

uniform- [yoo-nuh-fawrm]

- as from example to example

Band

Being a part of the Band of Blue required a lot of dedication and hardwork but yet the rewards out wayed the sacrifices. From practicing over the summer and everyday after school, multiple fundraisers, performing at football games, and finally to competitions every saturday during marching season. Being in band allowed the members to meet many new people. They were all willing to work together as a group to have a successful season. Another benefit of being a member of band was all the trips you were able to go on when you compete. The band has been a county favorite for many years. Every year the band was consistantly competitive, winning many competitions and always placing well in state. Students that are apart of the Band of Blue were always able to join together as a group when it actually counts.

TOP The members of the band brought out the props for their half time performance. It's a team effort to prepare and have a successful show.

BOTTOM LEFT Junior Victoria Grimsley played her trumpet during a half time show. She stated, "Band has made me a better leader." She has been in band for "four years" and chooses to stay in band because "it's something she loved to do."

BOTTOM RIGHT Freshmam Jalia Thomas and eighth grade Deonna Frasier stood at attention waiting for the beat to began the performance.