

Hard work, Practice, Showtime

Long practice pays off when the time came to bring the game.

Junior Candace Bussell works the court, doing everything she can to keep the ball. "When we get into a tough situation we just play harder, and hustle to do what we can to come out on top" Junior Candace Bussell said.

Who said girls can't bring the game? If it's you, be ready to take the heat. These young athletes take every afternoon after school trying to fulfill their dreams of accomplishing what they've wanted since they were little girls. Being on the junior varsity team, is taking that huge leap off the black top onto something that can lead you into your future. If it's a professional baller you're looking to be, this is where it starts. Even if you're wanting to be a doctor, you learn things in this game you rarely find on the streets. While spending hours of work to play a simple game, you gain respect for those on your team and the ones on the opposite side. "The best thing about our team is the fact that we're all friends and have respect for each other, so we play as a team, win or lose", sophomore Christian Williams said. Lessons learned, games won, and games lost. The young ladies allowed what they knew to carry them through another wonderful season.

-Mehgan Carter

Sophomore Christian Williams hustles to get her team ahead. "It's important to always be ahead, and do your best," Christian said.

Freshman Jocelyn Washington gives everything she has to keep the momentum going for her team. "It's always important to practice hard, play hard, and do your best," Jocelyn said.

(Top left to right) Aviance Welch, Porscha Jones, Candace Edwards, Coach Browning, Shyda Council, Courtney Edwards, Tykemia Stephens (Bottom) Phydercia Brown, Christian Williams, Lamesha McWilliams, Siera Jenkins, Jocelyn Washington, Shaterra Evans, Candice Bussell