

Future Leaders

N.J.R.O.T.C.

What's a leader? The N.J.R.O.T.C. (Naval Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps) program was started in 1993 by Lieutenant Commander Charles Amentrout (U.S. Navy Retired). This program proved that high school students could be put into leadership roles and be responsible. The R.O.T.C. program has been very influential to the high school. Without this program students would not be able to show as much leadership, responsibility, and integrity. Students involved in N.J.R.O.T.C. were pushed everyday to do their best and strive for success.

"The most important thing that I have learned from the instructors is discipline," freshman Daniel Rivers said.

"I joined R.O.T.C. because I'm thinking about going into the military after college," sophomore Latesha Taylor said.

"I stayed in R.O.T.C. for all four years because I like the discipline and the structure. I also wanted to prepare for a future in the military," senior Robert Donally said.

"It's a good program and helps motivate me with my grades and also my attitude," freshman Shawndrica Fields said.
