Both NHS and Student Council went into the first student vs. faculty volleyball game with laser focus, sure that they would beat the faculty. Much to their surprise, the CCHS faculty came out on top. The faculty had a huge fan base and really got the energy flowing. This volleyball tournament was not going to the students, not this time. All and all, both of the teams high-fived and showed good sportsmanship after the faculty's victorious win. The volleyball games were a success!

Emily West and Coach Tew high-five after the game. None of the teams showed any anger at the other for the outcome of the matches. It was all just fun and games.

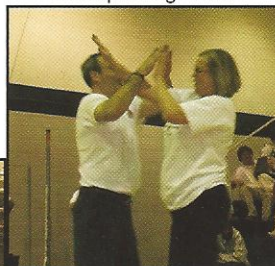

NHS takes a time-out to contemplate their game plan for taking on Student Council in the first round of volleyball. Fortunately, their hard work and determination paid off until they faced the undefeated faculty.

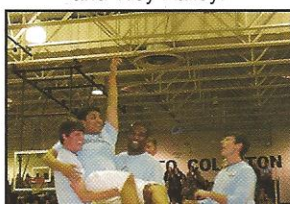

Terrell McCutcheon & Zachary Clegg

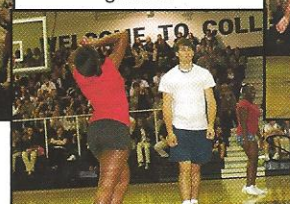

Teacher teammates Mrs. Goodwin and Mr. Litzinger attempt a high five.

Karan Patel celebrates victory with his teammates Spencer Floyd, Trey Black, and Trey Bailey.

Jakan Richardson & Zachary Clegg realize that their team might not be dominating the games.

The Student Council team takes a breather.
