TOP During Mrs. Eades' Computer Application class, students effectively learned how to use the Office 2010 programs. This knowledge comes in handy when applying for jobs in an online workshop

BOTTOM Junior Rhonyai Brown is diligently researching information for her online classes. "I enjoy online classes because you can learn at your own pace and concentrate more thoroughly without all the classroom disruptions," exclaims Rhonyai.

Tech/Online Classes

Colleton County High School offers many educational courses and of these courses you could take a variety of computer affiliated classes. Many students, particularly juniors and seniors also took online classes to further benefit themselves and get ahead of the game to graduate early. Furthermore, many of these computer affiliated classes are for the most part optional, however you do at least have to take two to obtain a keyboarding and computer credit. Many of the computer classes that are offered are geared to help the student later in life in a particular area that they might choose to work in such as webpage design, desktop publishing and Oracle. Computer Application is just one of the numerous classes that gear you for a career later in life. Freshman Chris Ortiz said "In Computer Application we work on our computer skills and this helps get us ready for a future job." Many students did get benefits from taking both tech and online classes because it gave them an advantage later on in their career.
