

dexterous [dek-struhs]

- done with skill or adroitness.

CENTER Sophomore Alexis Thames sings and plays guitar everyday because it comes naturally to her. "I was nervous beyond words the first time I played in front of an audience but afterward it felt normal and I loved it." Afterward she explained that more practice helps her to be better.

Talent

Everyone likes to show off talent sometimes, and everyone is talented in some way, shape, or form. School is full of talents, you just need to know where to look. Granted not every talent is as noticeable at first, everyone of them is just as special as the rest, and everyone deserves to show off their talent at some point. Talent is sometimes thought to be only given at birth, but that's not so. It can be something you've been able to do since you were born or talent can be something taught. Some examples of talent are playing an instrument, dancing, singing, drawing, and much more. Talent is one thing that can make you different from everyone else, even if someone has the same talent as you. They could do the talent in a different way than you. Talent is a very special thing that should never be wasted by being unused and no one should ever be picked on because of their talent. So do not ever let your talent go to waste.
