

lyrical- [lyr-i-cal]

-expressing the writer's emotions in an imaginative and beautiful way

TOP Seniors Andrew Floresca, Andrew Judy and John Payne, also known as The Walter Brothers, have been friends throughout high school. The band met through school, soccer, and wrestling. The Walter Brothers did a little of everything, from covers to writing their own songs. "The joy of playing music is the reason we do it, that and the fact that we all like the same kind of music," said Andrew Floresca.

BOTTOM Sophomores Clay Robertson, Jared Hess, Ricardo Paez, and Alex Delooze jam out with freshman Anthony Berry in their band, Hypothetical Tribute. Clay said, "We were just friends, and then one summer we thought it would be fun to start a band." Their band included a lead guitarist, bass player, drummer, drop D bass player, keyboardist, and lead singer. With all these members, practice was mandatory.

Bands & Musicians

Music meant something different to everyone. Whether it's rock, pop, rap, country, or even gospel, it all had a bigger meaning to us all. No matter what age, music was a captivating pastime. Some students here at CCHS stepped out into the huge world of music by either starting a band or just flying solo. Playing music took a lot of work, from the afternoon practices to the first time you face a huge crowd. It all took time to perfect. Maybe one of our own Cougars will be acknowledged as one of the greatest musical minds of our generation.