPPORT

Relay4Life - Valentines Day - Superlatives - Volunteers - Across Festival

-Rice Festival-Spring Musical-Advertisements-Index-Closing-

The National Honor Society arranged the candles to say "Hope 4 a cure", which expresses a majority of the peoples' feelings towards cancer. Some people who have had a friend or family member who suffered from cancer bought a bag in honor of that person.

Mr. Runyon takes a bite out of cancer by buying a hotdog to help raise money to find a cure for this deadly disease. Mr. Runyon also showed his support by walking a few laps. "It was important to me to help," Mr. Runyon said.

Helping Hands

Relay for Life helped bring people together for a common good. This event became nothing short of amazing. "I am going to Relay for Life to show support for my friends," former senior Joshua Farman said.

All the money raised for Relay For Life went to the American Cancer Society. "I am going to donate money, because I know it's for a worthy cause," former senior James Owens said.

At the Relay, lots of activities for every age could be found. Music, food, and lots of contests outlined the track. "I am going to participate in everything I can, because my attendance will help someone in the long run," former senior Jasmine Fair said.

The Relay ended with people staying over night and having hearty breakfast.

- Faith Crosby

Relaying To Save Lives

Mrs. Nettles and Mrs. Zeilke take a quick break from their busy day. They donated their time by walking and helping out around the field.

BE MINE

As Mrs. Bamhill sits at her desk, she patiently waits to be presented with a gift from her admirer. "I was surprised by the love of my life with a dozen of lovely yellow roses," Mrs. Bamhill said.

Valentine's day was a busy day, because gifts flowed in constantly. "Valentine's day meant spending a lot of time with the one I love. When I first saw my big balloon I was overjoyed," former junior Chiffon McNeil said.

The American Way

Students celebrated Valentine's Day from year to year without the knowledge of its true meaning. Some believed that Valentine's Day was celebrated in the middle of February to honor the anniversary of St. Valentine's feast day. Others believed its celebration meant to Christianize celebrations of the Pagan Lupercalia Festival. "I love Valentine's Day because it's a time that my boyfriend and I share our true love for each other," former senior Chevon Risher said. The day was filled with hundreds of balloons, thousands of flowers and some delicious chocolate truffles. Students who received packages from loved ones had to wait until the end of the day to go pick them up. Whatever the reason may be, celebrating Valentine's Day represented a day to reflect on friendship, love, and romance.

-Faith Crosby

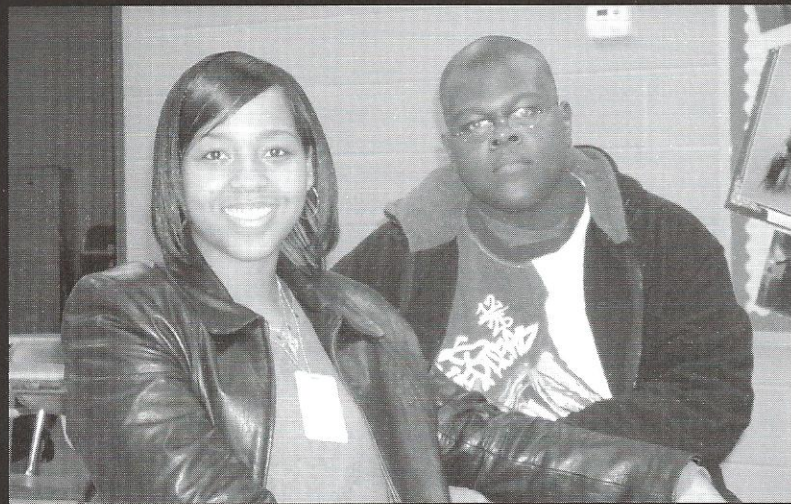

Many guys gave gifts to girls that they just had friendships with. "I feel that Valentine's Day is a day for all the men in the world to show respect to the women they claim to love," former senior Sarah Rivers said.

These girls stand, proudly displaying the fruits of another fun Valentine's day. "I was very excited about my dozen balloons given to me by my father, but I couldn't fit them in my car," former senior Holly Hughes said.

Senior Superlatives

Most Likely To Succeed

Deshawn Mitchell & Ashley Singleton
"Being successful in life wasn't about being the smartest or richest person. It's about leaving a lasting impression."

Deshawn said.

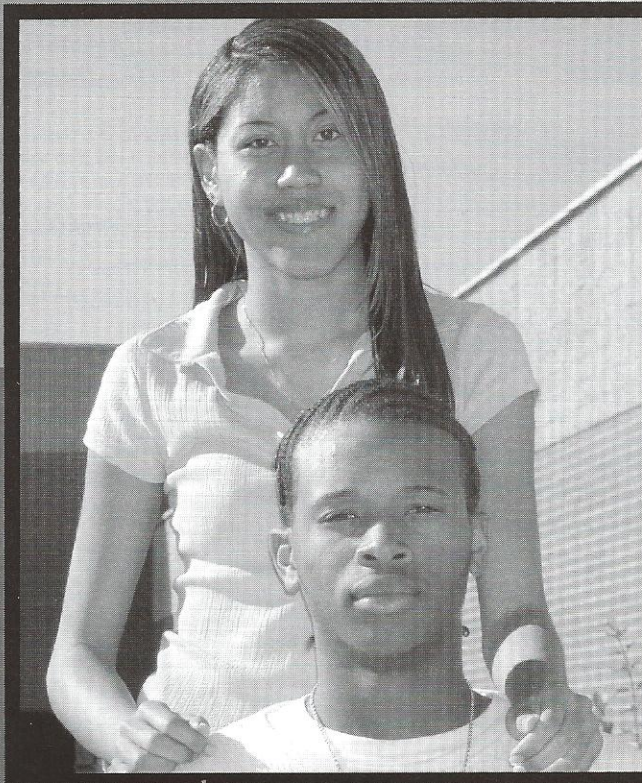

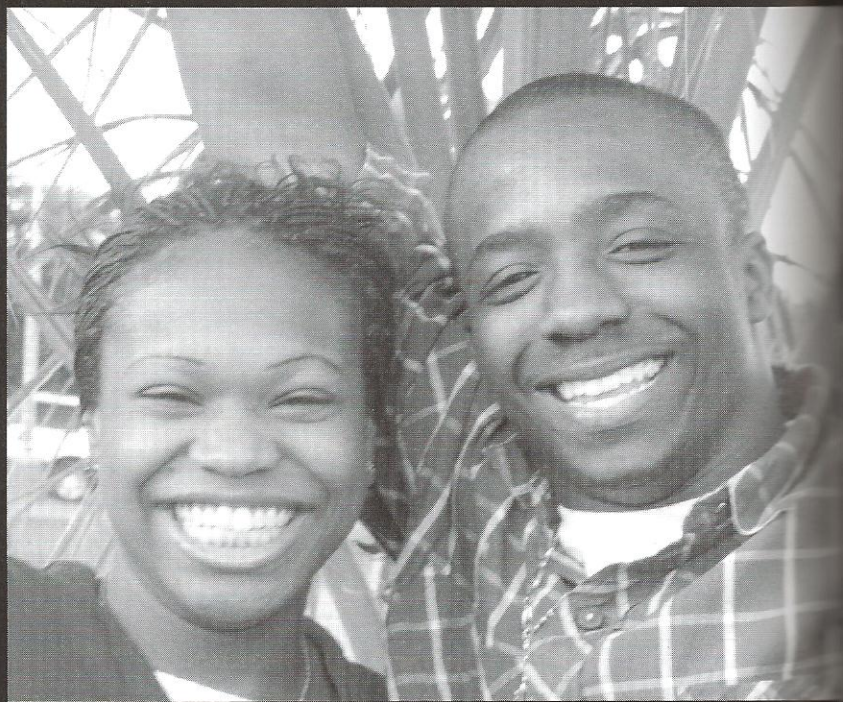

"I was glad I was chosen and I hope to continue succeeding in all aspects of my life." Ashley said.

Biggest Smile

Jackie Bowman & Crystal Goodwin

"I was happy to find out that I had won because you will never find anyone happier." Jackie said.

"It felt good to know that others think I have a beautiful smile." Crystal said.

Best Hair

Chris Brown & Quintella Bigham

"I was happy I won, but I don't even do my hair."

Chris said.

"I was worried I wasn't going to win, because there are a lot of girls with pretty hair." Quintella said.

Most Dependable

Deshawn Mitchella & Kenyatta Green

"I felt happy about winning and I'm thankful people voted for me," Deshawn said.

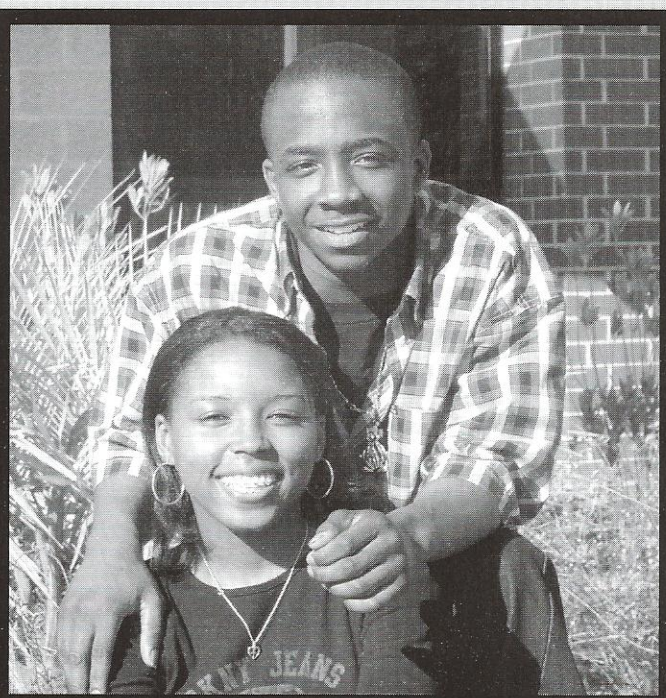

"I felt honored to know that my classmates feel they can depend on me," Kenyatta said.

Most Athletic

Rasheen Pinckney & Brittany Grant

"It was cool to win because I've always been very competitive," Rasheen said.

"It was a real honor to be chosen for this because I always work hard in what I do," Brittany said.

Best Personality

Jackie Bowman & Melody Sampson

"I was glad that I won because I always try to stay true to myself," Jackie said.

"I'm suprised that I won becuase I'm all about just being myself and treating everyone with respect," Melody said.

Best Fashion Sense

Kevin Blakeney & Whitney Anderson

"I had a lot of athletic wear, so I knew I was gonna win," Kevin said.

"I think it was a big advantage to win and set trends with the GGC."

Whitney said.

Best Sense Of Humor

Quentin Jenkins & La'Quanda Murray

"All I could say was be yourself and it would just happen," Quentin said.

"I was shocked because I never knew I made so many people laugh,"

La'Quanda said.

Worst Driver

Josh Lyons & Chantel Washington

"I don't know why I won, because all I've ever did was almost hit the traffic cop."

Josh said.

"I think it was great that I won and I hope my career involves driving, lol."

Chantel said.

Senior Superlatives

Most School Spirited
Lee Stroud & Lastanza Rivers
"I guess all those years of dressing like a girl paid off, but I was an ugly girl," Lee said.
"I was very happy that I won and suprised people voted for me."
Lastanza said.

Best Eyes

Keith Maloney & Yasmine Hamilton

"I was glad I won, so people would remember me for something," Keith said.
"I was appreciative that people considered me for this category," Yasmine said.

Most Outgoing

Steven Varnado & Quanesha Lane

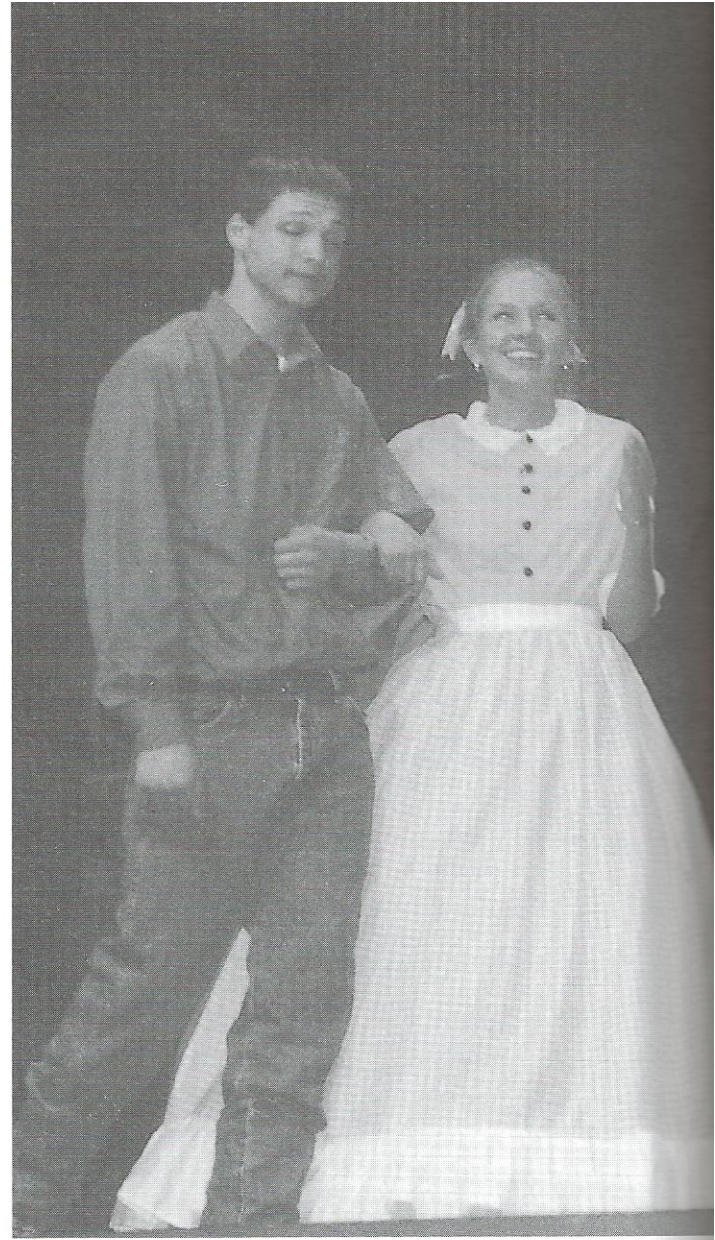

"I was very excited when I found out I won with Quanesha," Steven said.
"I was happy I won and I was glad my classmates thought I was the most outgoing," Quanesha said.

Former seniors Toni Bloodworth and Kaylan Salisbury work on costumes as former freshman Victoria Barnes looks on. Toni and Kaylan worked very hard on the costumes everyday.

Acting at their best, Former sophomore Allan Varnodoe and former senior Toni Bloodworth bring the stage to life. Allan and Toni helped make the play one of the best productions presented.

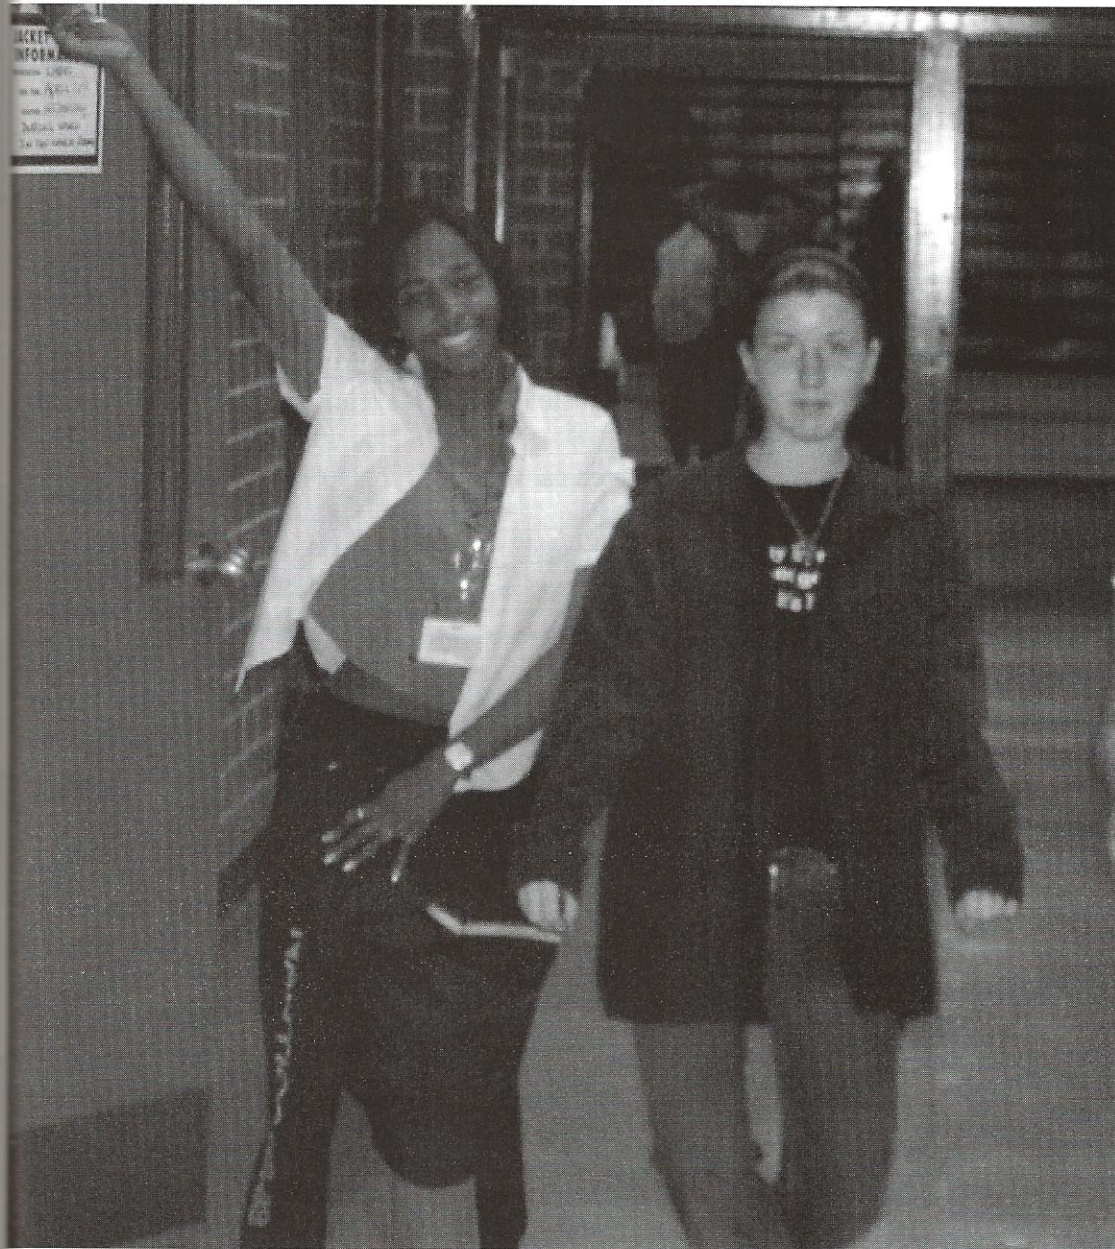

Former junior Andrew Bishop and former senior Kaylan Salisbury steal the crowd with their performance. One of the funniest parts in the play was when Andrew lifted Kaylan over his shoulder and carried her off the stage.

Gathering to act out the wedding scene, the cast members come to center stage for the ceremony. The wedding scene, one of best performed scenes in the musical, included the majority of the characters.

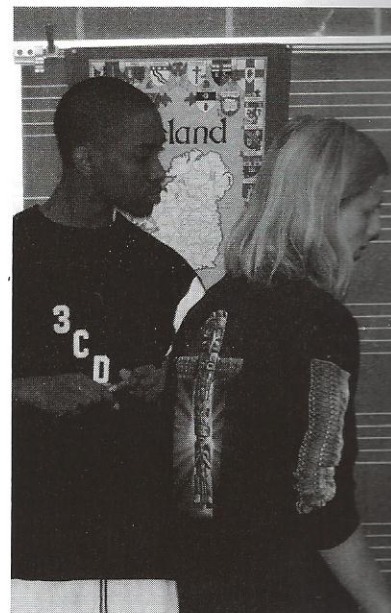

Former senior Yvonne Gant and former junior Kari Mollwain practice their dance moves for the musical. The dance moves took time and dedication to learn them exactly the way they needed to be.

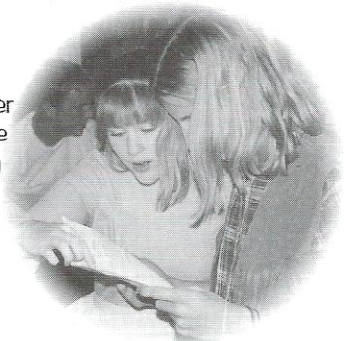

Former juniors Marcus Johnson and Andrew Seigler talk with Mrs. Drawdy about the musical. Students took the musical very seriously and things had to be organized. "Mrs. Drawdy was a wonderful person. She was one of the best teachers that I have ever had," Marcus said.

Break a Leg!

Taking Music to the Next Level

Former junior Andrew Siegler and former senior Amye Stivender take time before the musical to practice their lines. They both took the play very seriously and dedicated a lot of their free time to making the musical a great success.

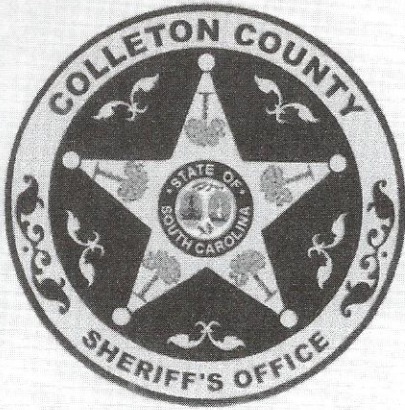

Mrs. Drawdy's chorus classes spent a lot of time on the making of the musical, 'Seven Brides for Seven Brothers'. The students used their class time to make props, study their lines, practice singing their songs and perfecting the musical. "I hope the musical turns out well. We have spent a lot of time practicing this musical, and with the talent and experience we have, it should be great," former sophomore Andrea Cook said.

The costumes also had to be ready for the musical. "Along with learning my lines and songs, props and costumes have to be done. It is a lot more work than most people think," former senior Kaylan Salisbury said.

The spring musical definitely had a lot of devoted cast members who brought the stage to life.

-Faith Crosby

Congatulations to the seniors on the team. It's time to take your talents else where.

Dearest Channing,

We don't know how to begin to tell you how proud we are of you and how blessed we are to be your parents. You have grown into a beautiful, unique, young woman, and very much an individual. We've tried to guide you and prepare you the best that we could for the journey ahead of you. You are a very strong and determined person, and the goals you have set for yourself will no doubt be in your hand. We hope that you will look around every corner with enthusiasm and anticipation. Life is what you make of it; love every moment as if it were your last. Congratulations, Channing! This chapter is finished, pick up your pen and write the rest of your book! We love you with all that we are. You are the sunshine of our lives, and we believe in you.

Love Mom and Dad

PISCES
(Feb. 19 - Mar. 20):

LOVE: If the one you love gripes about your pals, listen up because they're trying to steer you away from trouble. Best Love Day: Jan. 17.

HEALTH: If you get leg cramps, it could mean sluggish circulation. Getting more exercise could help. Stay in Bed: Jan. 29.

MONEY: You've got such a nice way about you at work that you might be able to talk 'em in to giving you a raise. Lucky Money Day: Jan. 18.

you do.*

Love, Momma

Congratulations
Lee Stroud

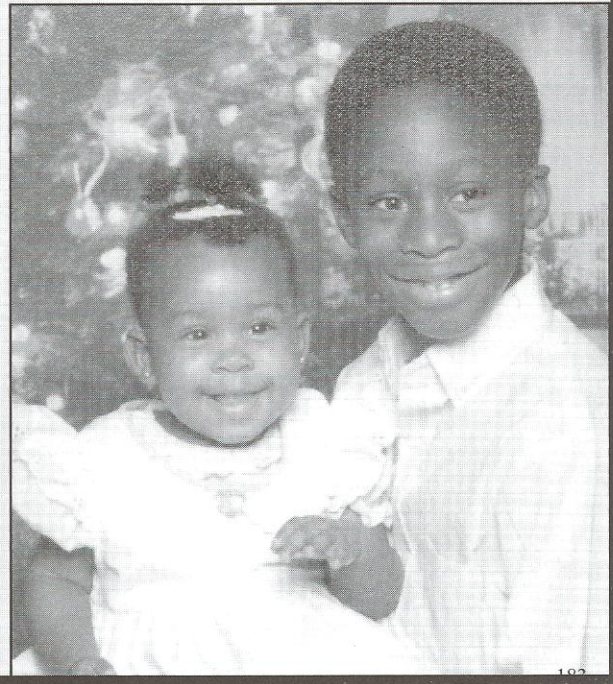

First of all, I would like to thank my savior Jesus Christ for letting me this far in life. Also, I would like to thank my mother, Gail, father Robert, and brother Bobby, for pushing me to make me do better. Then there's Ms. Young, Mr. Stephens, Mr. Hanyes, and Mrs. Mitchell for always giving me a hard time. I can finally say all of your yelling and speeches worked! A speacil thanks to all my friens: Cortney McMillian, Rodney Brown, Deidra Jenkins, Derrick Fields, Lastanza Rivers, LaQuannah Murry, and Lakenya Yates.

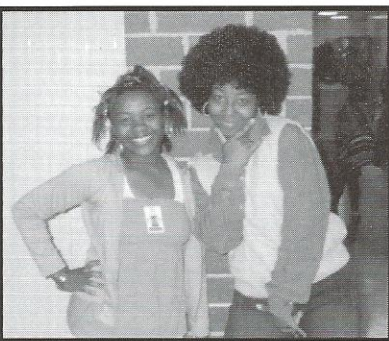

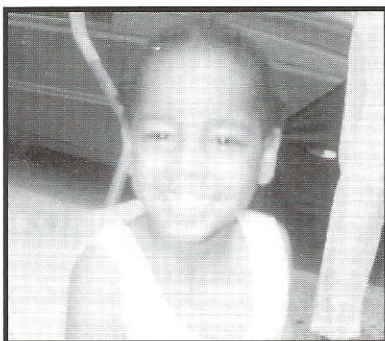

I love you all.
Sincerely,
Keeshan Brown c/o 2005

"To Keeshan"

*To a very speacil young lady, that is a joy to be with. May our lord
Jesus Christ be with you as you move on in your life and keep him
where ever you go.
We will always love
you!*

*Love you later
Mom and Dad*

*Ashley,
 You've proven you have everything that you need the power the courage the will to succeed. And all through whatever life sends day by day. We're cheering you on every step of the way (Emily
