Go, guys! Your locker says that you're an amazing action figure who's filled with school spirit. You're the faithful fan who stays or plays at all the games, buys raffle tickets, and stays up late making banners to hang over the bleachers. You excel at sports and just about anything that requires tapping into tons of energy. Focus some of that endurance toward studying and you'll ace your classes too.

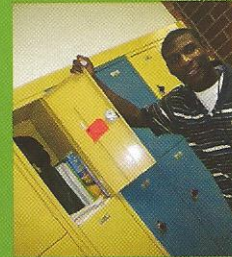

Jamore Moultrie was thinking his locker would pass as sporty one day after school. "I keep all my books inside of my locker," junior Jamore said.

Senior Devon Singleton was caught off guard while taking his work shoes out of his locker one afternoon. "I got the best locker!" Devon said.

Aaron was thinking about what he kept in his locker mostly one morning before school. "I keep mainly books, and stuff for sports in my locker," junior Aaron Brown said.

What locker are you?

"Brainy"

You've got the school gig under control-and your wellstocked locker proves it. Friends can always count on you if they need to borrow a dictionary, a calculator, or last week's notes. For you, learning doesn't end when you close a textbook. Your French pen pal keeps your past and present tenses from being imperfect and you've mastered your afterschool art class. Make a point of complimenting your friends about what they do best too-they'll love you for it.

Sophomore Cameron Butler stood by his locker showing off his favorite team's jacket. "My locker is pretty much empty except for my science book, binder, and my Carolina jacket," Cameron said.
