

fierce- [feers]
-furiously eager or intense

Varsity Volleyball

Ace, ace, in your face! The varsity girls' volleyball team served it up this past season. With ribbons in their hair and smiles on their faces, the team really put up some competition. Co-captain Amber Reeves said, "After playing several years and being around the girls, I've enjoyed watching us grow and become a successful volleyball team." The girls loved the invigorating feeling of making an ace. Volleyball became an outlet for fitness for many of the girls. The sport got them out of their comfort zones and encouraged them to become one. Bumping, setting, spiking, and serving were all components of a good match. Traveling here, there, and everywhere, the varsity volleyball team never lost their school spirit or the will to fight for victory.

Senior Kayla Smith attacks from the outside. "Playing volleyball made me more outgoing. It makes me want to play when I'm in college." Kayla liked the competitive feel of being on the court and felt empowered when she made an ace.

Junior Lauren Long prepares to receive a dig. "If I could change any rule about volleyball, I'd change the net rule. I'm always falling in the net!" Lauren said the volleyball opened a door for her and helped her make a lot of new friends.

Above Seniors Khaliyah Yates and Ashleigh Fryar join sophomore Jordyn Litchfield, the captain, as they scope out their competition. "Volleyball has taught me to work hard as a team. I loved meeting new people," Jordyn said. She was proud of the team by the end of the season and loved the feeling of winning.