Being a Job For America's Graduates member takes a lot of work. These members are doing their best, and have a fun time celebrating their successes.

The 30 year old program, JAG, which stands for Jobs For America's Graduates, is an organization which identifies students who need guidance and help in receiving their high school diploma. The mentors in this program teach their students to better themselves both in their schools and in their communities. Students who participate in the program receive professional guidance in work-based learning to help then succeed both in and out of the classroom.

"On fire with enthusiasm!" The painted mural in the JAG classroom signifies the initiative that the members have and represents the successful people that they strive to be.
