Captured!

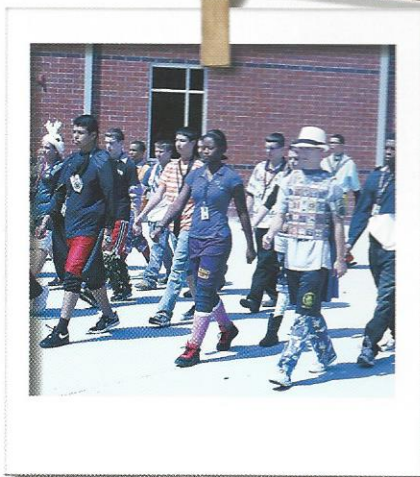

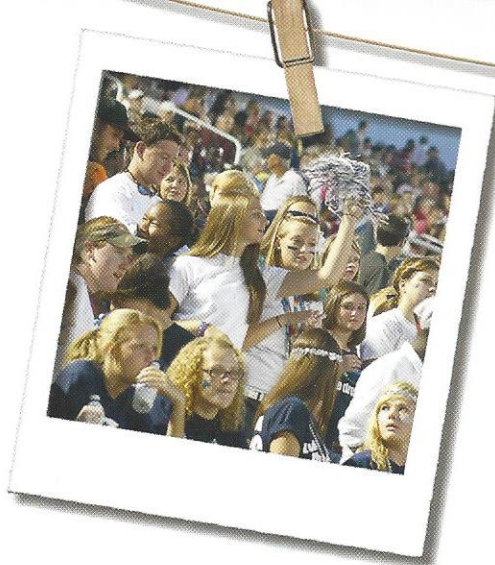

The students brushed off their sun bleached hair and the fond memories of summer as they walked into the hallways of Colleton County High School. The wide-eyed freshmen scurried through the hallways, trying to avoid confrontation. The prominent sophomores reveled in the success of knowing that each year they would become wiser. The juniors sauntered in the doors with an air of all-knowing, getting ready for their toughest year thus far. Finally, the seniors took their time making their way into the school just as the five minute bell was ringing. The seniors found comfort in the fact that this would be their last year as a high school student.

As the first day of school passed, Homecoming and Spirit Week commenced soon after. The show of school spirit for the Cougars was heightened with the addition of a new football coach. The football team fought through the game until there was just seconds on the clock. The juniors snagged the coveted Spirit Stick, and Keiosha Bingley was crowned Miss Homecoming.

Each memory was to be forever captured. The depth of the student body as it suffered and clung to each other through tragedies that defined just how short wonderful lives can be taken. With a show of how talented our student body can work to prove that we are the best. Forever the Cougars will roar, and forever they will remain captured.

Anchor the Memories

As March drew nearer and nearer, the juniors and seniors were getting ready for one of the most memorable nights of their high school years. Typical prom night involves girls getting their hair and nails done, and purchasing formal attire. The guys spend time picking out their tuxedos, shining their shoes, and buying corsages for their dates. After going out to eat and taking pictures, students and their dates make their way to prom, sometimes via limousine. Couples and friends enter the luxurious dance floor. As the DJ plays loud music and friends dance around you, you can't help but to join in and have a great time. The theme was "Rocking the Boat," so you got the feeling of partying on a cruise ship. "Prom is the one night every school year that has a big affect on the entire school. It will be remembered by everyone," expressed junior Shyann Donoho. Prom was the final shebang that seniors would be involved in before graduation, and they are sure to make it one of the best nights of their lives.

Senior La'Kia Washington stated, "my dream date for prom would be Tyrese Gibbs because he is HOT!"

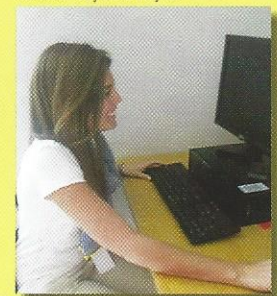

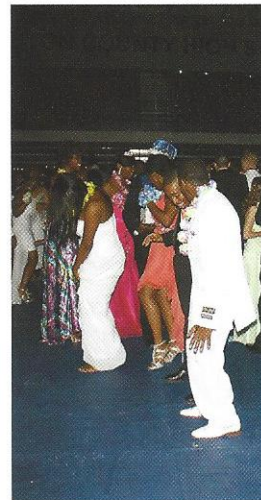

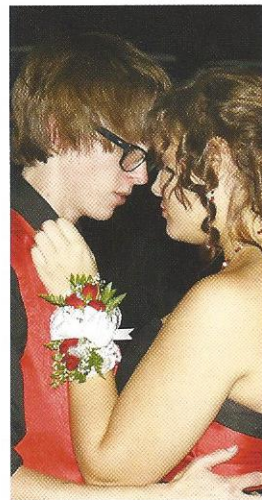

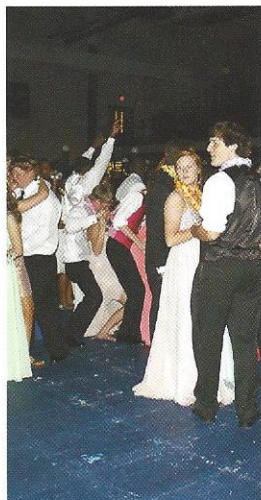

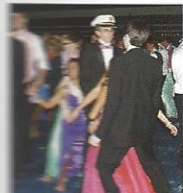

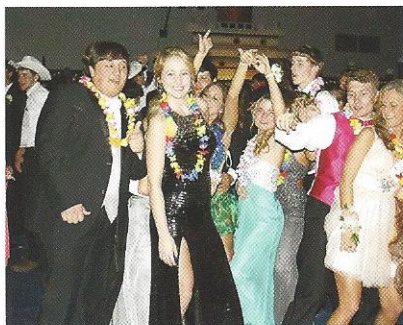

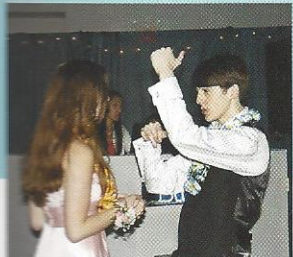

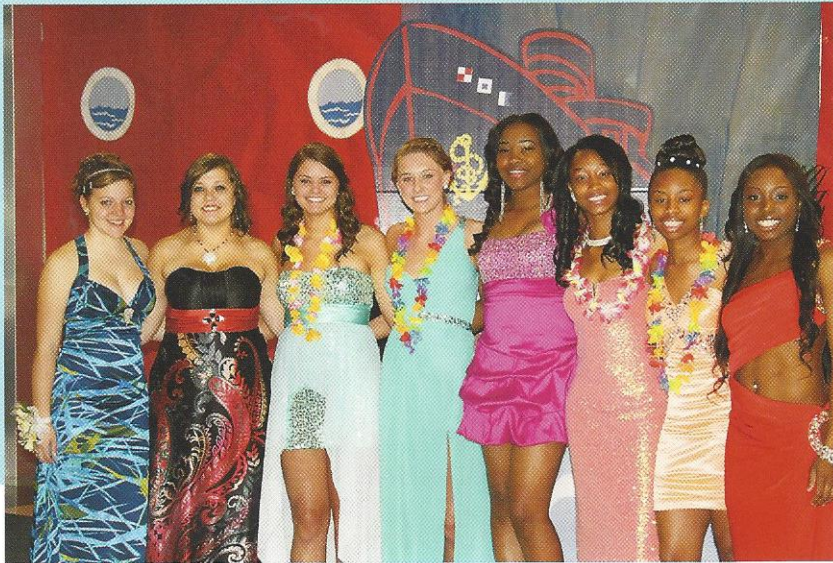

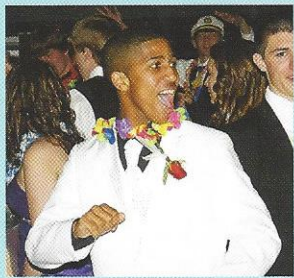

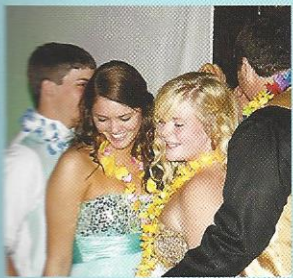

When asked what his favorite part of prom was, senior William Jakes said, "communicating with everybody. I like the whole set up and theme. It looks real nice out there."

Since it was his first year going to prom, junior Wayne Davis had high expectations, "I'm looking forward to dancing and having fun with everyone."

"I think prom is important because it is a memorable experience, especially for your senior year" expressed senior Kyla Floyd.

Junior James Connley quoted, "when a group approached the dance floor wearing fancy cowboy hats was probably my craziest memory at prom."

"My boyfriend had seen my collection of fortune cookie slips, and so he made me a homemade fortune cookie himself and the note said, "will you go to prom with me." expressed sophomore Julia Petrolawicz.

When asked what she thought would be a good prom theme and why, senior Katelyn Howe said, "Greece. I love how the big poofy dresses are on the rise back into style. Big hair is a must!"

When asked what she was looking forward to most about going to prom, sophomore Amelia White said, "getting dressed up and picking out prom dresses."

Secure the Skill

When you think of talent, what do you think about? Do you think about a singer, a rapper, or maybe even a dancer? At CCHS, we have had many students who had a talent. Senior Keiosha Bingley said, "I enjoy singing and writing. I practice every day, and I am improving." The students were able to show off their skills through talent shows, art classes, chorus, and even gym class. From a talent as miniscule as licking your elbow to one as intricate as playing an instrument, skillfulness comes in many shapes and sizes. Freshman Ciara Wallace, shared her talent of singing. Every time she has the chance to sing, she takes it. Talent is something everyone has, but some may not have found it yet. If you do not know what your talent is, keep on searching. One day you will capture your talent, and you will never want to go a day without doing what you love.

1.

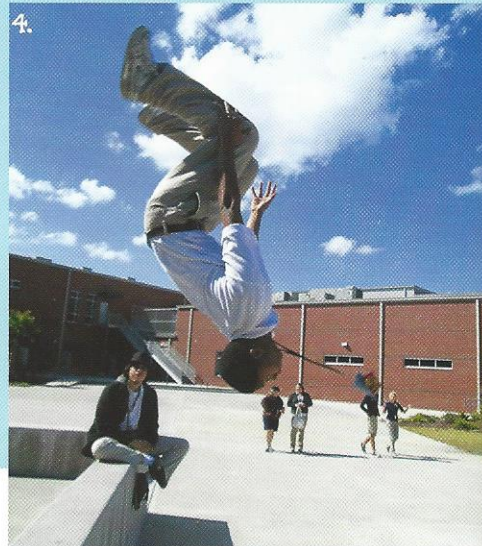

1. Senior Lorenzo Shider 'chills' outside of his classroom to show off his dance. "Dancing is a feeling not a talent," believes Lorenzo.

2.

2. Senior Patrick Salley expresses his emotions through his music. "I like making people think about what I say in my rap songs," stated Patrick. His favorite musicians are Eminem and Drake because he believes that they have a purpose behind their music.

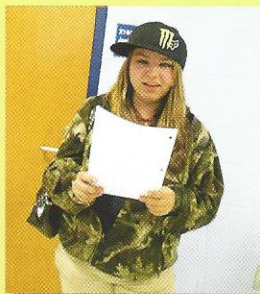

3.

1. With people standing around watching, Senior James Mott shows his talent by doing a back flip while hanging with his friends and waiting for lunch to end.

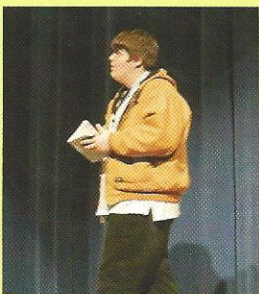

2. Freshman Ciara Wallace is willing to perform anywhere! She stands in the hallway, outside of the cafeteria to show off her vocal talent.

Senior Chardaea Barns rehearses for the fall production of Just Another High School Play. "Performing gives me life. It is the only thing that excites me," quoted Chardaea.

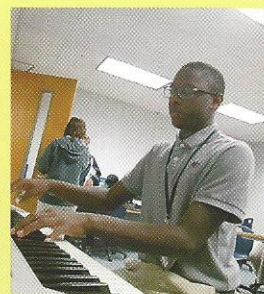

From the time she was a toddler, sophomore Carrie Herndon was proud of her vocal talents. "I love to sing everyday because it makes me happy," expresses Carrie.

Freshman Dillon Coggins stands on stage to do what he loves most. "My uncle works with theater. Since he is an actor, I want to follow him," stated Dillon.

Junior Brooke Edwards stands in the spotlight as she performs her part in the Fall play. "I love acting and being the center of attention. Acting is my hobby," expressed Brooke.

Before preparing his singing voice, junior Wayne Davis, performs his other talent of playing the piano. "My favorite type of music to sing is pop," said Wayne.

(Below)-Sophomore Jar-red McCoy sings at one of the football games with the chorus. "John Legend inspires me because he sings and plays piano just like I do. I like his music," quoted Jar-red.

1. Freshman Johnny Singleton is getting his groove on in the hallway. "I love to perform my talent any time I get the chance to," expressed Johnny.

2. Since junior Hannah Houck was six years old, she has been bettering her talent of singing. "I like the feeling, and it is fun," shared Hannah.

4. Sophomore Rachel Saxon sits in art class while she works on one of her art projects. "I would rather draw because I like to," expressed Rachel.

3. While she stands in front of the waterfall on Main Street, Senior Keisha Bingley sings her heart out. "My mom inspires me most, and I am improving," stated Keisha.

5. Junior Jared Hess stands on stage while he practices for the fall play.

6. Junior Taylor Crosby stands outside of the classroom dancing. "I dance for fun. I enjoy dancing with friends the most," stated Taylor.

7. Senior Kashaira Givens stands outside of the cafeteria while she sings "You are my sunshine."

8. Sophomore Zaria Gantt stands outside at lunch while she shows us one of her dance moves. "I am pretty confident; everything disappears. It is just me and my music," quoted Zaria.

Sophomore Summer Standiford shares her beautiful voice in chorus class. "I think it is really empowering when you can hit the right note and sing through an entire song."

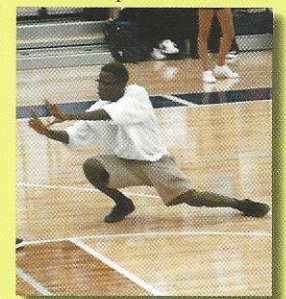

Junior Madison Blackwell acts out her part in the play. "I have always enjoyed watching people act on TV and how they learn to get to that level of greatness."

Junior Kirkland Bennett prepares to make an entrance on stage. "I love to perform, and if you really love something, you do not get tired of it," explained Kirkland.

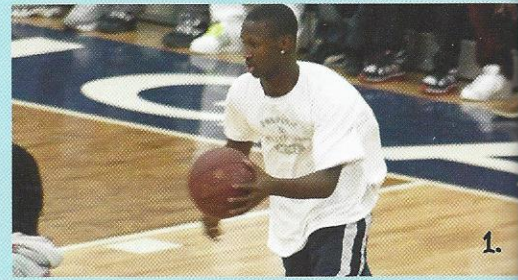

Junior Kristopher Encalade stands in the hallway while trying to come up with a dance move. "Dancing is not just an activity; it is an art and a way to define yourself," stated Kristopher.

Senior De Lante Williams busts a move on the gym floor during the PBIS kick off rally. "I do not want to mess up, but I want to put on a show that the crowd will like," quoted De Lante.

Rally for Charity

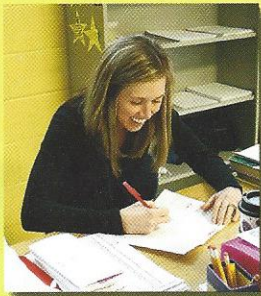

From the classroom to the basketball court, the Student-Faculty basketball game is an exciting topic. Teachers and students played basketball against one another to entertain for charity. Student Council and NHS sponsored the event. All of the money raised for the game was donated to Pennies for Patients. The students were also allowed to participate in a dress down day, and all of the dress down proceeds went to Relay for Life. It was clear that some teachers and students were more skilled at basketball than others, which made for an interesting game. Junior Presley Holt showed her unwavering support, "I felt it was a fair game this year. Go Students!" The students pulled a thrilling last minute victory, ending the long six year streak of losing.

1. Senior Lorenzo Shider concentrates fully on the basketball game, dribbling the ball down the court with skill.
2. Sophomore Erika Sheffield and friends performed the "South Dallas Swag" during half-time.
3. Senior Kyla Floyd pumps herself up before the game. Kyla stated, "it was very fun because it gave me an opportunity to compete in a real game this year!"
4. Junior Presley Holt shows off the colorful poster she made for her coach, Mrs. Townsend. "She's my best friend, and I wanted to cheer her on just as she does me," Presley explained.

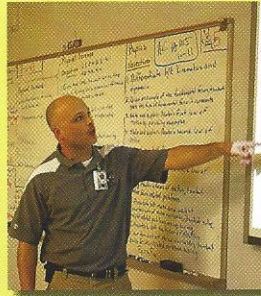

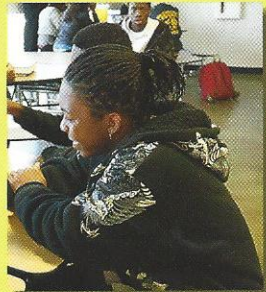

Mr. Birch rushes in to score a point for the faculty, but was blocked by a student. "For charity, I would do it all over again. It was a great cause to play for, and I had a blast! I look forward to doing it again in the near future," Mr. Birch said. The enjoyment experienced from Mr. Birch was a mutual feeling shared by all the students and all the faculty.

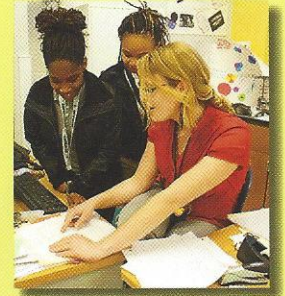

Mrs. Townsend had a little experience going into the game. "I played through my freshman year of high school," she explained.

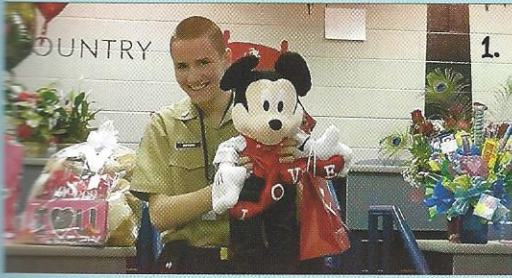

Senior Reggie Pontoon had some years of basketball under his belt for the game. "I've played basketball since the eighth grade," Reggie said.

Senior Christine Nesmith was one of the students that went into the game with no experience at all.

Mrs. Hanson had no basketball experience but was entertained regardless. "I was impressed with Mr. Warren's rebounding madness," she laughed.

Catch Their Hearts

Balloons, teddy bears, and bouquets of flowers cover the tabletops on Valentine's Day. Gifts littered the tables and floors of room 4113 this February 14th, because it was the designated place to pick-up and drop-off Valentine's Day gifts. The process of dropping-off gifts and distributing them went fairly smoothly thanks to the help of various student volunteers. All students have different opinions on this romantic holiday. Some absolutely adore Valentine's Day, while others do not. "I think Valentine's Day is sweet, it's nice to be able to show your affection, and I like getting stuff," senior Alana Peets stated. However, whatever your opinion may be, Valentine's Day will always be a time you can show how much you cherish your loved ones.

1. Sophomore Brandon Hoffman-Phifer eagerly shows off a gift someone received from their special someone.

2. A fluffy teddy bear awaits its delivery, soon to be given to some special someone.

3. Senior Monique Thomas grabs a Valentine's basket full of gifts. When asked about Valentine's Day, Monique replied, "It's a beautiful day. You get to see how much somebody loves and appreciates you."

4. "Happy Valentine's Day," this heart shaped balloon couldn't have said it any better. A simple "Happy Valentine's Day" can make someone's day.

The massive amount of Valentine's gifts students and parents dropped-off for their loved ones covered the majority of the tables. Students sifted through the stunning amount of gifts during their lunch in order to find their own small treasure.

Senior Alana Peets enjoyed distributing gifts on Valentine's Day. "It was nice to see people all surprised!"

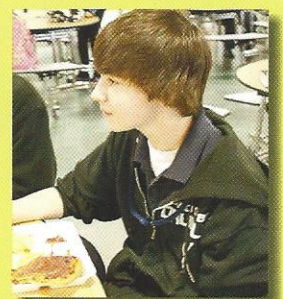

"If you truly love someone, you don't need just one day to prove it." Senior Kayla Bowman elaborated while working to create Flower-grams.

"I like Valentine's Day because it makes people happy," Junior Chelsie Dantzler shared while concentrating on her class work.

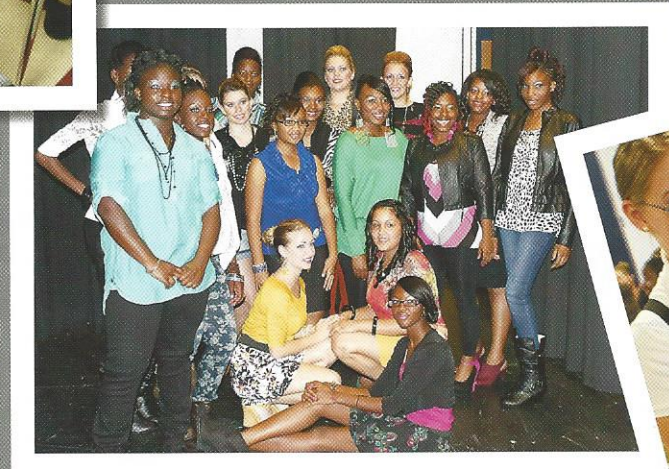

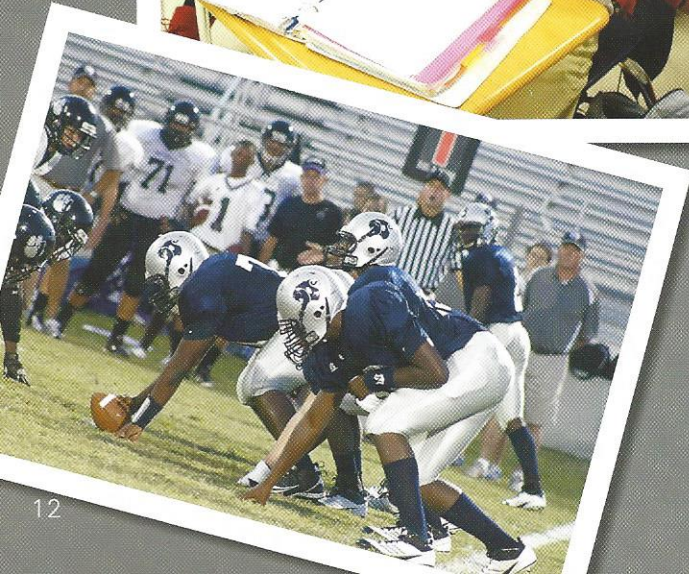

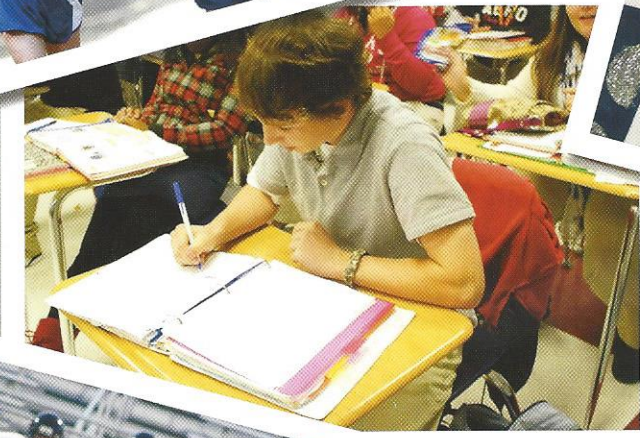

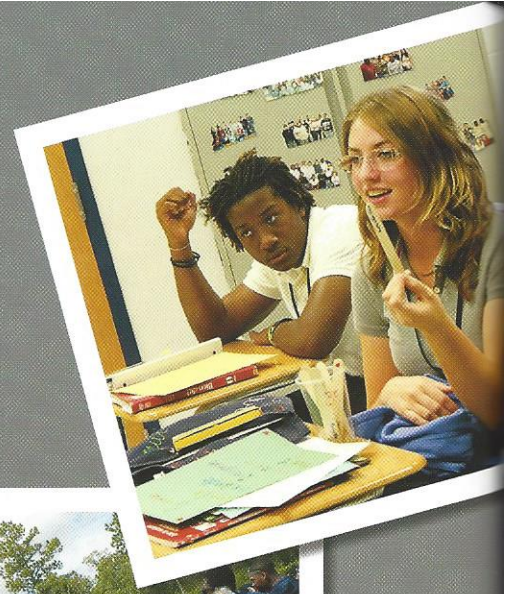

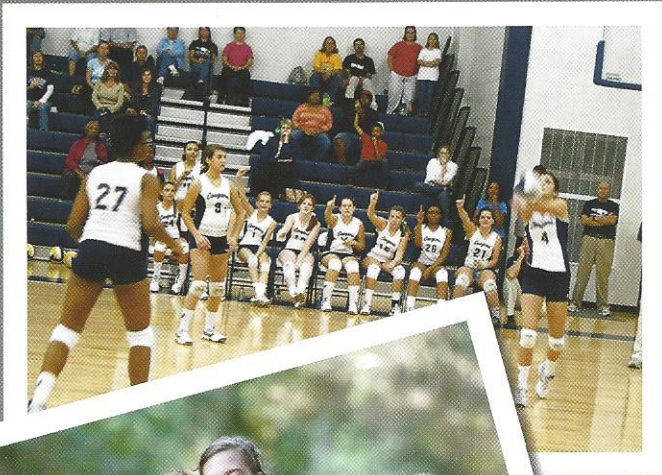

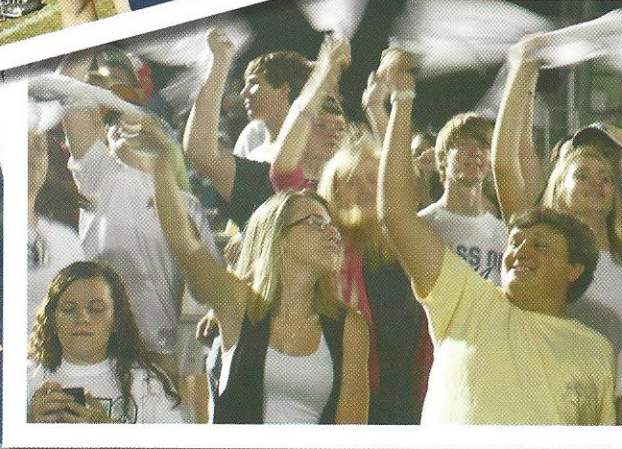

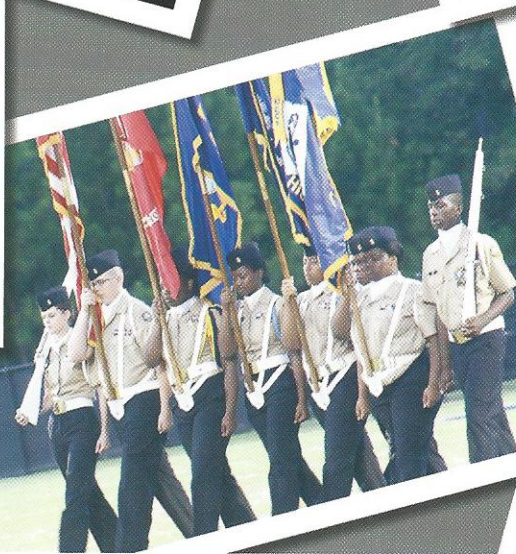

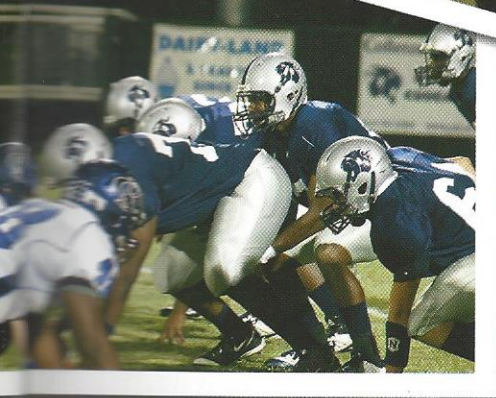

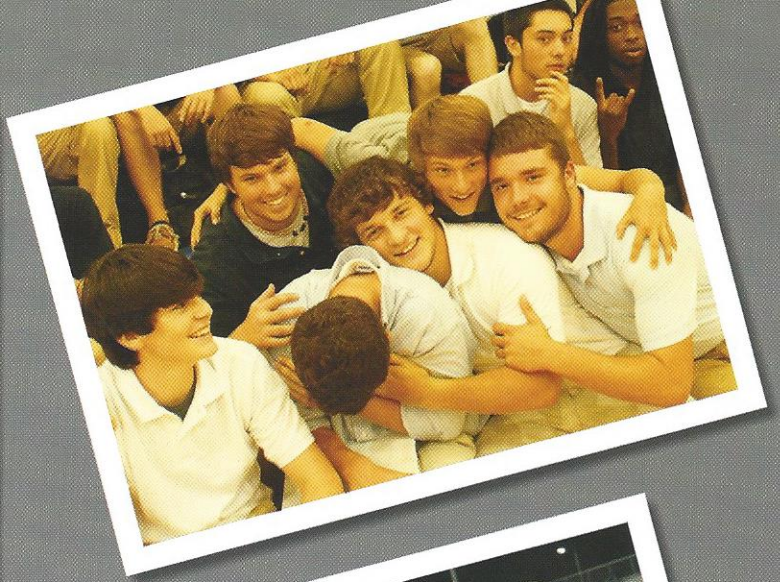

Senior Rajad Simmons said, "I like it because you show your true feelings through gifts," she said while grouping flowers together to be distributed.

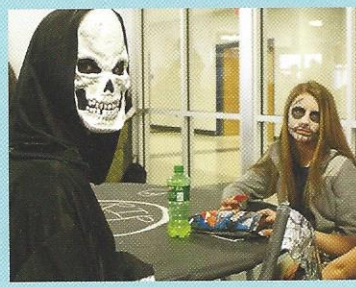

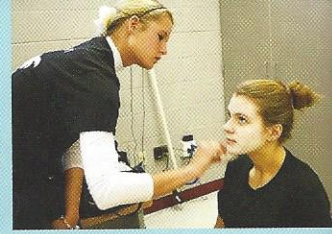

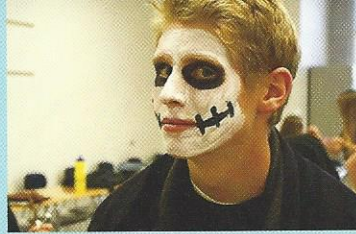

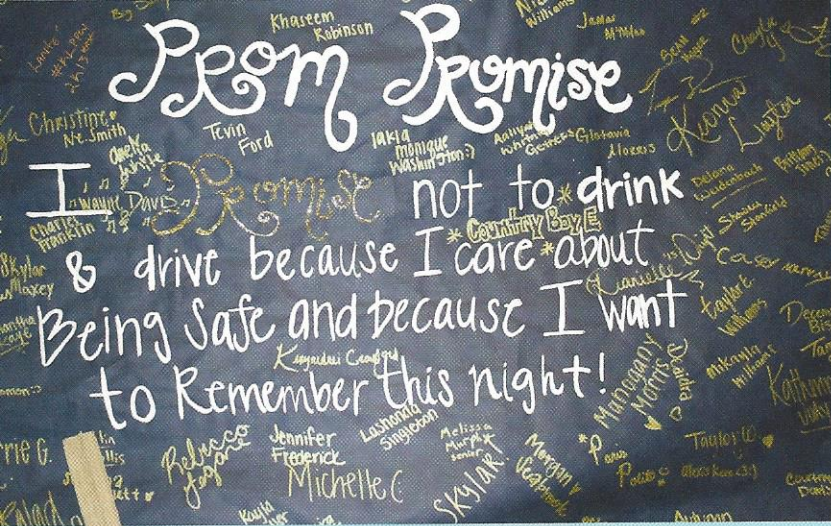

"It's a nice day. Everyone's always happy, bringing in big stuffed animals," freshman Joshua Craven said.

Catch the Effect

Painted faces and silence for a few put a shadow over the rest. One person every thirty minutes is killed from a drunk driver. Drinking and driving is a serious issue with teenagers, and the Journalism Staff sponsored Ghost Out week initiative is organized to help bring awareness to the consequences of teen drinking and driving. Adam Smith, a junior in LEAPs said, "I think it's a very good event that makes people realize the seriousness of drinking and driving." During this week long initiative, students first lined up to sign the Prom Promise, saying they would not drink and drive or use drugs on prom night. On Tuesday, students were given the opportunity to complete a field sobriety test, under the direction of local law enforcement, while wearing "drunk goggles." Wednesday, junior and senior classes were invited to the Performing Arts Center to watch a touching presentation by local Mothers Against Drunk Driving. On the final day of Ghost Out, volunteer students were removed from their classrooms to be transformed into the living dead. These students served as a visual reminder of someone who lost their life because of drinking and driving.

Junior Kirkland Bennett explained, "I think Ghost Out went well; the teacher in charge did a good job of presenting the facts and consequences of drinking and driving."

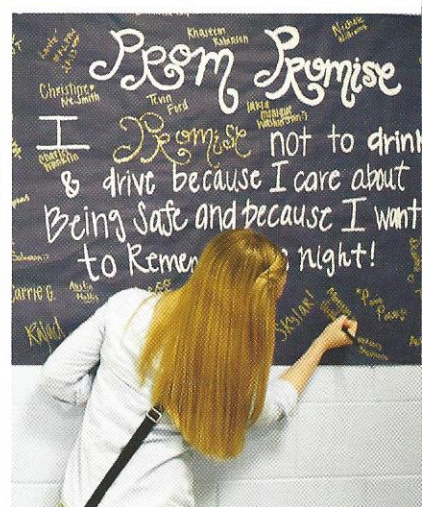

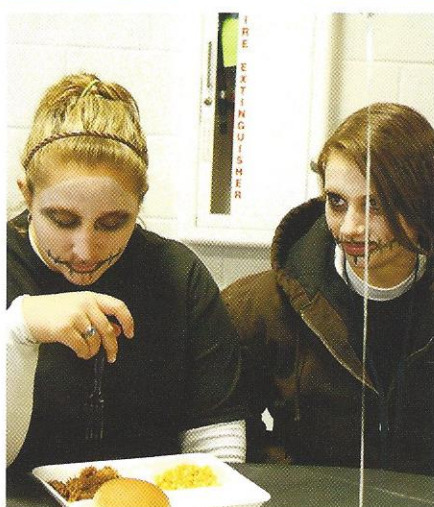

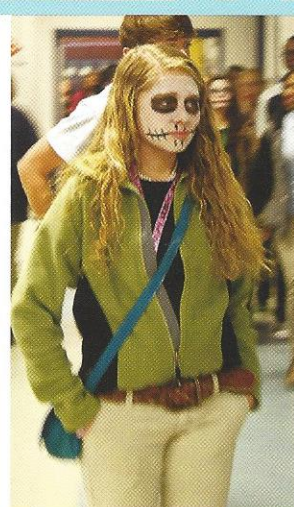

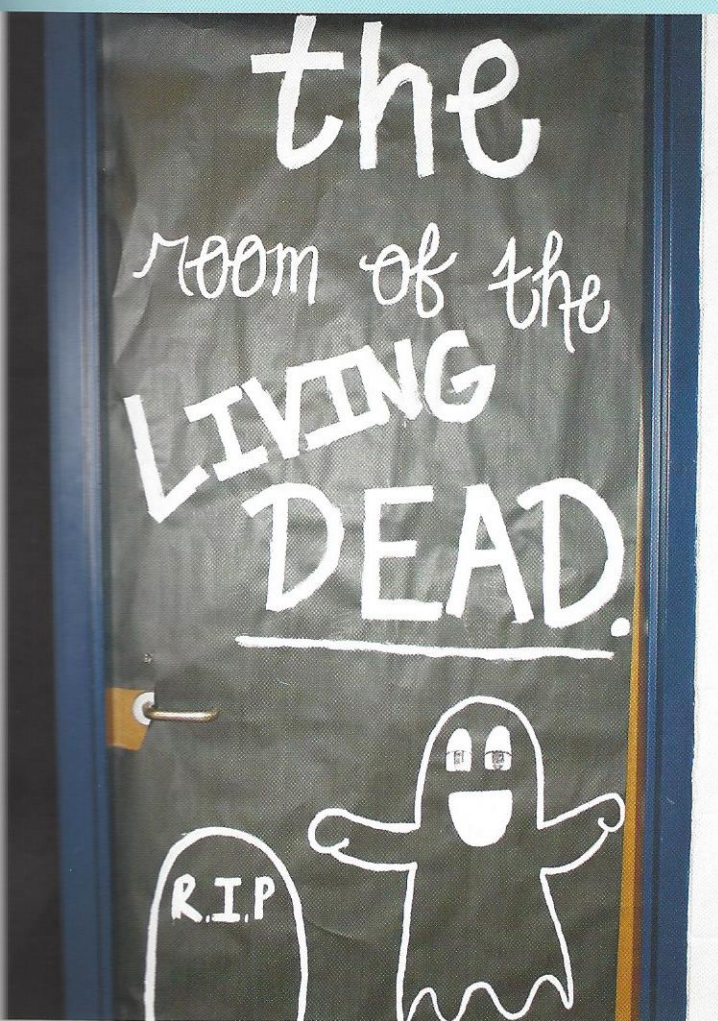

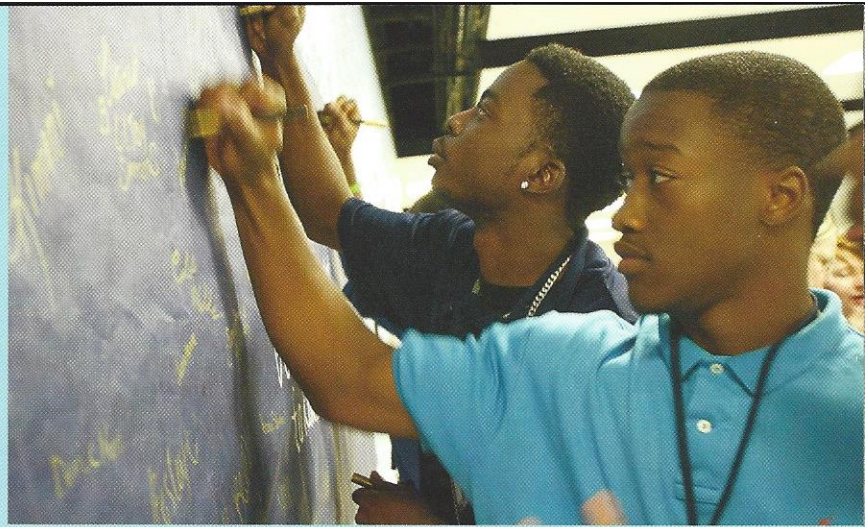

Senior Nathan Ezernack said, "people don't take Ghost Out as seriously as they should, maybe it will help to remember people that have gone."

Sophomore Courtney Padgett is prepped by journalism staff member, Shyann Donoho to "die."

"I promise not to drink and drive because I care about being safe and I want to remember this night!" Stephanie Beach pledged as she signs the Prom Promise.

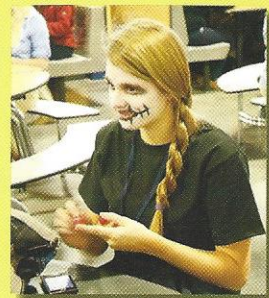

"I feel Ghost Out went well. We understand why they don't want us to drink and drive at prom or any time," Junior Lindsey Reynolds replied.

Prom Committee member Katlynn Adams participates in many activities, such as Ghost Out and Prom Committee. Here she shows off a small sneak peak of the decorations.

"I did sign the Prom Promise because it means a lot to me. I've come a long way and still have so far to go to let one single mistake in one night to stop me," Ashley Rivers elaborated.

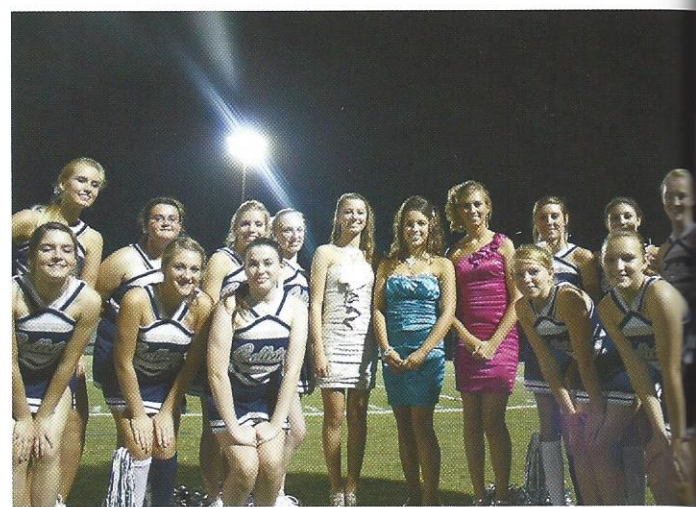

Senior Katelynn Ackerman sits isolated at the Ghost Out table like all the other "dead" students during lunch.

Grasp the Spirit

From the first kickoff, to the crowing of the Queen and the court, you were always in for a big surprise at the Homecoming game. All eyes were on the varsity football team as they played neck and neck with the West Ashley Wildcats. The student section and cheerleaders were up and ready to cheer on the boys. Members of the NJROTC kicked off the game with the traditional color guard presentation. As half time rolled around, everyone was shaken up when they announced that the junior class had won the spirit stick. The Band of Blue awed the fans in the stands, as always. The crowd roared to life as the homecoming Queen, Senior Keiosha Bingley, and the homecoming Court, Senior Kwanesia Devore, Junior Shantavia Holmes, Sophomore Teagan Crosby, and Freshman Sierra Zirk, walked out on the field to receive their awards. "I was so shocked! I didn't know I was going to win, so I was very grateful for that opportunity," said Senior Keiosha Bingley. This year, the CCHS Cougars grasped the unforgettable moments of homecoming memories that will last them a life time.

"I was so nervous because it was my first time ever running for Miss Freshman," said Freshman Courtney Davis.

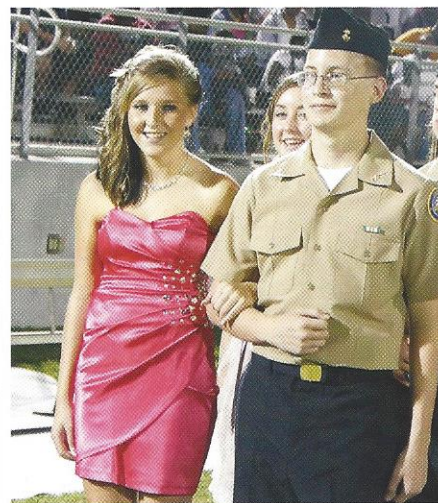

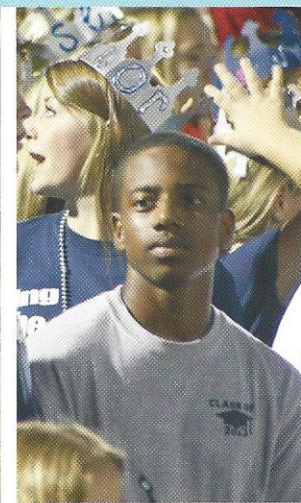

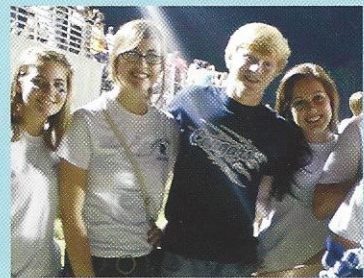

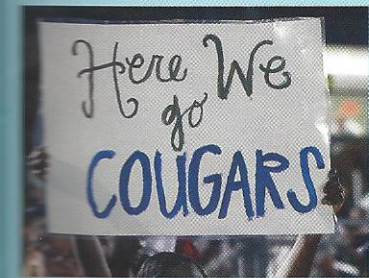

Junior Emily Stone runs off the field after winning the spirit stick.

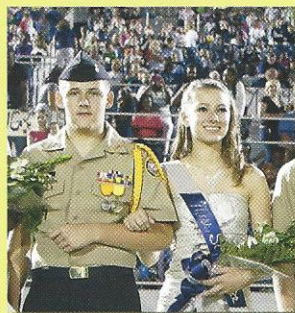

"I believe that the best part of homecoming is spirit week because it's a great way to show your school spirit," said junior Hannah Houck.

Kwanesia Devore walks down the field to be crowned Miss Senior.

Sophomore Teagan Crosby is all smiles as she is crowned Miss Sophomore.

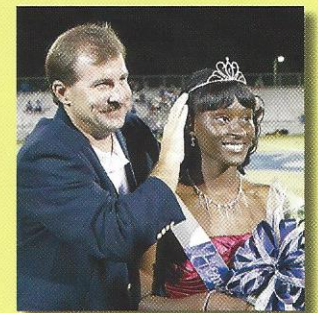

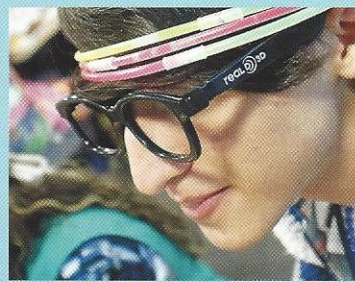

"I love going to the football games to support my Cougars and cheer on the boys," said Sophomore Jarrod McCoy.

"Tailgate is my favorite part of Homecoming because all of the seniors get to come together and share memories and food," said Senior Erica Concepcion.

Senior Keiosha Bingley was so proud to be crowned Homecoming Queen.

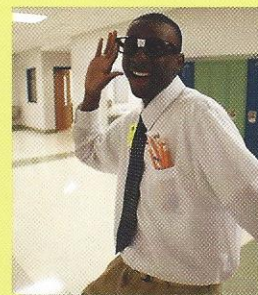

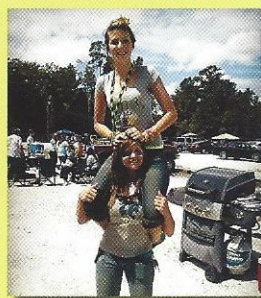

Catch the Spirit

Our school kicked off another school year with a lot of pride. As another Spirit Week swept the halls, smiles and giggles were everywhere. College Day was first, with everyone sporting their team shirts, bringing back a lot of team rivalry. Nerd Day had everyone wearing their geekiest outfits. Blowing the dust off your parents' bell bottoms concluded 70's Day, as we got down and boogied on the court yard. Putting on anything that fit involved Tacky Day, where everyone smiled ear to ear. Friday morning came, and everyone's adrenaline rushed for the Pep Rally and Senior Tailgate, as we cheered on our football players and peers. The night fell and Keiosha Bingley won Miss Homecoming. Kwaneshia Devore was crowned Miss. Senior. Shantavia Holmes, Teagan Crosby, and Sierra Zirk were crowned as Miss. Junior, Miss. Sophomore, and Miss. Freshman respectively. The junior class took home the Spirit Stick by winning the penny war and more. The football game came down to the wire with a score of 8-6. The other team took home the win, but the faith in our Cougars will forever live on.

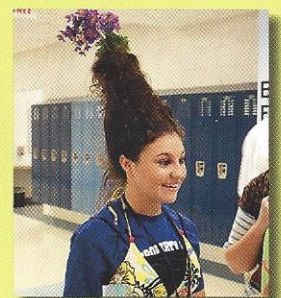

Sophomore Akirah Maloney paused at lunch to show off her crazy outfit for Tacky Day.

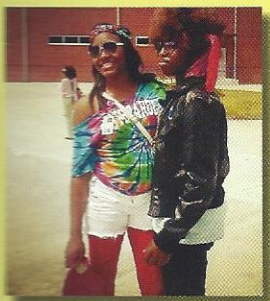

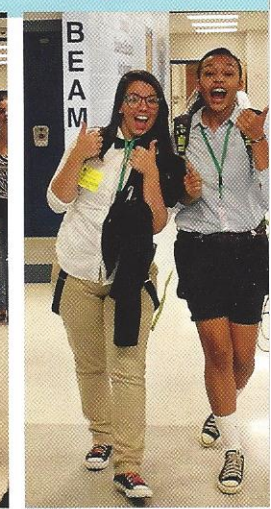

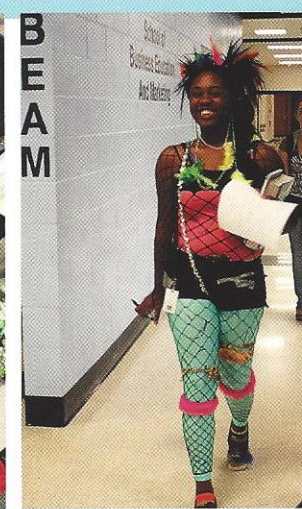

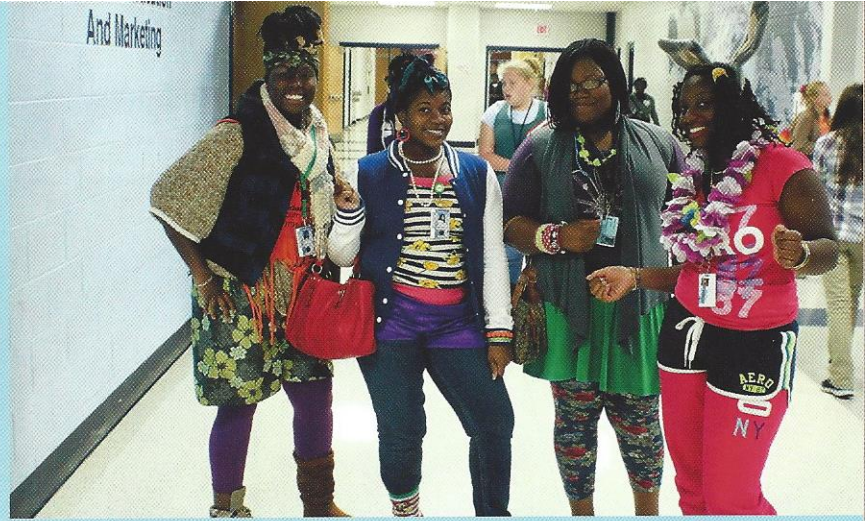

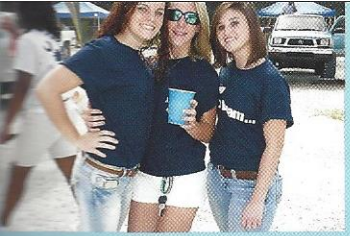

Seniors Kristina Hale and Karly Reith showed their school spirit and their friendship during the 2012-2013 Senior Tailgate.

Senior, Patrick Salley expressed his inner nerd on Nerd Day, rocking his nerd glasses and high knee socks.

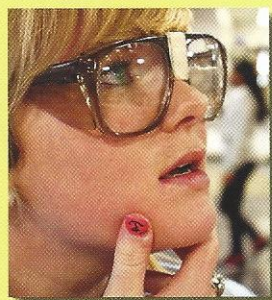

Senior, MaHallie Martin took time out to put together her hair as Tacky Day commenced.

Senior Kwaneshia Devore and sophomore Jar-rod McCoy got down and boogied on the courtyard during lunch for 70's Day.

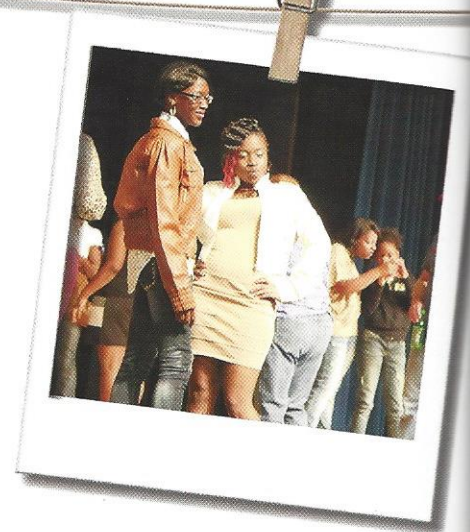

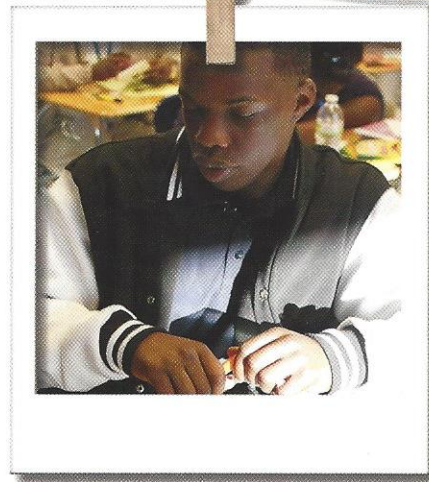

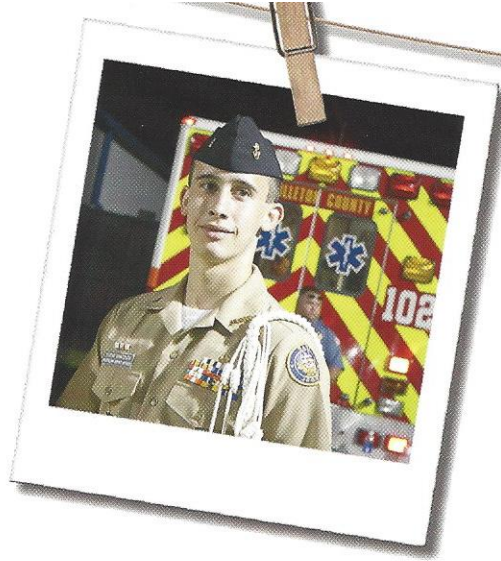

Senior Heather Varn sat at lunch, dressed as a nerd, in deep thought of what she was going to wear on Tacky Day.

Junior Presley Holt allowed all of her school spirit to show through her outfits over the course of Spirit Week.

Nailing the Note

Chorus has always been an outlet for students in our school. Students participating have an opportunity to express themselves as unique individuals. It gives them a chance to channel all of their creativity and talent into something productive, like singing. "When I get nervous during a performance, I interpret all of my fear into power," mentioned sophomore Summer Standiford. This program has made it possible for students to have a future at doing something at which they excel. Chorus means a great deal to those involved and to those who attend the performances. Some of our students are even talented enough to place in a state competitor.

3. Chorus students flock together to sing the National Anthem at the Homecoming Game.

4. Senior Jared O'Quinn, and sophomores Jar'red McCoy and Hunter Rizer observe Mrs. Drawdy and wait for their cue.

"I've been singing since I was six. My parents influenced me into joining chorus," sophomore Paul Murray tells us.

"I love to perform and be around people who share the same passion as I do," sophomore Emily O'Quinn explains.

"I've been singing since the 4th grade. It builds confidence and self-esteem," explained sophomore, Kanisha Gethers.

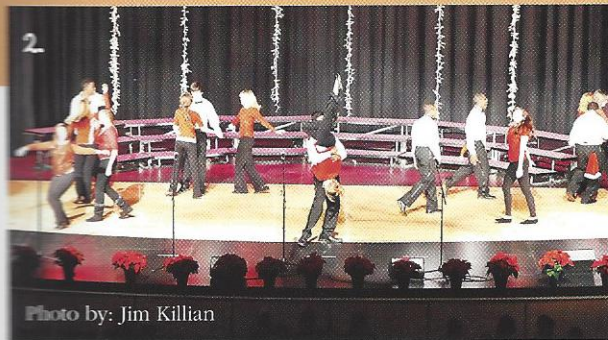

"I've loved chorus since I was five. It gives me a chance to express myself," explained sophomore Brooklyn Thurston.

5. Chorus members show their spirit by singing the Alma Mater at the Homecoming Game.

"Chorus is a great learning experience. It teaches me correct posture and to breathe right," as said by sophomore Taleyah Washington.

"I used to just sing at church, but then Ms. Drawdy said that I could really sing, so I took Drawdy (class)," says sophomore Tristen Douglas.

Freshman Johnny Singleton says, "I started singing in church when I was little. I never get nervous on stage."

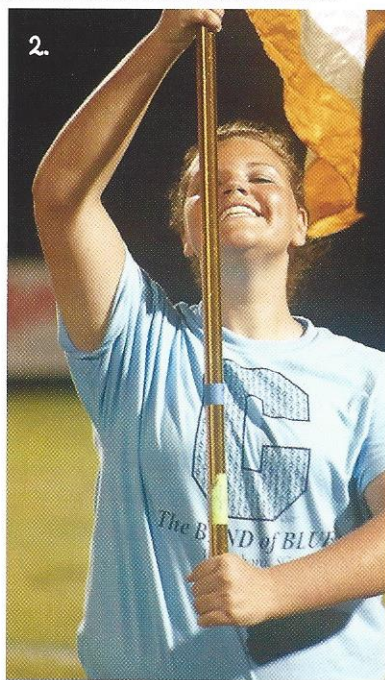

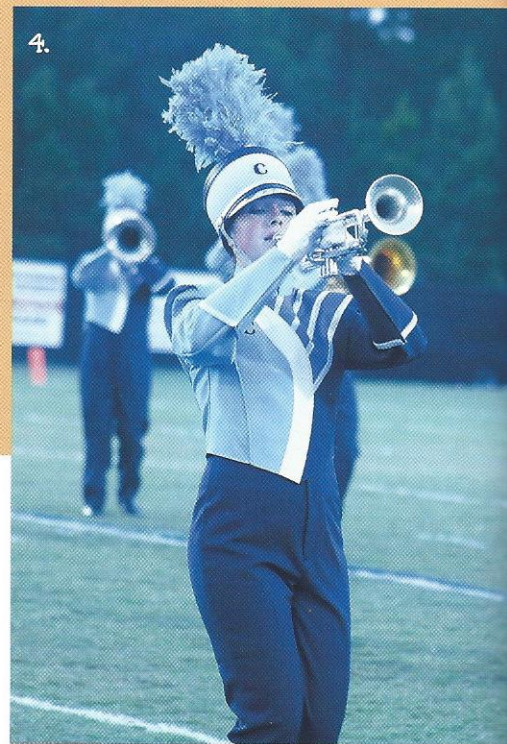

"I have a fun time in chorus. Everyone is like a family," says sophomore Nicole Frank.

Capture the Music

The Band of Blue was faced with new uniforms, new freshmen, and a new routine to learn.

During the fall, it is not considered football season to the band members, it is more like marching season. Senior Nicosha Campbell stated, "Marching season is my favorite part of band, and The Carmen has been my favorite performance." The band had a lot on their hands with band camp in the summer, marching season in the fall, and symphonic band following in the spring. Sophomore Britney Woodbury explained, "being the section leader and teaching the newbies was a lot of work." Band was a lot of responsibility, but it disciplines you and teaches you to respect your colleagues.

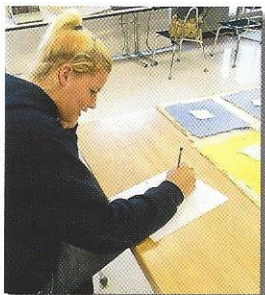

1. Junior Jordan Nettles is a second-year, avid band member. "Colorguard; the only activity where you can strip it, flip it, and whip it in public."

2. Sophomore Alyssa Fender smiles as she hits her mark on the football field during a performance.

3. "Music is my life," explains Junior Adrian Brooks. Adrian is one of the few band members who is honored with a solo.

4. With intense focus, senior Victoria Grimsley watches her placement on the field during a routine. "The most important thing about band is the leadership and discipline."

"We are Big Blue!" yelled junior Tivia Wright. Even during class, Tivia is full of school spirit.

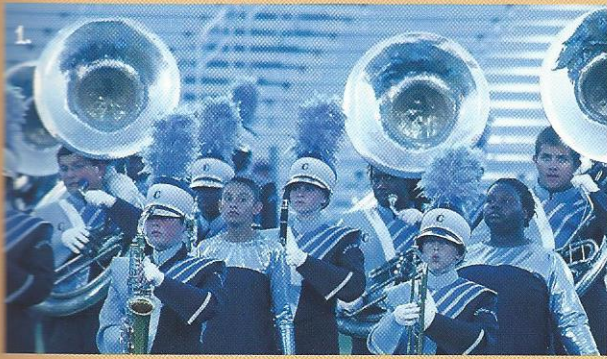

Junior Taylor Crosby continues her schoolwork. "Band is just a big family. We all have our moments."

Junior Terrell Samuels favorite quote about marching is, "tubas, let 'em hang!"

While studying her french flash cards, junior Shelby Powell explains that "trumpets are the best!"

1. "Band kept me out of trouble. I met a lot of cool people," said sophomore Amber Futrell-Patterson. Amber is a two-year member and played the clarinet.

2. Senior Samantha Hudson explains, "colorguard is my passion. With it, my highschool life would have been boring. You meet great people and have loads of fun." Samatha is an avid member of the Band of Blue colorguard.

3. Drumline member, junior Michael Gunnoe says, "There are two kinds of people in this world, and band students are the best of both of them."

4. Junior Desha Fraser proudly says, "This is what marching bands are made for: the football field." Desha struts her stuff on the field playing the clarinet.

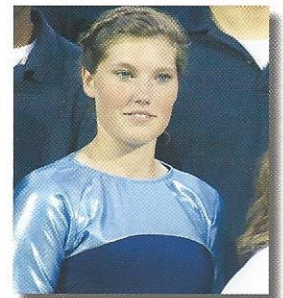

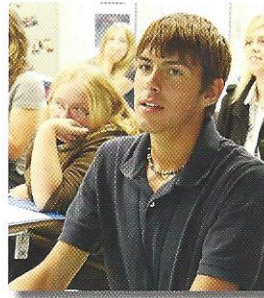

5. The Band of Blue's trumpet players begin their march in the performance of The Carmen at a home football game. The Band of Blue played at every home football game throughout the season. The big performance took place during each halftime.

Breaking her concentration for a moment, "we got the beat!" exclaimed flute player, senior Sierra Defoor.

Excited about an upcoming competition, junior Fantasia Smith yells, "Big Blue, Big Blue, we are Big Blue!"

Junior Kristopher Encalade, a melaphone player says, "We may not see the drum major, but we see the melaphone haters!"

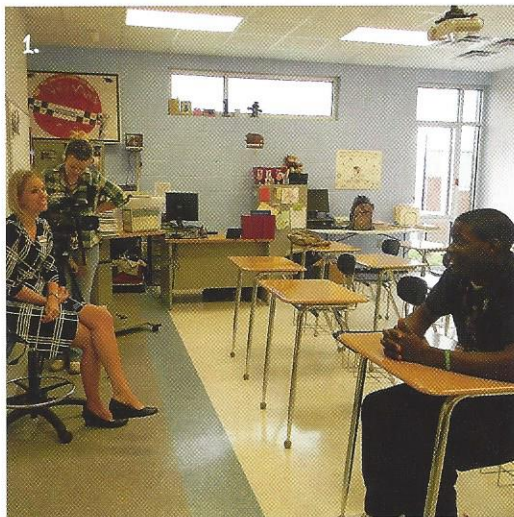

Sophomore Tara Neuroth says, "Color Guard made me do better in school. I'm actually passing this year!"

Alter Your Future

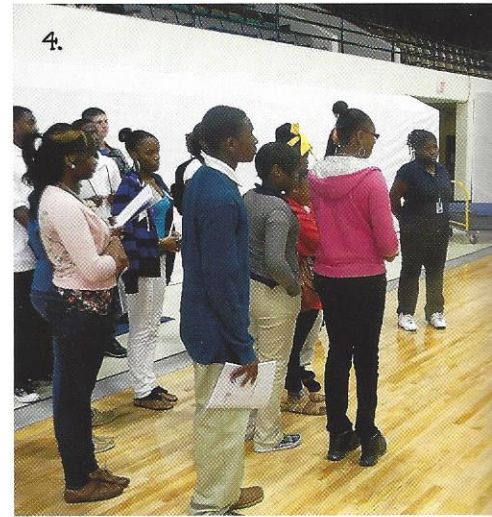

JAG is an organization that stands for Jobs for America's Graduates. The JAG program began in 2009 at Colleton County High School and prepared students for the working environment. Senior Kayanie Williams said, "Most people think JAG is for troubled students, but it's not. It's for students who want to go somewhere in life, who don't have the means to do it themselves." The graduating class of 2013 was the first class brought into the JAG program, and the first JAG class out into the work force. These former students will have no problem in the real world, for the JAG program has prepared them well.

1. Channel 2 News stops by CCHS and interviews several different students from JAG.

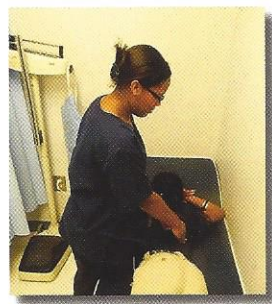

2. Students in JAG take notes at a college tour. This college tour was at the University of South Carolina in Columbia.

3. After one of their several college tours, the JAG group decides to eat lunch at a local Italian restaurant.

4. In November, students in JAG take a college tour through Claflin University in Orangeburg.

Junior Terele Samuels has been in JAG for one year. He said, "JAG is a very helpful experience. It teaches you how to conduct yourself in a business-like manner."

Junior Sha'Kema Middleton practices on a fellow JAG student for her health occupations class.

Senior Nichole Williams helps at a charity event. JAG students often volunteered to help with community events.

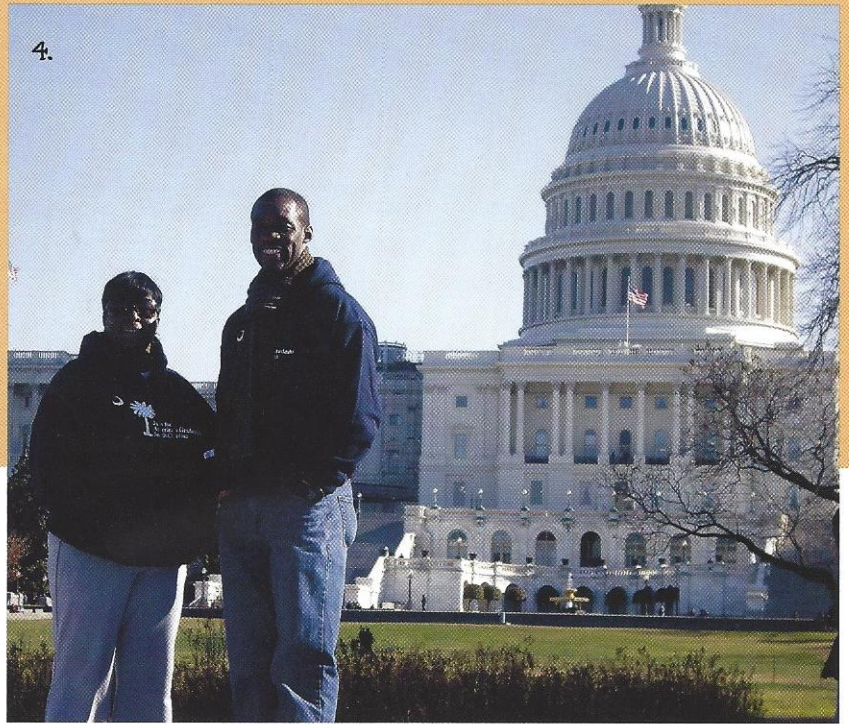

1. Part of the JAG class stands in front of the fountain at CCHS. Most students in JAG would say that their organization was well known throughout the school and influential to the students.

2. The JAG class enjoys their day at one of their several college tours. This year, the college tours had the most relevance, with the first JAG class, the class of 2013, graduating this year.

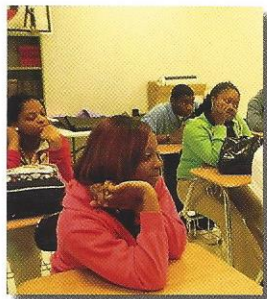

3. On a college tour, a group of the JAG girls congregate for a group photo.

4. Mr. Birch and Ms. Jamison stand in front of the Capitol building during the JAG trip to Washington, DC. Mr. Birch said, "I really liked our trip to Washington, DC. It was very informative and rich in history. I think the students really enjoyed themselves too."

5. JAG students were influenced by all the field trips they went on throughout the year. During most of the trips, they took time to capture the moments on camera to document their success.

Seniors Rainie Gordon and Kayla Johnson tour a college with the rest of their class.

Seniors Rhonyai Brown, Otis Rhodes, and Nichole Williams listen to what Mr. Birch has to say.

Mr. Birch tries to get senior Douglas Rhodes to loosen up during a Dress for Success day.

Mr. Birch, one of our JAG advisors, is awarded a prestigious plaque.

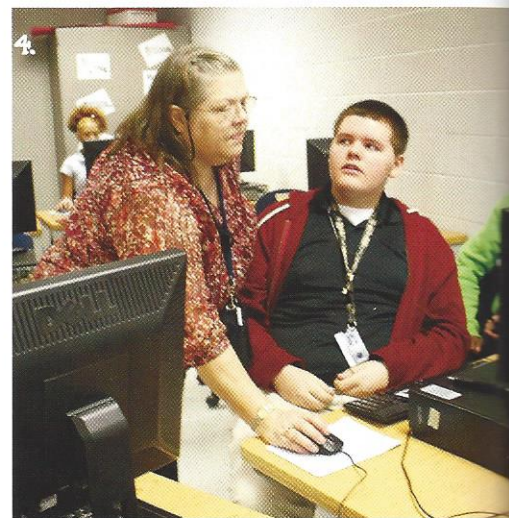

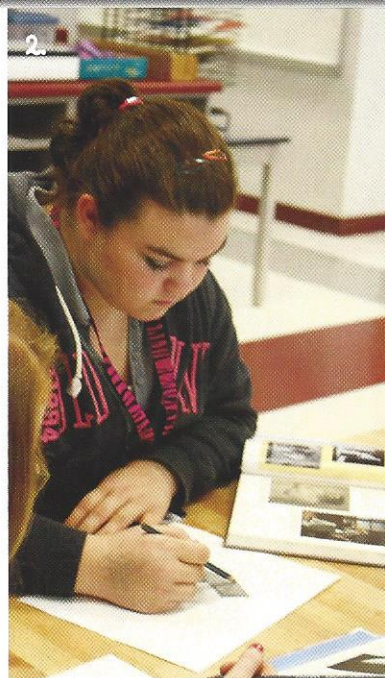

Grab the Imagination

Painting, sculpting, sketching, and shading is typically what you would think of when you think about art, when really there is so much more. "You have to use the elements of art, like shape and line," explained sophomore Athena Kisner. The artwork displayed in the hallways are very spectacular. There are drawings, silhouettes, and sculptures in the showcase. Many people enjoy looking at the art work of the students. "Art enables people to do what they didn't think they could do," stated art teacher Sally Davis. Where there's art, there is color. Junior Cameron Doby said, "green is my favorite color; it's pretty awesome." Everyone is artistic in some way, and here at CCHS, the Cougars know how to embrace it.

1. Freshman Zachary Crosby diligently works on his project for Mrs. Waddell. Zachary said, "Art inspires me to be creative."

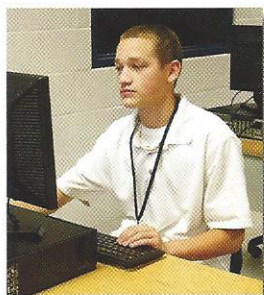

2. Freshman Casey Satterfield explores the wonders of creativity. Shading was an important component in the art classes.

3. Junior Summer Bennett and another video art student scavenge the halls, video camera in hand, during the crazy events of Spirit Week.

4. Mrs. Waddell, a video and art teacher, aids a student in need. "My dad is my inspiration in life. He showed me how wonderful art could be," said Ms. Waddell.

"I think that Art is a good class to take while you're in high school," says senior Andrew Harrison.

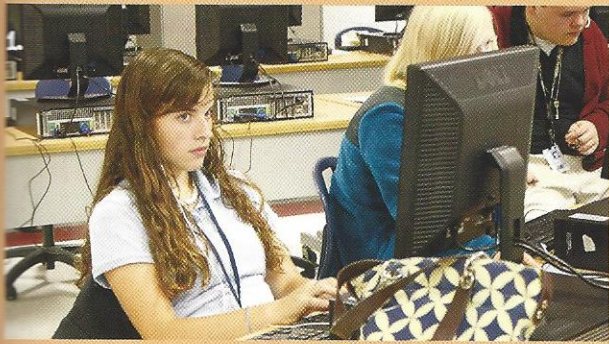

Sophomore Bret Black explains, "art involves colors, and blue expresses me."

Senior Shakema Bennett says "I like art because you can express yourself."

Sophomore Heather Stevens says, "Art gives you the chance to express yourself and also gives you time to think."

1. Freshman Hannah Segura listens intently to her assignment. Hannah says, "Art has been an very interesting class, and Mrs. Waddell is one of my favorite teachers."

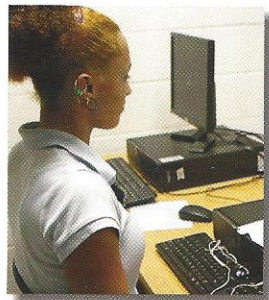

2. "Art is my inspiration, I love it all., especially, anything turquoise." says freshman Janelle Singleton. Janelle draws away in art class.

3. Juniors Kirkland Bennett and Hadrian Buckner experiment with the computer's webcam. Kirkland explained, "Video is a really fun class. You get to have a lot of freedom."

4. Sophomore Morgan Garris expresses her creativity in her art class.

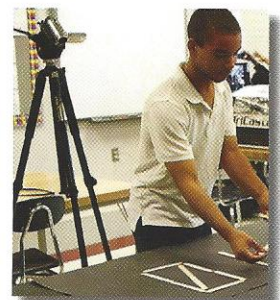

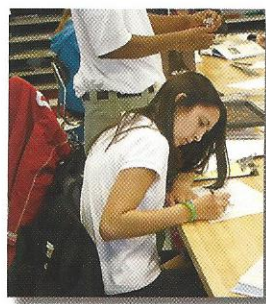

5. Art teacher, Ms. Davis, helps freshman Adaire Joseph learn the element of shading as freshman Holly Trogdon listens to the advice. Ms. Davis is one of several art teachers in HARTS.

"I've always loved art! It's fun, and the class gives you projects that are new and challenging," says sophomore Sierra Britt.

Freshman Keshawna Bennett says, "I like art because I get to use my favorite color, pink. It's a beautiful color."

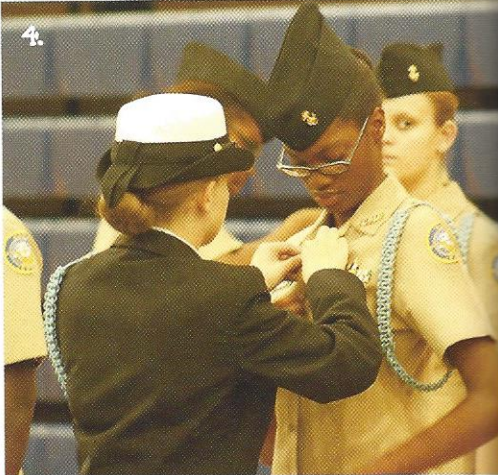

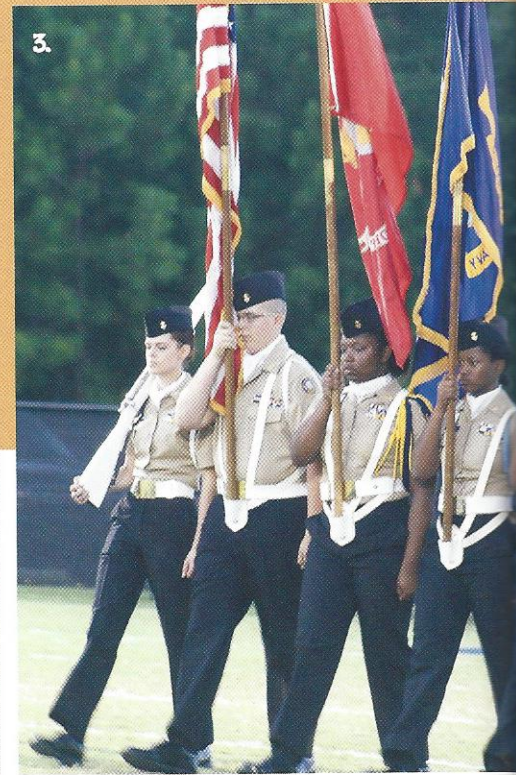

Junior Chelsie Dantzer says, "I like art because it challenges my creativity."

Junior Adrian Brooks says, "video is a fun, indepth experience. It's an easy A."

Capture the Flag

The Navy Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps program is an organization that is about order and discipline. The students involved in this program are training and maybe even planning for a life in the military. "What I like most about the NJROTC program is that it's like family and the drill meets are fun," said junior Andrew Hammonds. Students in NJROTC learned how to respect authority, which prepared them for boot camp. "I plan on going in the military to be an assistant, so I can have a chance to do all the paperwork that needs to be done," said sophomore Lauren Larrabee. NJROTC is an influential program utilized all over the US, and CCHS is thankful to be one of the most successful in the region.

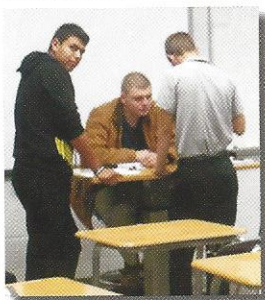

1. Andrew Hammonds, the student commander, directs the students where they should stand and what they should do.

2. Junior Alex Gadsden listens to the guest speakers speech before their inspection. "The best part of being in NJROTC is being able to increase my abilities and interacting with other cadets."

3. The NJROTC color guard kicks off the Homecoming Game by presenting the flags to the tune of the National Anthem.

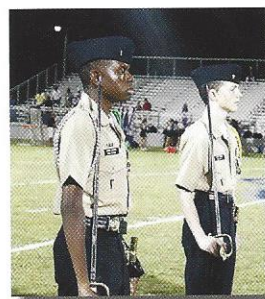

4. Sophomore Justice Riley said, "NJROTC makes me become a better and more constructive person, showing me that I can become a well-behaved citizen."

Cadets await the arrival of the Homecoming nominees.

Sophomore Tara Shider is awaiting the annual inspection from the Commander.

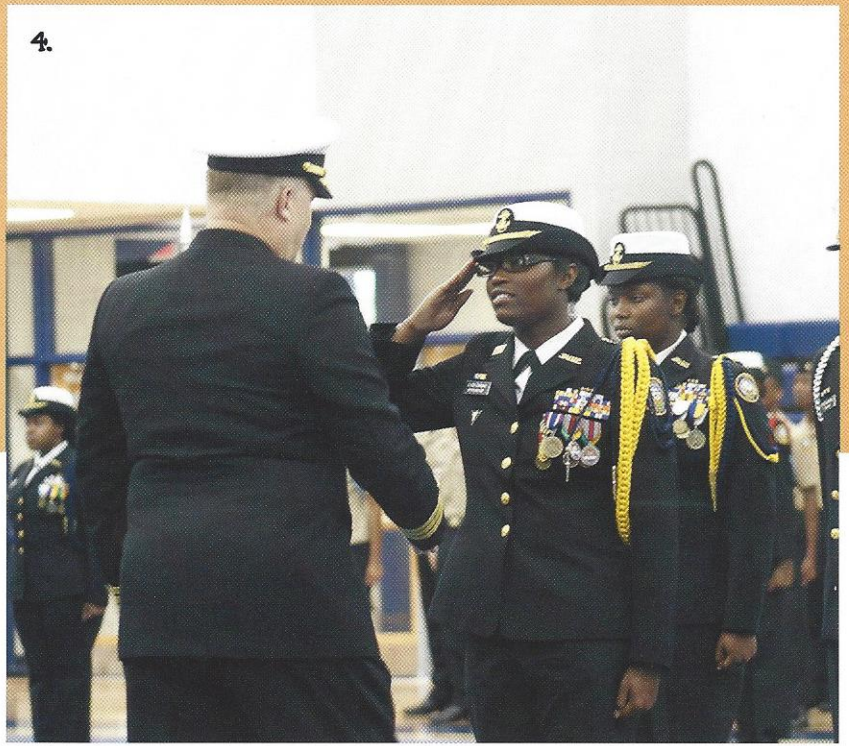

1. Gunner Roger Williams looks at the students in NJROTC to make sure they are dressed well and looking sharp.

2. The higher-ranked students look over each other's uniforms to secure a good rank among the local schools' NJROTCs.

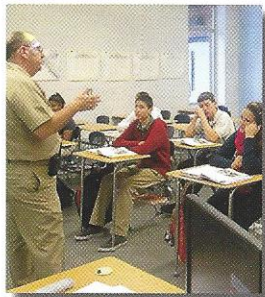

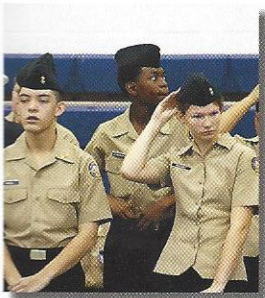

3. The CCHS's Navy Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps flag is presented in the gym.

4. Senior Silver Bowman salutes the symbol to the Commander to let him know she is on track and listening. "NJROTC helps my self-confidence and discipline."

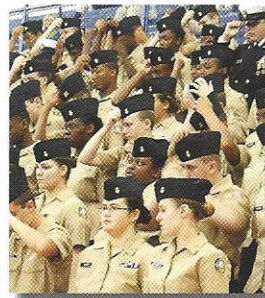

5. The NJROTC demonstrates their march for their analysis. The special marches and turns must be practiced thoroughly to achieve a successful inspection.

The NJROTC students prepare themselves for the important inspection.

Picking Up a New Language

From "hola" to "bonjour," students at Colleton County High School are engaged in learning a foreign language. Attempting to learn a new language could be intimidating, but most students were ready to take on the task after only a few days. CCHS students seemed to enjoy their foreign language. Senior Keith Newton said, "I got forced into Spanish, but I like it." For French, freshman Johnni Taylor said, "I like it because I think it's the language of love." After a few weeks in a language class, most students had already decided whether or not they want to take a second or third semester of Spanish or French. Seniors Jakob Hahn and Katelynn Ackerman, and junior Katie Buckler went the extra mile and took French IV, as did junior Olivia Heath for Spanish IV. From "adios" to "au revoir," the students remained rich in culture and foreign appreciation.

1. Senior Sarah Tobin and sophomore Julia Petrolawicz play Charades in Spanish III. Their task was to sign that they were "taking the third street."

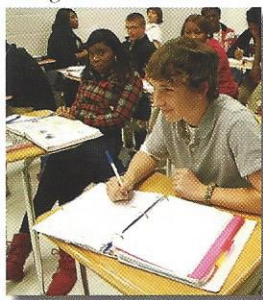

2. Senior Jasmin Vance and sophomore Sara Harrison write down notes during their Spanish class while asking a question.

3. Madame Courtney helps sophomore Courtney Ross with her Output Page in French I. An output page is a reflection of the notes on the opposite page.

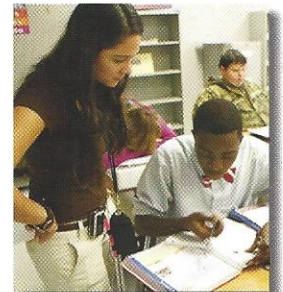

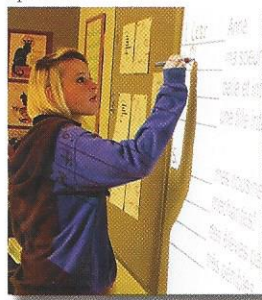

4. Junior Kristopher Encalade presents his name acrostic in French I. For this activity, students had to write their French names and describe themselves using French adjectives.

Senior Alvin Walling laughs at a joke a classmate told him in his Spanish I class while doing his review work.

Junior Donald Rizer does book work in Spanish III. "My favorite part of the class is group activities because it enriches us about learning Español."

Sophomore Amber Futrell-Patterson is called to the board in her French I class to answer a question.

1. In her Spanish II class, junior Brooke Edwards labels a shirt with a Spanish sentence explaining how much the shirt costs. The sentence translated into, "The t-shirt costs twelve dollars."

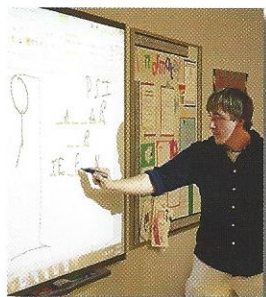

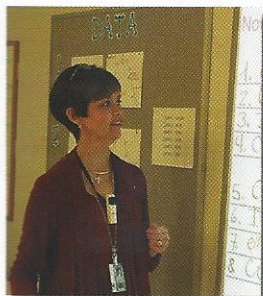

2. Junior Taylor Crosby cannot think of an answer to the question in her Spanish class. Sophomores Ashley Langston and Taryana Brown-Gadsden raised their hands to answer it for her.

3. In Spanish I, Senorita Ibañez asks senior Douglas Rhodes a question in Spanish. She waited for Douglas to reply back in Spanish.

4. Sophomore Jared Thomas waits to reply in Spanish to Señor Barreto. The students behind Jared eagerly tried to answer Señor Barreto before Jared could.

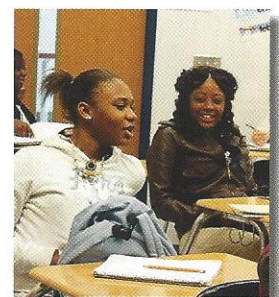

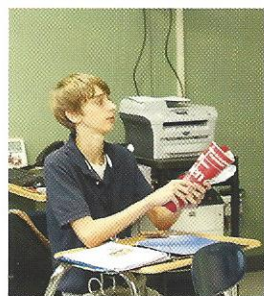

5. In French II, juniors Bianca Barra and David Gadson and Senior Takerra Ladson show off a poster mini-project. The group, as well as the rest of the class, had to draw a house with several rooms and to label the rooms with their French titles. "My favorite part of French is actually knowing the language when you leave the class," said Bianca.

Madame Courtney reviews and corrects class work with her French I class. This year was Madame Courtney's twenty-eighth year teaching.

Junior Zachary Knight writes on the board the Spanish version of "Hangman." The game spelled out, "Hablar por telefono" or "to talk on the phone."

Sophomore Andrew McCaskill answers a question Mrs. Courtney has asked him in French I.

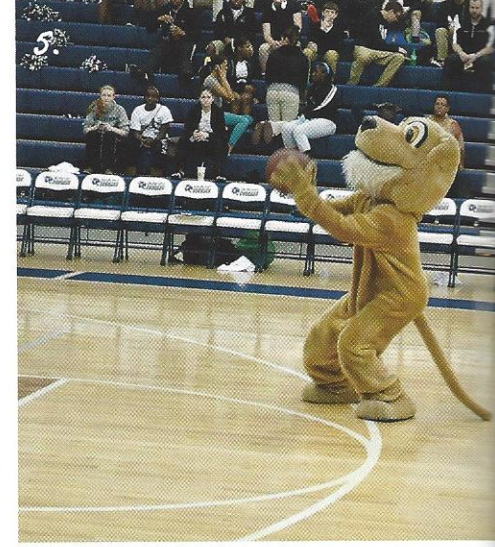

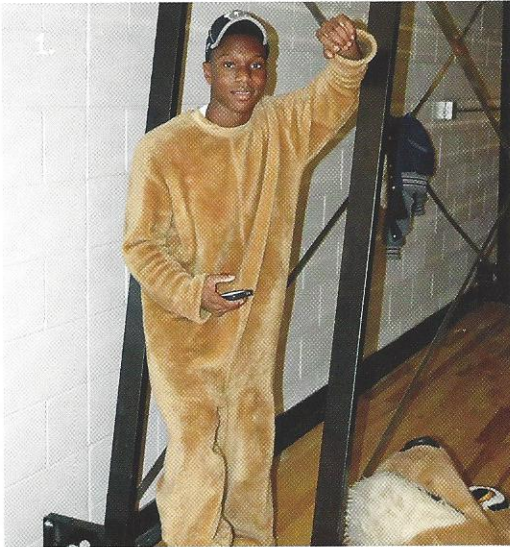

Senior Imani Richardson gets out her paper and a pencil while Junior Briana Koger listens to Señor Barreto teach.

Release the Roar

Freddie the Cougar is very well known as the real-life spirit of Colleton County High School. He brought the students funny moments that became great memories to remember forever. The student body greatly appreciates all the hard work he does to represent the enthusiastic spirit of our school while having fun the entire time. Junior Tyler Williams-Stokes has enjoyed his first year as Freddie the Cougar, "I get to do crazy stuff and be myself!" Freddie participates in a half time performance on the football field during home games and amps the crowd up at the home basketball games. Freddie the Cougar is a symbol of this school, showing our pride, sharing our humor, going through the roller coaster of events and emotions known as high school.

1. Sophomore Tyler Williams-Stokes takes a break after one of the junior varsity basketball games.

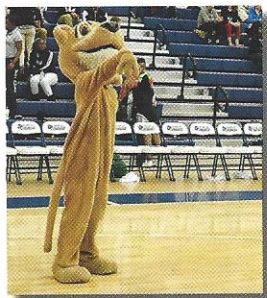

2. Freddie the Cougar shows his athleticism at a home basketball game by shooting some lay ups.

3. Freddie helps the cheerleaders and shows some spirit by doing a few cheers.

4. Freddie works to keep the crowd entertained and tries to distract the opposing cheerleaders.

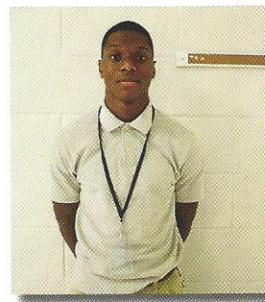

5. Freddie keeps the crowd entertained by scoring a few extra "points" with them and trying to make a three-point shot.

Our Mighty Cougar shows his spirit by being on the court in between games.

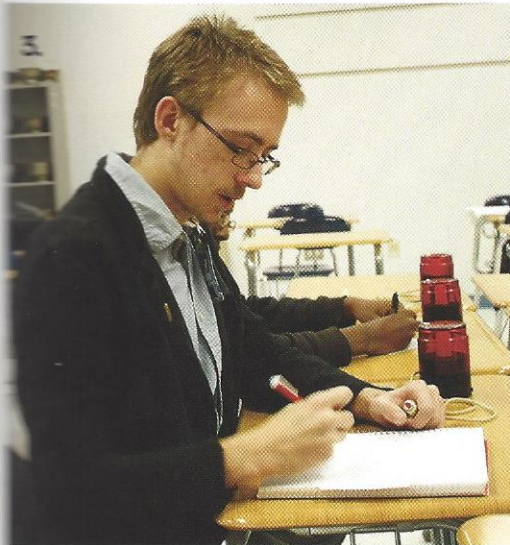

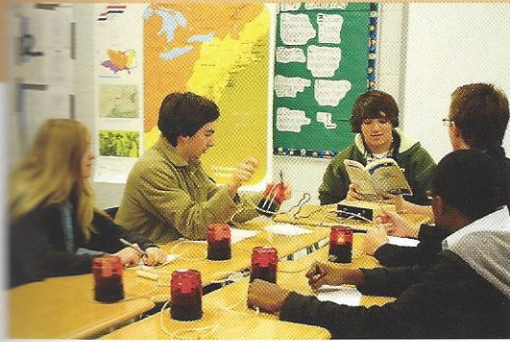

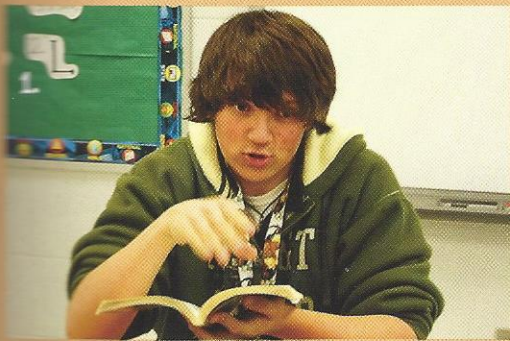

Freddie shows off his dance moves and boogies to the music at a basketball game.

Sophomore Tyler Williams-Stokes is our Cougar here at CCHS.

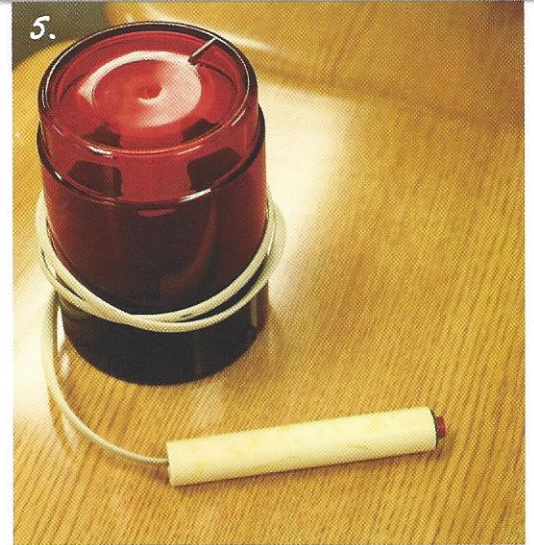

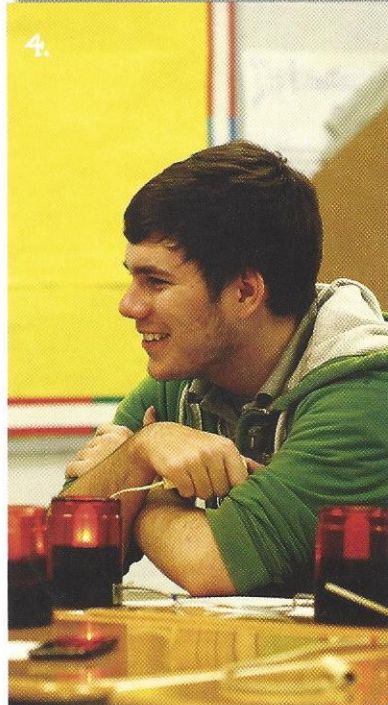

Freddie the Cougar walks around to greet some fans and encourages them to keep their spirits up!

Secure the Knowledge

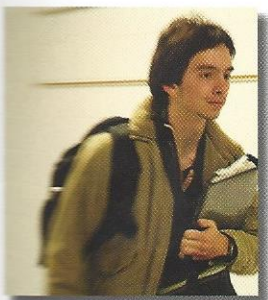

From practice to competition, the Academic Team is constantly studying random trivia to be well versed in as many areas as possible. The Academic Team competed in various competitions throughout the year, and placed second in the state at the Knowledge Master Competition in the fall. This was an impressive feat, considering the team lost a large amount of members from last year. The team consisted of about ten members in the 2011-2012 school year; this year it only had six. Senior Jakob Hahn agreed, "We have lost a lot of strong people, but with practice we will have a solid team." The team practices after school on Mondays and Thursdays in Mr. Smith's room. Even off of school grounds, the students test their knowledge by watching Jeopardy or brushing up with online encyclopedias.

1. Junior Clay Robertson recites an answer to a fellow member. Clay's favorite part of the Team is "getting answers right, because it feels great to know things"
2. The Academic Team focuses on practice as a member asks questions.
3. Senior Jakob Hahn rushes to finish a math problem.

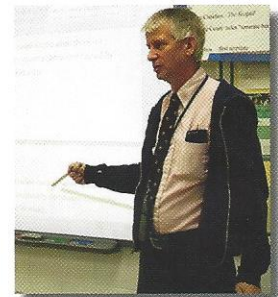

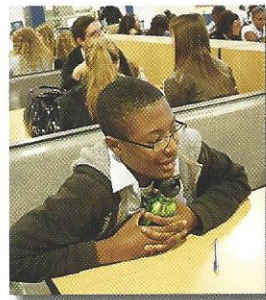

4. Junior Logan Anderson hesitantly answers a question at practice. "I love the Academic Team, and it is a true test of knowledge," he said.
5. The team has to have quick wits and quick reflexes so they can press the buttons to be able to respond to questions.

When asked about his likes about academic team, sophomore Peter Sanders retorted, "I like the random trivia."

Sophomore Haley Gregorich researches information for her English II class. "In academic team you learn new things, and I like that."

"I like expanding my knowledge with random facts," stated junior Hadrian Buckner as he casually chatted with his friends at lunch.

"We are small in number, but big in heart. We still need to grow," Mr. Smith explained. He hoped to recruit more members for the next school year.

Bottle the Buzz

The BluePrint is a great way to get the students of CCHS information about the events taking place around the school. The 2012-13 Newspaper Staff worked really hard to provide the students with accurate information. Editor Emily Stone says, "I think that BluePrint is better this year." The newspaper is a great way to get to know the people in the school and develop writing skills. "I want to be a novelist, so I believe that working on the newspaper will help me in that career choice," said junior Shyann Donoho. The BluePrint staff published the information they believed the students needed to, or wanted to know about. The BluePrint will always be rolling out the information, events, and feature articles, so be on the lookout for the next edition and see what you can learn.

3. Mrs. Cable assigns articles for the upcoming issues

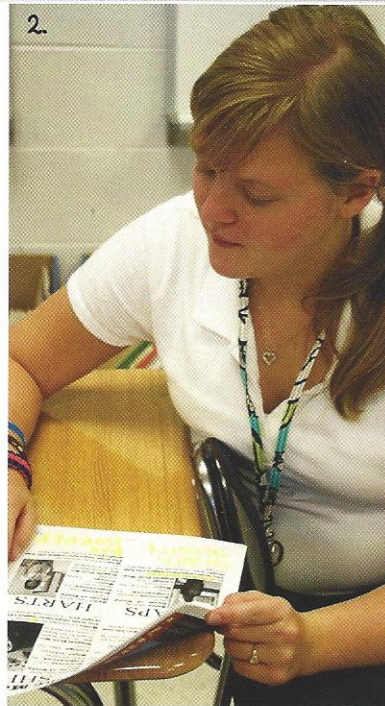

4. Junior Shyann Donoho and senior Joshua King listen intently to the article assignments for the December issue.

5. Senior Shelby Peters waits for a shock of inspiration so she can begin her article.

1.

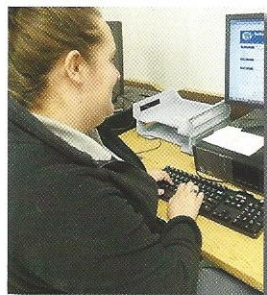

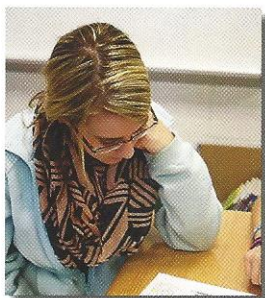

1. Second semester members of the newspaper staff discuss topics to cover in the upcoming February issue.

2.

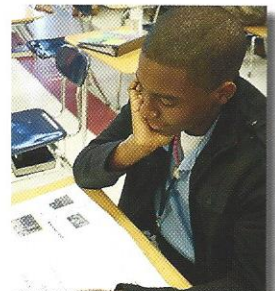

2. Editor in chief, junior Emily Stone, goes through a finished issue of the BluePrint and makes notes for improvement for the next issue.

Senior Ashley Lambert discusses the final outcome of the finished October issue with her editor.

"Newspaper helped me meet a lot of new people," says senior Carrie Cook. Carrie enjoyed the time spent improving her writing.

Junior Gracie Bowles pays close attention as Emily Stone, editor in chief, gives a lecture on proofreading.

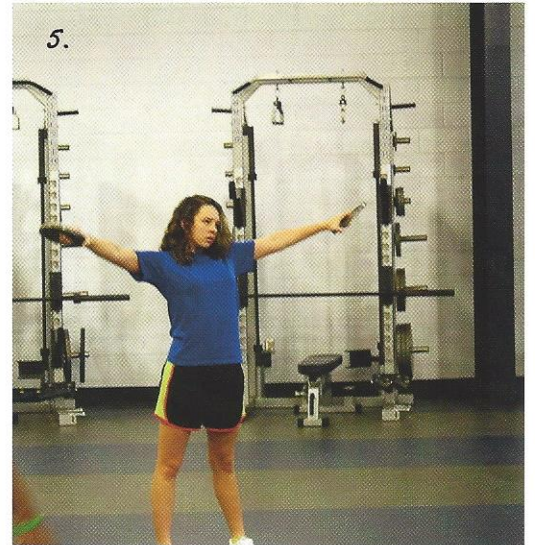

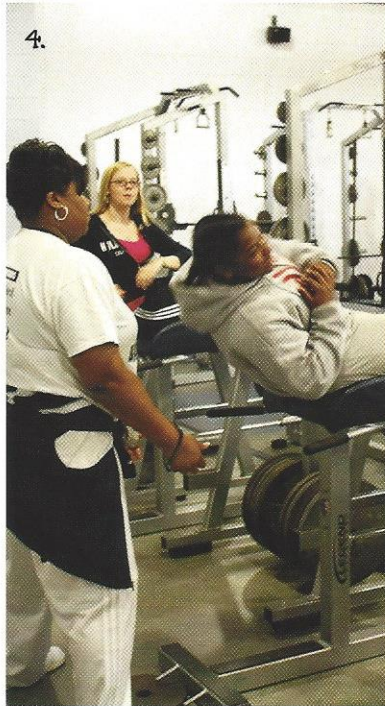

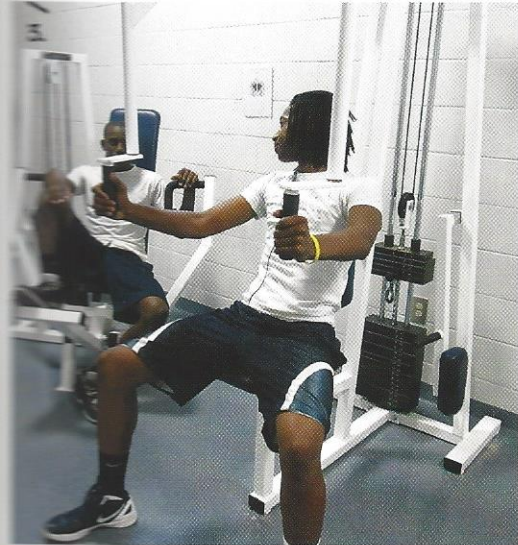

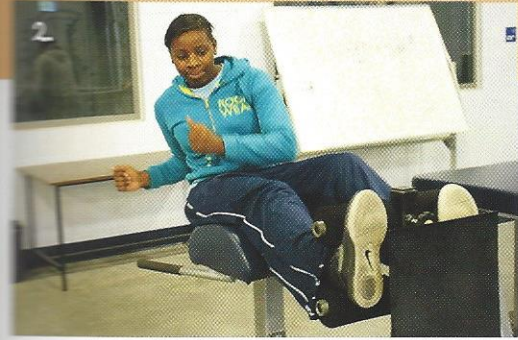

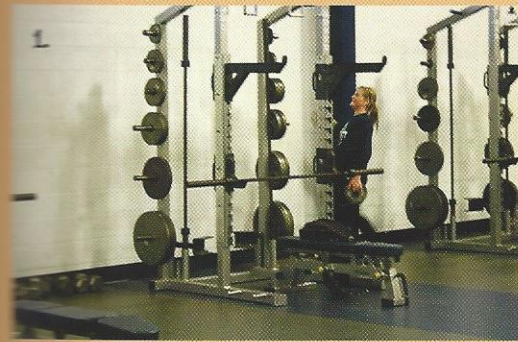

Junior Raymond Burke reviews the last issue to help improve the upcoming issue. Students were expected to reflect on their successes and mistakes.

Embrace the Strength

A great way to start the day is exercising. Many of the weightlifting students this year loved having it first period to kick off their mornings. "What I like most (about weightlifting) is it being first period; it gets my day started," replied senior Heather Varn.

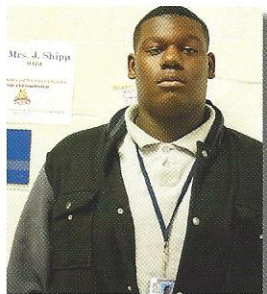

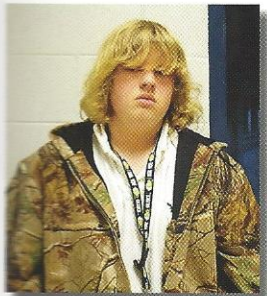

Weightlifting has kept the students fit and ready for sports. It takes a good amount of mental and physical determination to keep their minds clear and focused. Weightlifting was about staying in shape and working on physical strength. The students have built more than muscles. They have built friendships and special bonds among one another. Another reason students enjoyed being in this class is because they get to relax and clear their mind while working on their physical strength.

1. Senior Heather Varn evaluates the weight rack and tries to decide on which weight to pick.
2. Senior Terranda Green wastes no time on her workout and starts off with twist crunches.
3. Basketball players, senior Rashee Hodges and junior Jami Saunders chat while they enjoy the calmness of their weightlifting class.

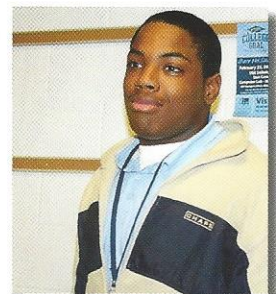

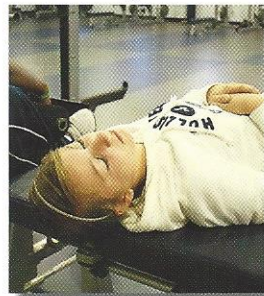

4. Freshman Tabitha Monroe works hard with the help of Coach Washington. Coach Washington was constantly encouraging her weightlifting class and pushing them to be even better.
5. Senior Megan Ballew works to build upper body muscles by doing free weight arm lifts.

Knowing that he has to work hard to earn his spot next year, freshman John Hutson says, "I joined weightlifting for football."

With a new season fast approaching, sophomore Kenyon Richardson says, "weightlifting helps me a lot with building muscle."

After a strenuous workout, sophomore Teagan Crosby relaxes before moving on to her next set of reps.

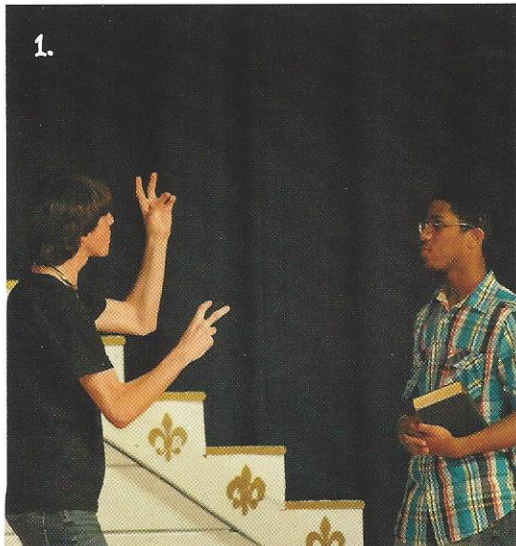

"I joined weightlifting so I could get stronger for football season," sophomore Jacob Cox explains.

Absorb the Act

To those involved, drama has been a great experience. This program has helped students improve upon their acting skills. "It's a great stress reliever and gives us an opportunity to express ourselves," sophomore Summer Standiford shares. Mrs. Gantt motivates her students to push themselves to be the best they can be. Drama is definitely recommended to those who are interested. "You get in touch with your inner feelings," as said by sophomore Hunter Rizer. The singing and acting components of Drama are essential to a successful production. Thankfully, our students possess the skills to present a great show and leave us in awe.

1. Sophomore Hunter Rizer and junior Leon Williams practice acting out scenes from their recent play. Drama members rehearsed over and over until they knew their lines word for word.

2.

2. Freshman Dillon Coggins acts out his ditzy role as a rapper in the remake of A Christmas Carol.

4.

3. Sophomore Summer Standiford uses her acting skills to present this dramatic scene. She really gets into her character on stage.

4. Sophomore Hunter Rizer and freshman Dillon Coggins act as Alcott's in "Little Women." Don't they look comfortable?

"The Colleton County Children's Theater really inspired me and got me interested in acting," said sophomore Hunter Rizer.

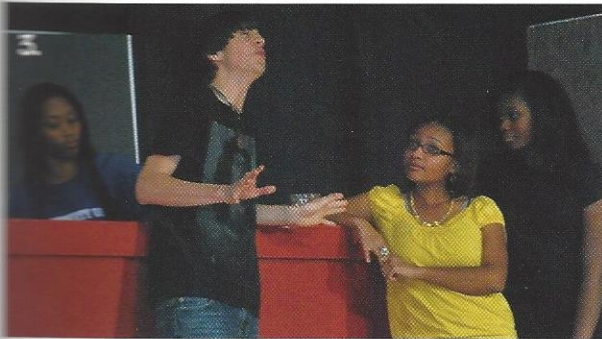

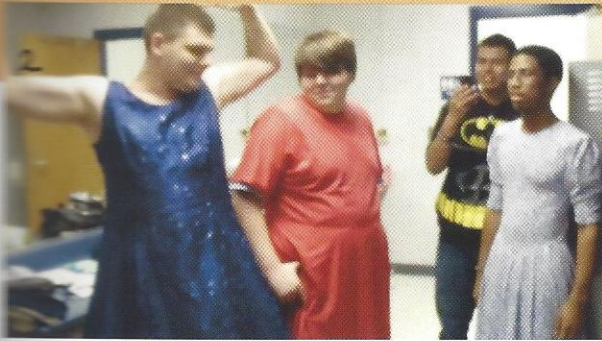

"Knowing that even if I go out there and completely mess up, I know I did my best and did what I love," senior Chardea Barnes shared.

"I don't get nervous. In life, you're playing the role of yourself, and it's no different from being another character," said junior Brittany Sanders.

"To calm my nerves I remember that it's all for fun and I shouldn't take myself too seriously," sophomore Summer Standiford revealed.

1. Junior Jared Hess and sophomore Hunter Rizer work together to present a modern day representation of A Christmas Carol.

2. Backstage antics between junior Jared Hess, freshman Dillon Giggins, and junior Leon Williams created a great atmosphere of camaraderie and fun.

3. Senior Chardea Barnes, sophomore Hunter Rizer, and juniors Madison Blackwell and Kirkland Bennett ponder Shakespeare. The students who had this opportunity were very interested in performing Shakespeare's work.

4. Junior Brooke Edwards plays the assistant director during a performance of the fall play, "Just Another High School Play," while junior Kayla Delooze plays the stage manager.

 Bottom- Junior Brittany Sanders, junior Madison Blackwell, freshman Dillon Giggins

"I've always liked to watch plays and Broadway. Drama definitely gives you interaction," junior Madison Blackwell said.

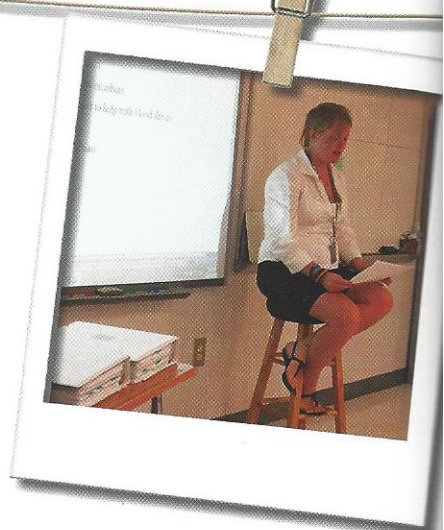

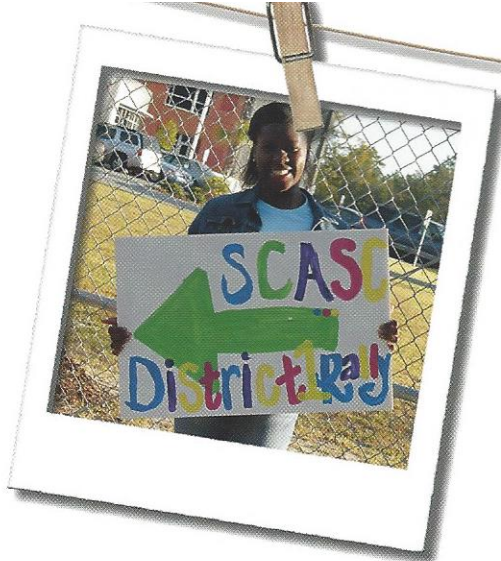

Junior Kayla Delooze shared, "Drama helps me when I have to do a presentation and has been a great way to make friends."

"Drama gives me an outlet to express myself," junior Leon Williams explained.

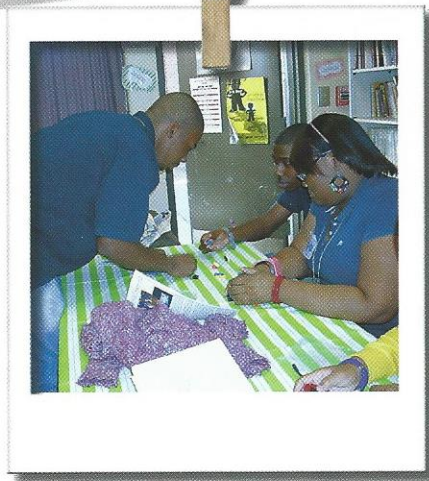

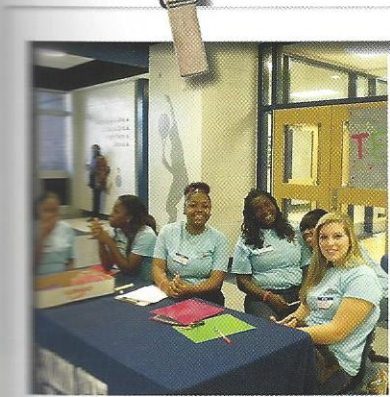

"Keeping a positive attitude really helps with pre-stage nerves," junior Brooke Edwards said.

1. Sophomore Teagan Crosby dances to an energizer at the annual District Rally. Teagan said, "My favorite thing about District Rally was meeting new people. I also enjoyed the energizers and getting people pumped up."

2. Junior Emily Stone helps lead the energizer "Baby Shark" at the District One Rally.

3. Sophomore Alexis Keen walks outside to go greet other schools before District Rally. One of the best parts of District Rally was, "going to all the classes, and meeting new people."

4. Senior Keiosha Bingley sings at the District One Rally. "What I enjoy most about performing is the reaction I get from the crowd and especially when that person doesn't know me. At District Rally, people that were there, we met for the first time, and it was great leaving a lasting impression on them."

5. Juniors Ansley Hiers and Thomas Dessoye take a break in between work-shops during the District One Rally.

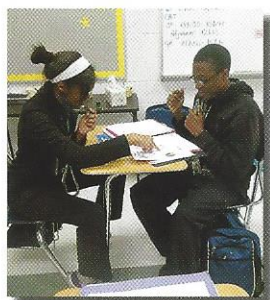

6. Seniors Monique Thomas and Rainie Gordon sign in students at the District One Rally.

7. Seniors Katelyn Howe, and Stewart Bailey give senior Kyla Floyd a birthday cake during lunch at the District One Rally. "I feel we impact the school by setting positive examples for others to follow," stated Katelyn.

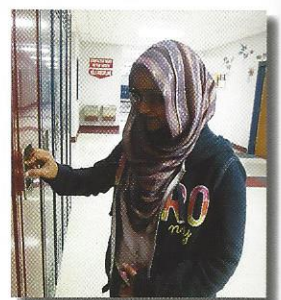

"My favorite event is the Special Olympics because you help the participants and make them feel like they're just as special as everyone else," said junior Leon Williams.

Junior Kirkland Bennett helps a friend with some class work. "I plan to continue my membership in Student Council," stated Kirkland.

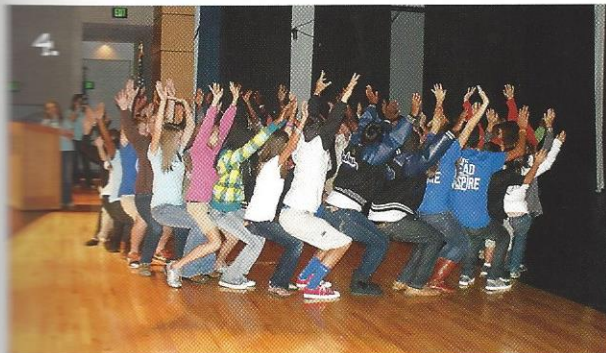

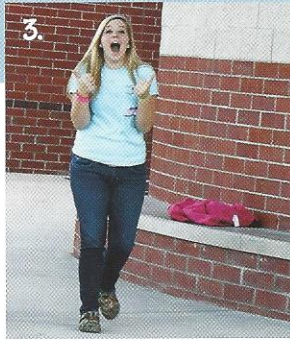

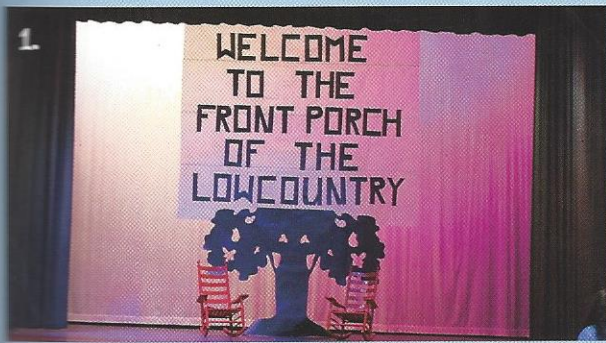

Junior Donald Rizer sits at lunch and laughs with a friend. "We enjoy doing things positively through community service, school spirit, and creating new leaders."

Sophomore Syeda Madiha opens her locker and adds, "My favorite energizer is 'Hey Burrito.' It gets me energized."

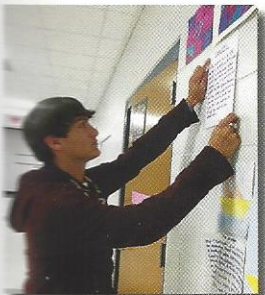

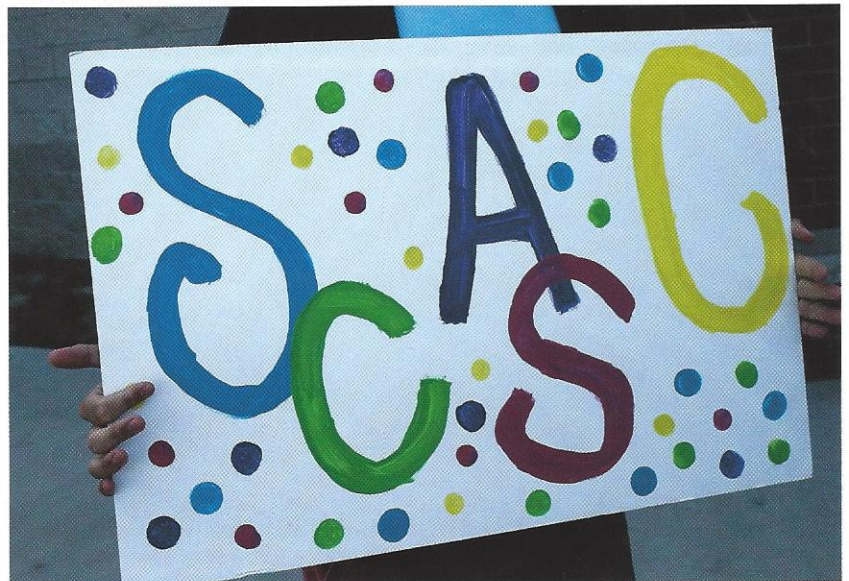

Trap the Energy

"SC is Red Hot, SC is Red Hot! SC is R-E-D, red H-O-T, hot! Once we start we can't be stopped. SC is red hot!" Our student council at CCHS recited this energizer before meetings. Student Council has over 100 members who work hard to be involved in not only school activities, but also activities within the community. Our seniors have started the new tradition of selling the Pulsera bracelets for children in Nicaragua. Senior Anna Davis explains, "I saw the video through Mrs. Clark's spanish class. The children in an orphanage create the bracelets. Then the organization sends the bracelets off to different places. We sell them then the money goes back to the kids at the orphanage." The CCHS Student Council also sponsored toy drives, made holiday cards for soldiers overseas, and volunteered at the animal shelter.

1. "Welcome to the Front Porch of the LowCountry" was the sign at the District One Rally, which was thought of and put together by our Student Council and advisors.
2. Senior Tieshia Walker holds the door open to welcome in new students for the District One Rally.
3. Senior Alana Peets ecstatically greets the other students as they enter the District One Rally at Colleton County High School.
4. The Student Council comes together for a fun game, led by junior Hannah Houck before the classes are dismissed to go to their class meetings.

Freshman Timothy, "Tim," Hickman hangs a poster for Student Council. "I'm glad to be in Student Council," he added.

"My sister introduced me to student council and ever since then, I've been hooked," stated freshman Macie McCaskill

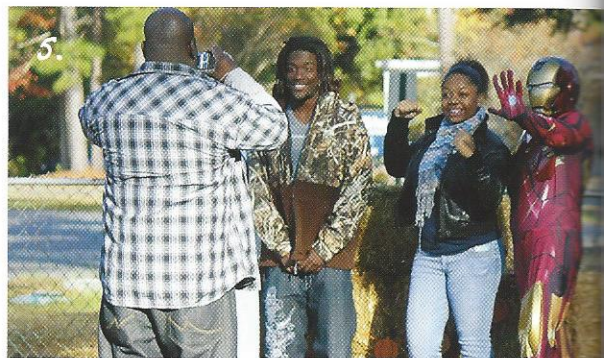

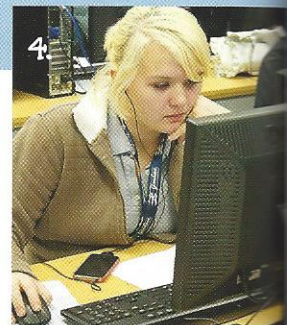

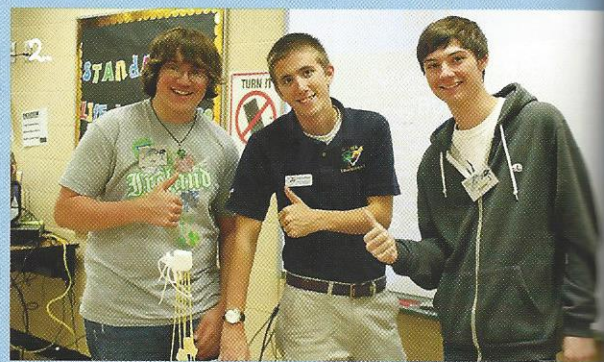

"I joined student council because I love the activities they did my 9th grade year, and I wanted to have a say so," said senior Nichole Williams.

Sophomore Krystal Reed-Blake stated, "I joined Student Council because I like getting involved with the community and helping my school."

Seize the Peak

From serious business to competitions, Future Business Leaders of America was on the move. Being in the business field is hard work. With technology and business ethics moving so fast, FBLA members have strove to learn and lead. "I joined FBLA to get hands on business experience for after graduation," said senior Rainie Gordon. FBLA not only helped its students, it has reached out to the community each year. "The community service projects we do locally gives a sense of pride to FBLA and ourselves," said senior Samantha Light. FBLA had a big surprise for senior Da-Quanda Magwood. From our small town to San Antonio Texas, she went! She placed herself right into nationals. Having an experience like that was a once in a lifetime opportunity. This was our 2012-2013 FBLA who Reached the Peak.

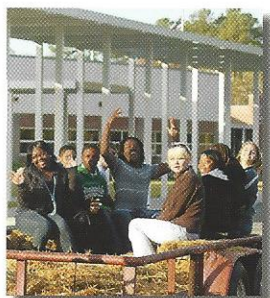

1. Seniors Paris Polite, Shakema Bennett, and Ivory Jenkins take a break while helping out at the Fall Festival.

2. Juniors Clay Robertson and Brantley Taylor are happy to take a picture with the South Carolina FBLA State President during District Rally.

3. While appearing happy and excited, Senior Da-Quanda Magwood takes a picture with a cowboy on one of her FBLA trips. What she enjoys most about FBLA is competitions and traveling. "Last year I made it to nationals and got to go to San Antonio, Texas," says Da-Quanda.

4. Senior Samantha Light progressively works on her District Rally project during computer class.

5. Seniors Calvin Johnson and Rainie Gordon enjoy helping their community on FBLA trips.

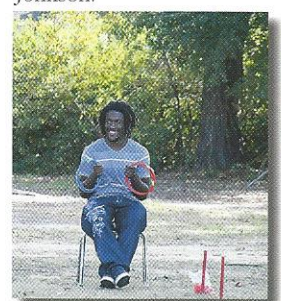

Some enthusiastic FBLA members ride on the trailer while having fun at FHES during their Fall Festival.

While participating in an FBLA event at Forest Hills Elementary, senior Shakema Bennett helps paint the faces of the students.

Senior Paris Polite and junior Jamie Hiott stand in front of a jumping castle while helping out at the Fall Festival.

"I like going to competition and competing. Also spending time with the members," stated senior Calvin Johnson.

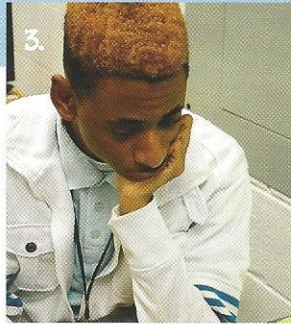

Advancing with Success

Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) was bound to educate the willing in major business ethics and marketing.

Businesses grow, big or small, and when expansion is put in front of you, you'll need to know how to market with great intelligence. "Being in DECA prepares you for the real life business world," said junior Chandler Stone. Students at Colleton County High School are recruited into DECA in many different ways. From the cookie sales sponsored by DECA, to friends who told friends, this club was big. "I think DECA is very well known in our school," said senior Douglas Rhodes. With DECA moving for over 60 years, our students were some of the 10 million who have chosen to make business their primary focus in high school.

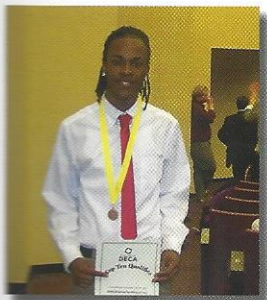

1. This group of DECA members proudly display the certificate that they received at one of their DECA events.

2. Junior Chandler Stone is the DECA President. "Because I am a business major, being involved in DECA will prepare me for real-life situations."

3. Senior Reginald Clark said, "My favorite thing about DECA is going on all the trips and meeting new people."

4. Seniors Reginald Clark, Sean Koger, Donte Moss, Douglas Rhodes, and Ontario Simmons have fun together while hanging out at one of their DECA events.

5. Senior Sarah Byrd and juniors Chandler Stone and Brooke Edwards are all smiles at an important competition.

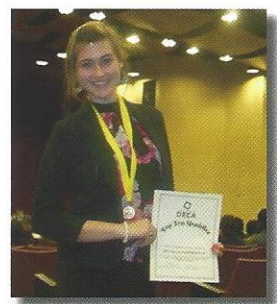

"I joined DECA because I heard about the trips, but when I got into it I actually learned about management and job interviews," explained senior Ontario Simmons.

When senior Betsy Phillips got her certificate she said, "it made me respect my teacher a little bit more for everything he helped me with."

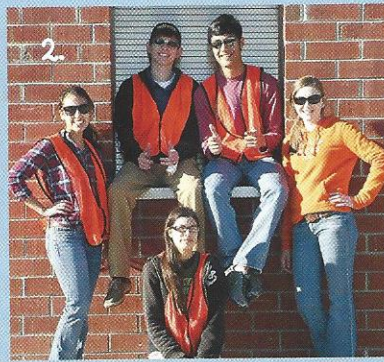

"In DECA we compete by doing an online business term," stated Julia Petrolawicz.

"I like DECA because it's a fun opportunity to meet people that are actually in the business world," said Junior Brooke Edwards

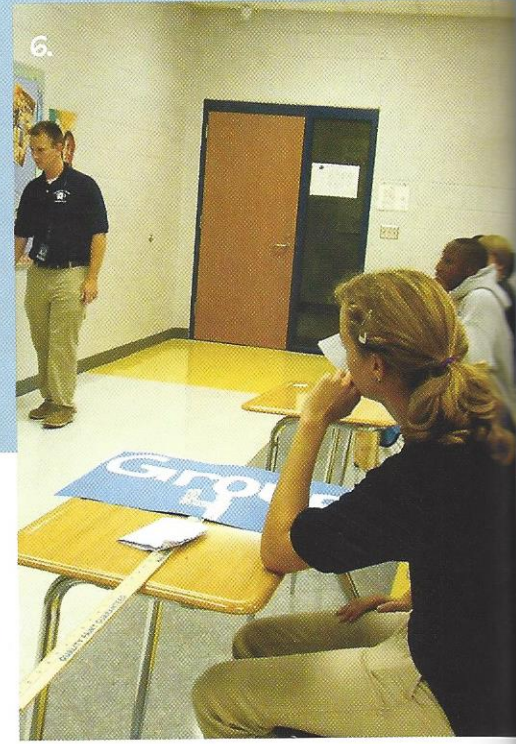

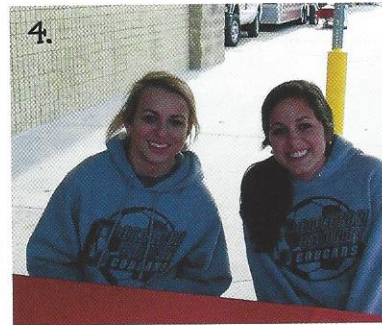

1. Juniors Halie West, Leon Williams, and Bianca Epps take donations for the animal shelter. The students successfully helped to raise over $700 at the Wal-Mart Adopt-a-Thon to support Friends of Colleton County Animal Shelter.

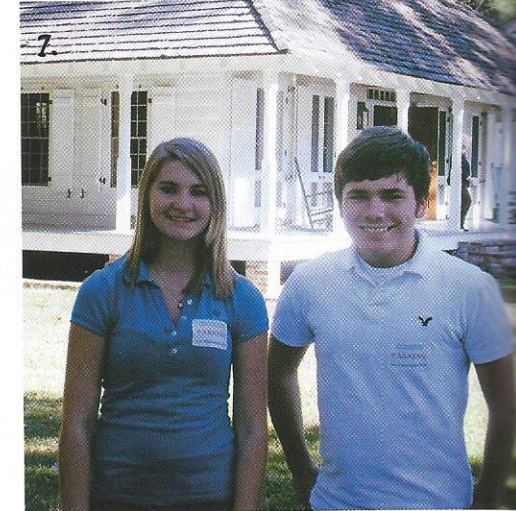

2. NHS members and seniors (from left to right) Alondra DeSantiago, Austin Hollis, Rebecca Carter, and Sierra Defoor take part in one of the many adopt a highway projects offered throughout the year.

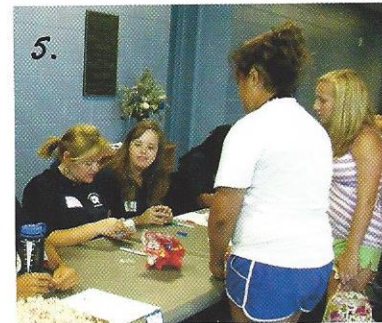

3. Seniors Rebecca Carter and Alana Peets worked as student mentors over the summer for the freshmen orientation. Rebecca Carter said, "I love being in NHS for the community." The seniors spent all day helping freshmen learn the layout of the high school.

4. Juniors Ansley Hiers and Adrienne Land also help take donations at Wal-Mart for the Colleton County Animal Shelter. This community service has quickly become a favorite among many of the NHS members.

5. Senior Caitlin Spires and Miranda Saunders sign freshmen students in at their orientation over the summer. Many NHS students were chosen as Cougar Mentors for the incoming freshman class.

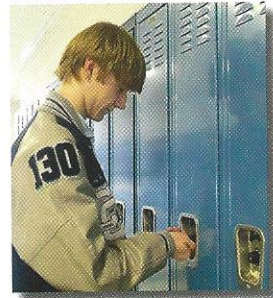

6. NHS advisor, Mr. Cable, leads a lecture to the incoming freshmen as the NHS members of the Cougar mentoring program look on. NHS students were later paired with a freshmen advisory.

7. Juniors Logan Anderson and Jamie Hiott volunteer at a local plantation to give tours to guests. Jamie Hiott said that she became interested in NHS because of her family and their support of the program.

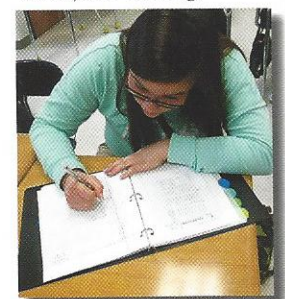

Junior Chelsey Dewitt said, "I love being in NHS because it is an important thing to be in to help with volunteering."

"I love being in NHS because I love wrapping the presents during Christmas and wanted to help the community" says senior William Hood.

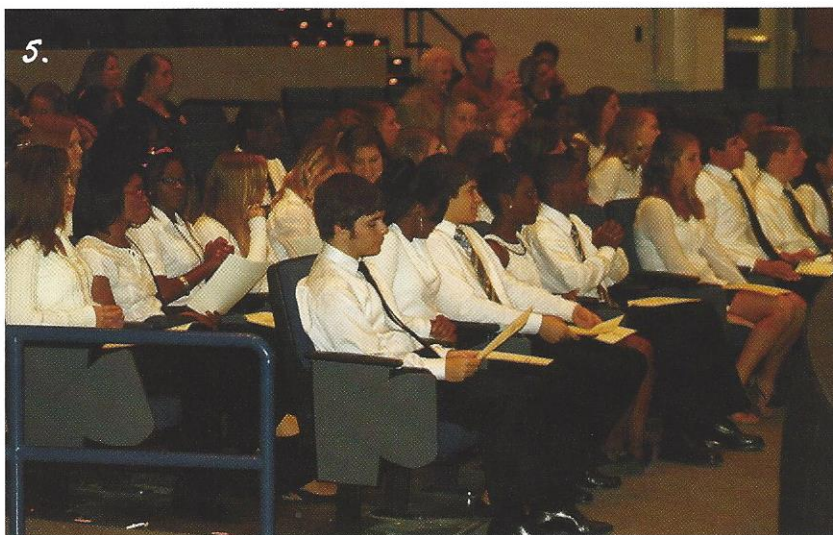

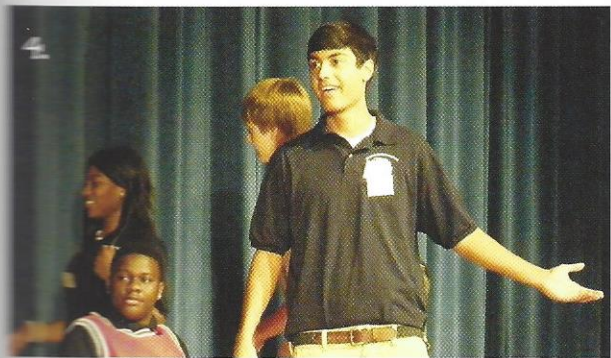

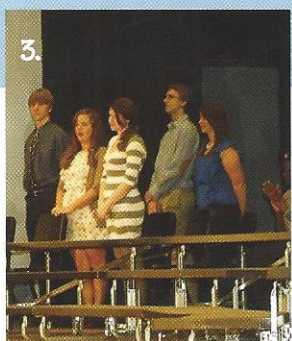

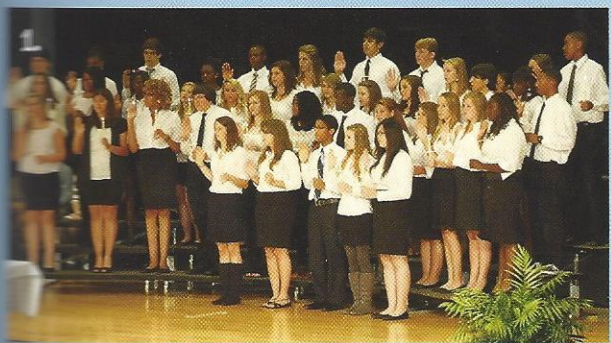

Senior Sarah Craven said, "I recommend NHS to anyone interested in helping the community. That was one of my motives for joining."

Amber Reeves, a senior, says, "The best part about being in NHS is being able to do volunteer work special olympics, blood drives, and tutoring."

Gaining the Hours

National Honor Society is a prestigious and encouraging organization to be involved with because the National Honor Society takes part in a lot of very inspiring community service projects. "There is a lot of tutoring," Amber Reeves said. It is also important because you can participate in many rewarding activities throughout the year. Senior Erica Concepcion says, "the best part about being in NHS is helping the community." Being a part of so many activities and events takes teamwork and partnership to get things done. National Honor Society is a great opportunity for juniors and seniors to participate in during their time at CCHS. Participation in National Honor Society gives its members a chance to show the community that its young people care about their town.

1. The 2012 inductees recite the pledge for the National Honor Society.

2. National Honor Society president, senior Alondra DeSantiago lights the first candle of the ceremony. Each candle represented an ideal of the honor society that all members should strive to uphold.

3. The Officers explain their roles in NHS and elaborate on the true meaning of NHS: scholarship, leadership, and knowledge.

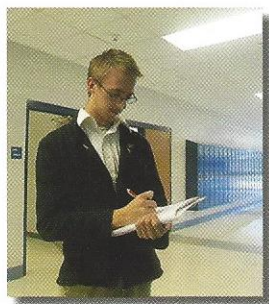

4. Senior Jared O'quinn participates in a skit performed during the summer freshman orientation. Jared was the example of what NOT to do during class time.

5. The 2012 inductees into the National Honor Society listen intently to the enlightening and motivating speech made by the guest speaker at induction.

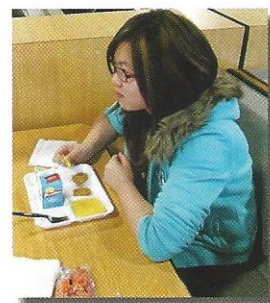

Senior Haley Rowe says that she became interested in NHS to, "help the community," and she "loves helping with the adopt a highway."

Jakob Hahn, a senior, said that he joined NHS his junior year and believes that, "if you join, you should join to help the community not just to look good on an application."

Senior Erica Concepcion thinks about what she can do for the next NHS meeting.

Junior Tina Zhou says, 'I got interested in NHS because of the community and the animal shelter.'

Capture the Memories

As a high school student, prom is one of the biggest highlights of the year. Have you ever wondered who is responsible for putting prom together? Well, that would be the juniors and seniors who are involved with Prom Committee. They, along with their advisor, Mrs. Culler, handpick the theme, put together the props, and plan everything to make sure that prom is a night to remember. This year, senior Haley Rowe wants to "make prom enjoyable for everyone." The week of prom, the students are required to work over fifteen hours to prepare for the night. The committee works hard to make sure the prom goes as planned. When you are enjoying prom, make sure to give the Prom Committee a silent "thank you."

5. The Committee votes on centerpieces and their DJ of choice for the upcoming event. The theme this year was "Don't Rock the Boat," a play on words featuring a cruise ship-themed night.

1. "Being apart of Prom Committee, you have to have patience because you have to work really hard and everything is not going to work out the way you want it to," explained junior Samantha Helmey.

2. "I love how everyone on the Prom Committee can come together and have a great time," said junior Chandler Stone.

3. This is junior Bianca's Epps first time ever being a part of a group like the Prom Committee, and she believes it will be a great new experience.

4. Junior Logan Anderson enjoys being so involved with the school. "Prom Committee gives me the chance to express the ideas I have for to make prom more enjoyable for everyone."

"Leadership is very important to have when being on Prom Committee because you have to lead certain tasks," said senior Katherine Judy.

Junior Brittany Sanders admits to being a newbie on the Committee.

"Decorating is the best part of Prom Committee, because it's fun," explained junior Felicitas Guillen.

Junior Chelsey Dewitt enjoys her lunch with friends. She looks forward to her first year on prom committee.

Bag the Blood

The Red Cross Youth is important because it is a way to learn how to help people. "The reason why I joined was because I thought that it would be fun to do community service with my friends and to help people become aware of how important blood donations are," says junior Ricardo Paez. Sophomore Zaria Gantt says she gets nervous around needles. "I don't freak out or anything, but I get a little tense. I try not to think about it or have someone there to make me laugh," says Zaria. Ricardo and Zaria enjoy being in Red Cross. Overall Red Cross is a great club to get involved with the community and help people understand the purpose of helping others out when they need it.

1. Senior Sean Koger relaxes while donates blood for the first time.

2. Senior Joseph Mandra recovers from giving blood with a cold soda

3. Seniors December Bishop, Samantha Hudson, and Alexandria McLauchlin are excited about giving blood.

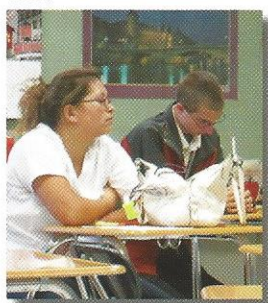

4. Senior Caitlyn Spires prepares herself before she donates blood for the community.

5. Sophomore Jennifer Itaralde, and juniors Lindsey Reynolds and Monaisha Allen are working the front table at the schools annual Red Cross Blood Drive. Monaisha said, "I'd volunteer again. I'm helping others and doing something good."

Senior Sarah Byrd sits at lunch, sporting her Cougar Mentor t-shirt.

The Red Cross seniors are listening to their teacher lecturing.

Senior December Bishop is helping a new donor learn about giving blood.

1. Senior Shelby Peters aids fellow seniors, Alana Peets and Julia Owans in a presentation for class. "HOSA is a great organization. My favorite event is Pink Out because it helps spread breast cancer awareness."

2. Senior Michaela Barnes is the HOSA historian. Michaela helps put the scrapbook together and writes notes at meetings. "HOSA is a big part of our school. I've been in it for four years."

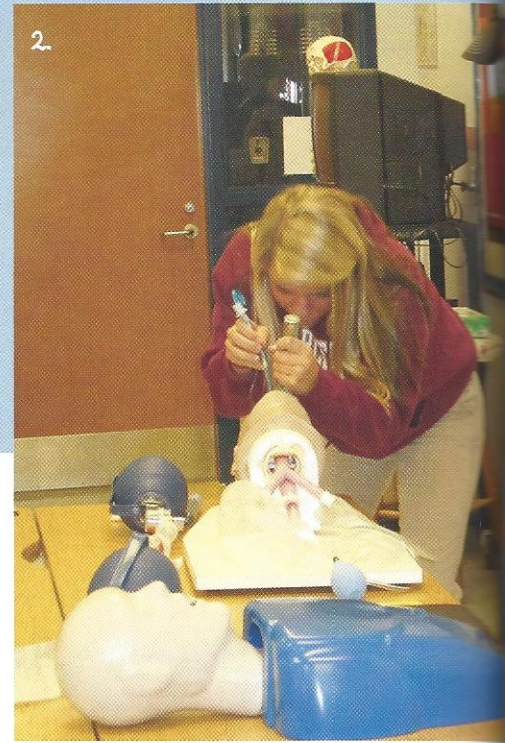

3. HOSA members take a field trip to further learn about their future adventures in healthcare.

4. Senior Erica Concepcion gives back to her community as she works hard at Colleton County Medical Center moving the medical equipment.

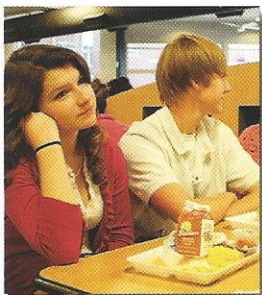

5. Senior December Bishop organizes linens during her clinical time at the local hospital.

6. Seniors Austin Hollis and Sylvester Bowman keep smiles on their faces despite carrying waste bags for their clinical duties.

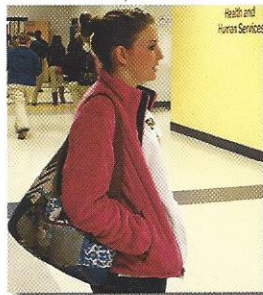

7. Seniors Julia Owans and Austin Hollis promote Colleton County High School's HOSA group during HOSA week.

"My friend convinced me to join HOSA. I love going to meetings," said senior William Hood. "HOSA helps the community raise awareness."

"HOSA has prepared me for the future. I feel like I have learned a lot," responded senior Rebecca Carter. Rebecca took part in the clinicals class, as well.

Junior Presley Holt is a new member of HOSA. "In our meetings, everyone has their opinions heard, and I think that helps make HOSA a success."

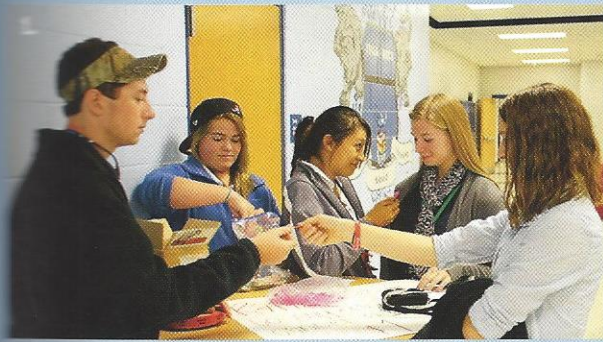

"My favorite HOSA event is Pink Out!" said senior Alana Peets. Alana explained how HOSA was a good way to begin your health career path.

Gain Awareness

Being aware in this time of day was a must. HOSA, the Health Occupations Students of America, was dedicated to keeping students as well as the community aware of important events and disasters. HOSA sponsored many events that went on in Colleton County High School. "I would have to say that the breast cancer fundraiser is my favorite event," said junior Samantha Helmey. The breast cancer fundraiser isn't the only thing HOSA sponsors. Pink Out, March of Dimes, and Pennies for Patients are just a few of the events they hosted. By being in HOSA, you could also further your drive for a career in both health and human services. "Being in HOSA has helped me choose which health career path I want to follow," said sophomore Hayden Reynolds. HOSA contributed to helping students that were truly inspired by the informative health career. "HOSA will look great on my college application," said senior Julia Owans.

1. Sophomore Hayden Reynolds helps hand out stickers for a school fundraiser. Hayden felt like he was better prepared for college because he joined HOSA. "Others should join HOSA if they want to go into the health field. It expanded my leadership skills."

2. Seniors Ashley Rivers and MaHallie Martin tidy up the room and make beds for their clinical classes.

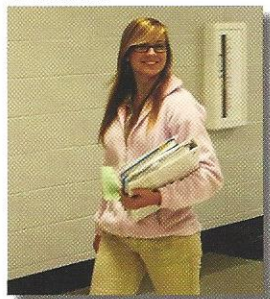

3. Seniors Micheala Barns, Austin Hollis, and Chelsea Nicholson begin their long morning of clinicals.

4. The students of HOSA host the annual 'Pink Out'. Breast cancer awareness posters were found around every corner, and the students were allowed to wear their favorite pink shirts to school.

"You gain basic skills in HOSA. It is my first year, and I can't wait to participate in CERT," explained senior Alondra Desantiago.

Junior Samantha Helmey is planning on pursuing a career in the medical field. "HOSA is important because it spreads awareness."

Junior Jordyn Litchfield has been an eager member of HOSA for two years. "HOSA will help with my state leadership," Jordyn replied.

"I feel like HOSA is a very important part of our school because HHS is a popular house for medical majors," junior Adrienne Land added.

Junior Lauren Astin stands outside of her Spanish III class talking to junior Donald Rizer about upcoming events.

Junior Caitlin James completes a worksheet in her child development class.

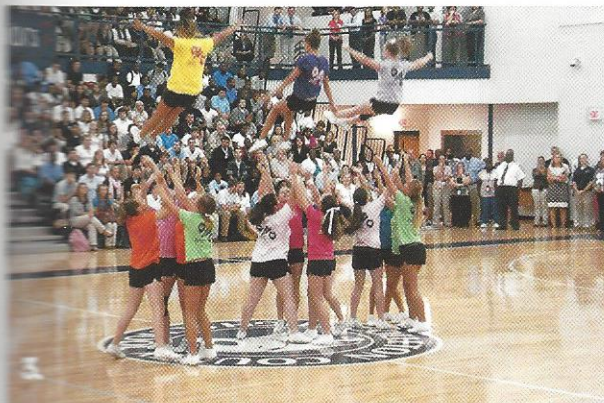

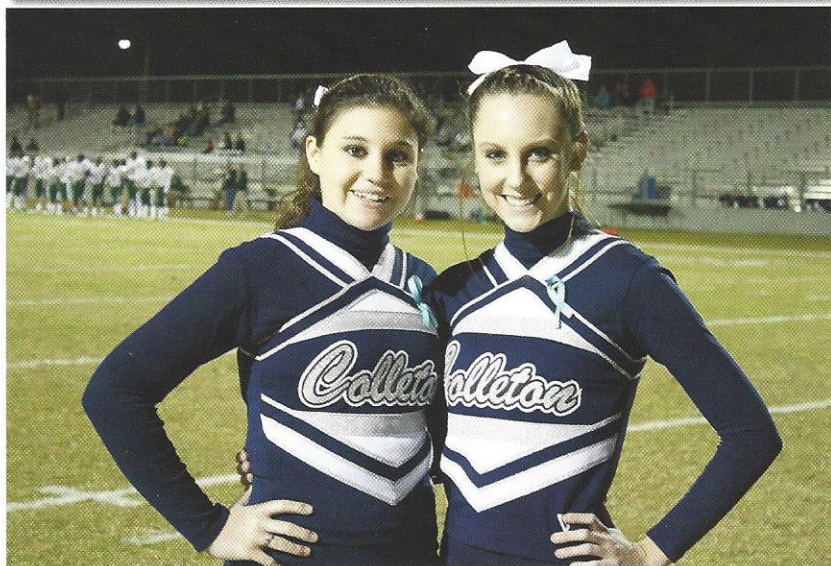

Seize the Spirit

The cheerleaders have cheered their hardest for every varsity football and basketball game. They helped create posters for breast cancer awareness and performed several dance routines for the pep rallies. Their coaches worked together to teach the cheerleaders their routines. Senior Co-Captain MaHallie Martin said, "I think they work very hard to make us look good because they believe in us." Sophomore Erika Sheffield said, "The best part of cheerleading is being a flyer and being tossed in the air." Overall, the cheerleaders and the coaches tried their hardest to keep up the school spirit and support our teams.

1. Sophomore Teagan Crosby flies high in a stunt during a Friday night football game.
2. The cheerleaders form a tunnel with the students as the Cougars run onto the field.

Catch the Win

The new coach worked the boys harder than they had ever worked before. With improvement evident, the team pushed each other to new heights. Coach Collins stated, "CANEI: Constant and Never Ending Improvement. It's on the back of our coaches' hats and on the wall in the weight room. Our first practice we did stretched for 45 minutes. They have really come a long way and put a lot of effort into working." As the season progressed, our boys showed off their hard work by never giving up and always doing their best. Once the season finished, our boys and coaches were proud of all the hard work.

Net the Set

This season, senior Amber Reeves and junior Jordan Litchfield led the volleyball team through a tough line-up. The team played rival schools such as Summerville, Cane Bay, Fort Dorchester, and Wade Hampton. Going to camps and sponsoring clinics, the girls worked over the summer to better themselves and work on their skills. Co-Captain Amber Reeves stated, "Our team worked very hard throughout the season. We dedicated our summer and hours after school. Our dedication paid off, and we had a fairly successful season. I'll miss my team next year." Through all of the sweat and tears, the volleyball team ended with a 10-13 record; their best in years.

Grab the Victory

This season, the J.V. Football team did their best because a new member was added to the team. Chris Collins, Colleton County High School's new head football coach, helped lead our team to victory. He taught the players new plays, changed their attitudes, and worked them harder. Junior Thomas Dessoie #30 quoted, "Coach is a nice guy and he believes in us." Another player, junior Leonard Martin #29, stated, "I like him. He's going to get us there. I feel like he's doing his job pretty good." During the season, they played many teams and came through with some victories. Even though they did well with the new coach, they still have some skills on which to work. As long as they continue to work hard and keep their spirits up, our school will be proud to call them Cougars.

1. Junior Marcus Spell #6 and junior Leonard Martin # 29
2. Sophomore Jykell Young # 27
3. Sophomore Cullen Smith # 56, junior Rakeem Jones # 30, sophomore Kaelin Calloway # 33, and junior Malik Fields # 73
4. Junior Larkin Meadows # 80
5. Junior Thomas Dessoie # 30

The crowd roars while the team huddles together before the next play to pump up the team's spirits and get their heads in the game. The CCHS junior varsity home games were always filled to the brim with enthusiastic students and fans.

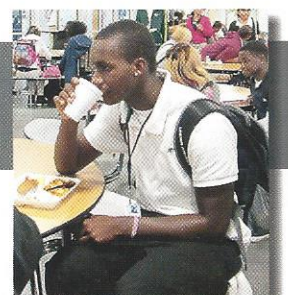

Senior Traequan Shaw makes a crazy face as he eats lunch.

Freshman Nicholas Salley smiles as he works on his writing assignment.

Freshman Norman Hand drinks his tea as he converses with his friends.

Defeat the Season

The Colleton County Cougars JV volleyball team started their season off strong, just like they ended. All the girls played to their potential every game. They came up short sometimes, but that only helped them become closer as a team. Freshman Kynasia Shider added, "We did good as a team. We were like a family. Overall it was a good season." The student body showed excellent support of our JV Cougars, and that pushed the team to do their best. When the season came to an end, the girls were proud of all of their achievements. With an overall record of 12 and 7, the JV Cougars fought in honor of their school. With next year's season in sight, the team's overall improvement begins now.

1. Sophomore Tatyana Brown-Gadsden #27
2. Sophomore Taylor Shuman #12
3. Sophomore Sierra Graves #24
4. Freshman Haley Varn #6
5. Freshman Brianna Creel #11 and sophomore Hannah Perritte #9

After a long, tough game, the JV Cougars shake hands with the opposing team. Freshman Jena McGuire said, "We played our best as a team, and we always kept our heads up."

Sophomore Hannah Perritte laughs at lunch as she talks to her friends.

Freshman Crystal Saunders leans on the wall as she waits on her friend.

Freshman Giara Wallace laughs and associates with her friends between classes.

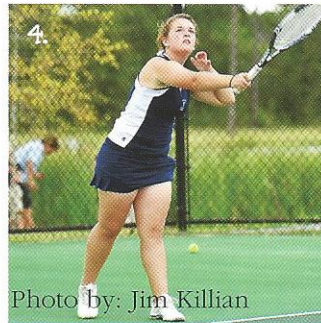

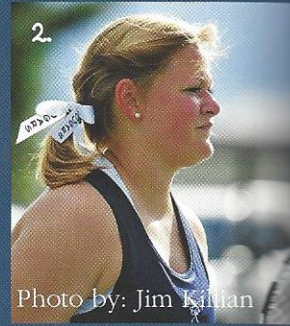

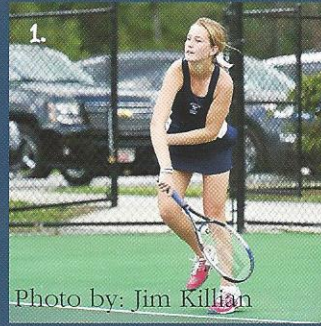

Freshman Kynasia Shider stares at the lunch line waiting on the line to go down.

Clutch the Racket

Love. 10-love. 30-love. 40-love. We have a winner! The girls' tennis team brought home many victories as individuals, as well as a team. The tennis team has become a flourishing program over the years. "Tennis is a lot of fun. I like how it's one on one but you have a team to support you," stated junior Victoria Sineath. Senior Kyla Floyd led our tennis team by winning the most "single" matches. Sophomores Megan Mitchell and Kyla Floyd worked together to win the most "doubles." The girls worked their hardest to come home with a winning season. Individually, the members were successful with their matches, but the team had an overall record of 2 and 9. With the team rising in numbers and skills, our girls are looking forward to upcoming seasons.

- 4. Junior Victoria Sineath
- 5. Senior Kyla Floyd
- 6. Sophomore Megan Mitchell is preparing to send the ball back to her opposing player. "I would rather play doubles. I like having someone else on the court with me," stated Megan.

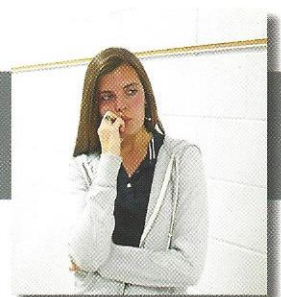

Junior Chandler Stone is working on a project for a final grade in English IV.

Junior Shyann Donoho is listening to directions to learn a new serve.

Carlyle Griffin, an eighth grader at Colleton County Middle School, is trying her best to win the match.

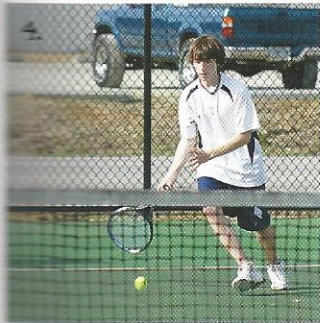

Senior Kyla Floyd is thinking of new ideas to propose to Student Council.

Pocket the Ace

Racket in hand, the boys did their best as they faced some of the school's top rivals. Some players have a desire to play tennis in college. "What benefits me in tennis is having an opportunity to make new friends," freshman Ian O'Brien stated. For some athletes, tennis is a great way to relieve stress, but all participants find that tennis keeps them very fit. Even though they had a small team, they hoped that their success would encourage others to join. Tennis was a very competitive sport that motivated players to do their best. The team practices were beneficial for strategy planning and ace-making. The boys of the tennis team stepped up to represent their school, and they still get to do what they love.

6. Freshman Cody Coursen returns the ball after the serve. "I like tennis because it helps me with my strength and my social skills," Cody explained.

CCMS student Joey Brunson said, "the best part about being in tennis is being able to meet new people and to play."

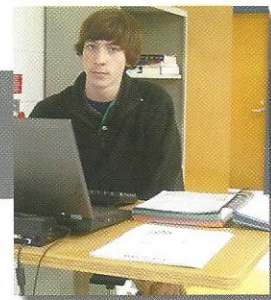

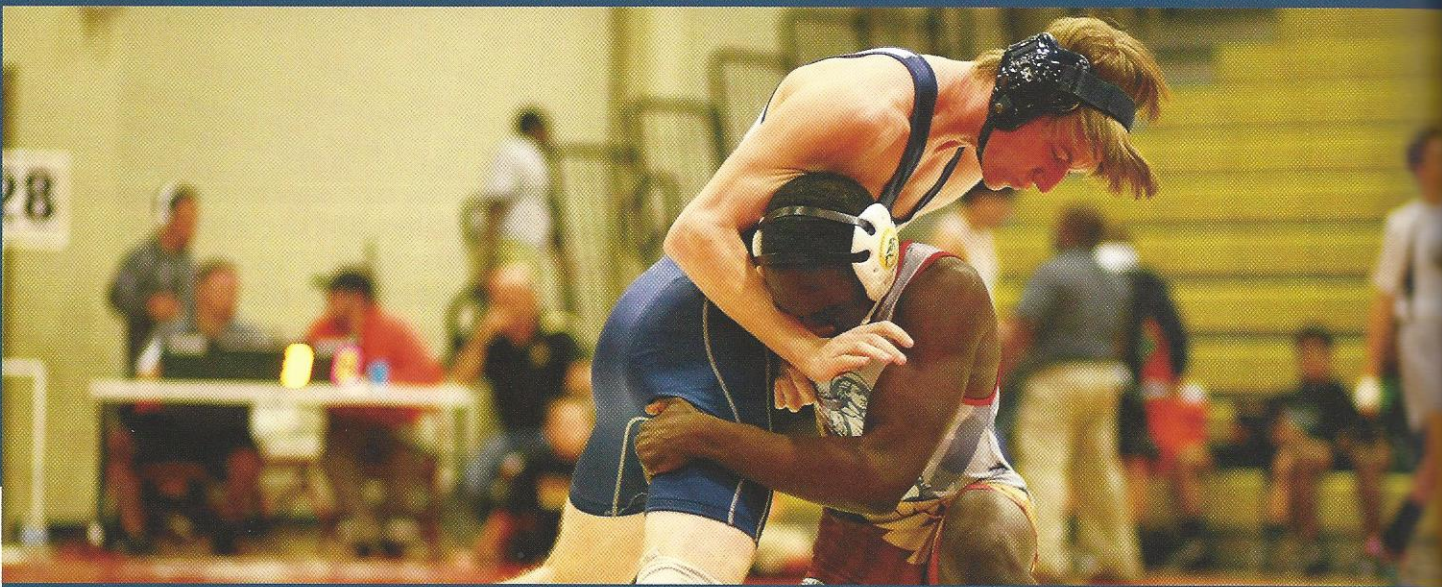

Freshman Ian O'Brien says, "one of my friends encouraged me to (join tennis)."

"Playing tennis makes me a better athlete," freshman Charles Bailey admitted.

Freshman Cody Coursen remains hard at work at a computer, trying to finish his task.

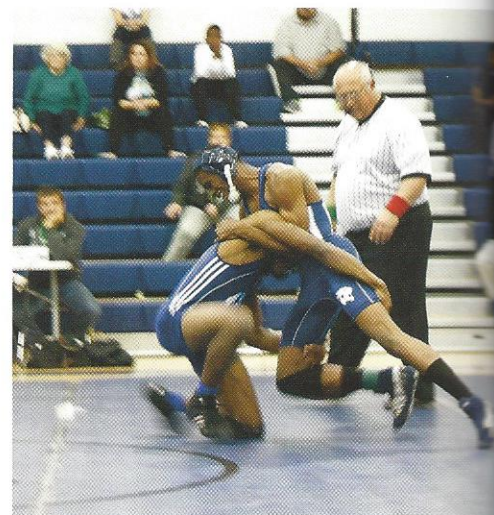

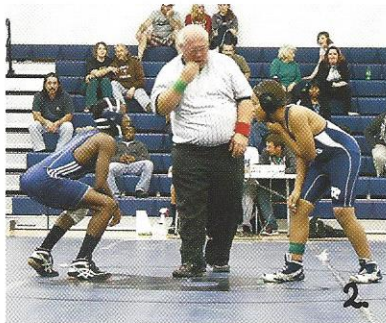

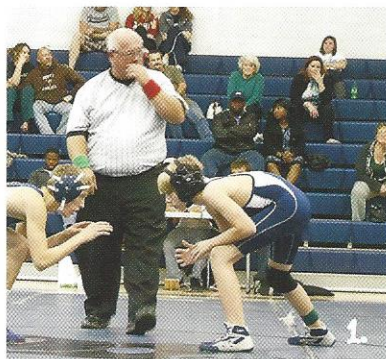

"You get to meet new people as you go from school to school. Wrestling makes you think a lot about strategy." - Senior Cyrus Legree

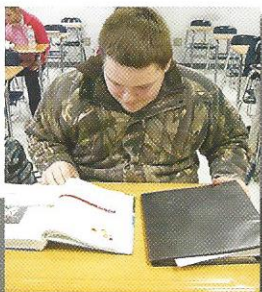

Freshman Dakota Snyder and senior Traequan Shaw trade strategies and converse before their home tournament.

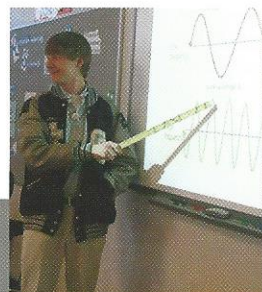

Junior Brandon Bright tackles his opponent to try and win his match. Brandon said, "the best part of wrestling is definitely the matches."

1. Freshman Caleb O'Quinn
2. Freshman Trevor Owens

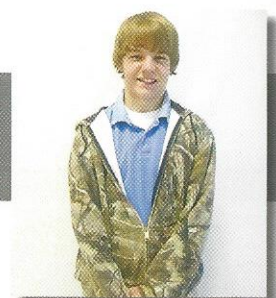

"My sister got me interested in wrestling. It's a great way to make new friends," freshman Steven Crosby explains.

Senior Traequan Shaw explains, "Wrestling is a man's sport. The best part is having the highest record."

"Wrestling helps keep me in shape and manages my time," says senior William Hood.

Pin the Win

Wrestlers hit the mats and did their best this season. Wrestling is a great way to build strength and character. It gave players the opportunity to meet other students with the same interests. Wrestling isn't just about strength, but it is about strategy as well. Coach Packy says, "Wrestling is all about maintaing a healthy body and keeping yourself in shape. Wrestling is not only a team sport but is an individual sport as well. Each person goes head to head against another player on a different team. Those matches make up the team's score." Several wrestlers came out on top and made it to lower state.

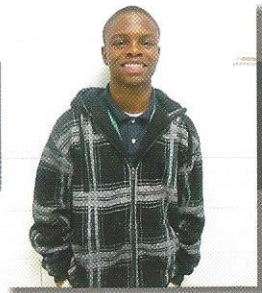

1. Junior Griffin Brandt attempts a pin.
2. Freshman Steven Crosby waits for the referee's signal to pin his opponent.
3. Junior Derell Walker intimidates the other wrestler so he can defeat him.

"Being the only girl on the team gives me a lot of recognition," junior Taylor Crosby shares.

Junior Brandon Bright explains, "my friends, Ernest and David, got me interested in joining the team."

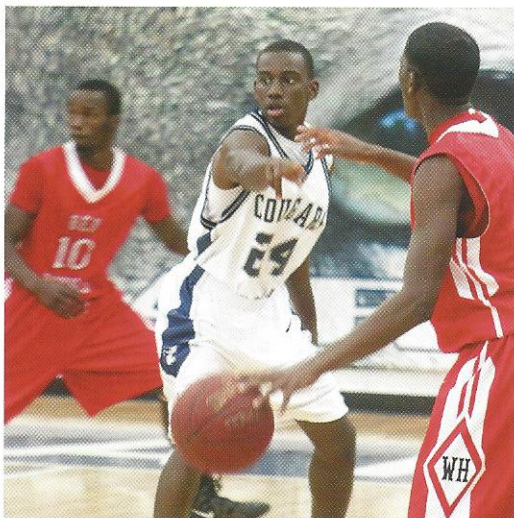

Senior Cody Solomon says, "I meet new people and learn something new every season."

"Wrestling made me lose a lot of weight and got me more in shape," explains sophomore Tristan Hatchell.

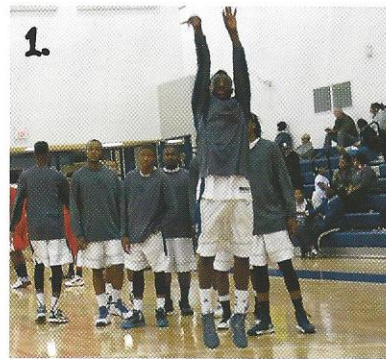

"I was proud of how the kids played; the players worked hard. We kept improving, and we were able to get some nice wins!" - Coach Tew

Senior Rashee Hodges, #24, blocks an opposing player trying to keep him out of their side of the court. Rashee said, "Blocking is intense because the other person knows you're there, so they don't want to shoot. Making a shot is great, but it's better to get someone else open on your team for a shot."

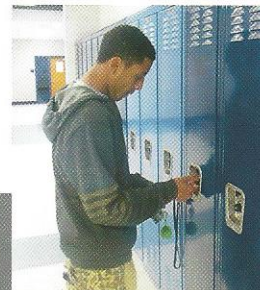

Senior Hasin Nichols, #34, shoots a 3-pointer to try and tie up the game!

1. Junior Tyler Williams #3
2. Junior Timothy Thompson #25

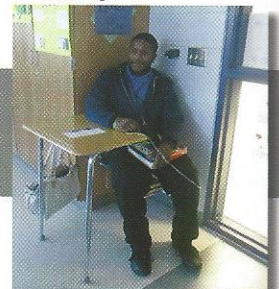

Junior Sean McMillian heads to lunch after a long first two periods.

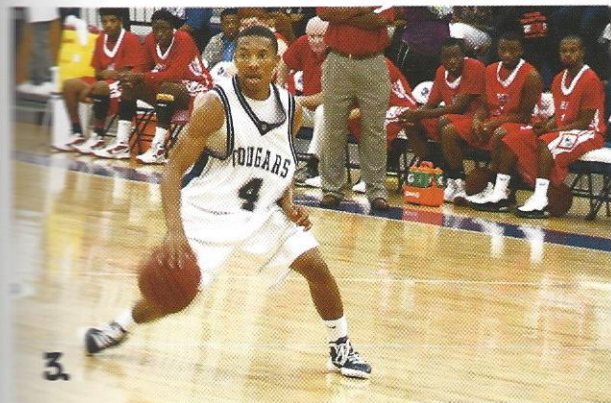

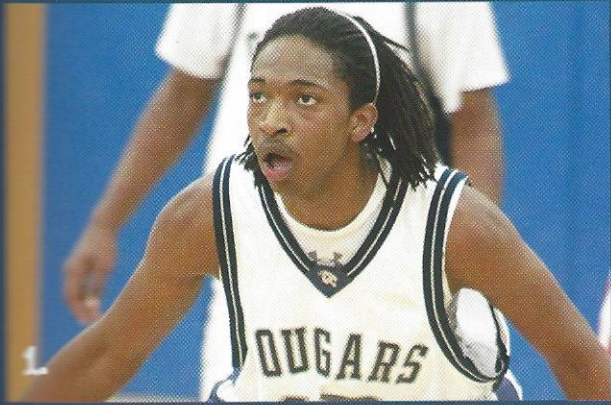

Junior David Monroe is recognized at the winter sports pep rally.

Sophomore Lattrell Nieves gets a book and waits on a couple of his friends to go to lunch.

Senior Shave' Edwards said, "I like playing with my teammates and having fun because it's my favorite sport."

Pluck the Points

Buckets! Buckets after buckets for our basketball boys. The Cougars have been improving their skills over the years and have showed how hard they are willing to work to achieve their goals. Senior Matthew Ross said, "We're okay as a unit. We have been a little bit more patient on offense. Overall, I think we did very well. Our last game we came together and played as a team." The boys unfortunately fell short with scoring and ended their season with a record of 5-15. The team played some of the toughest teams in the conference. Fierce rivalries proved to be beneficial for the team, and success was an objective on which the boys never gave up.

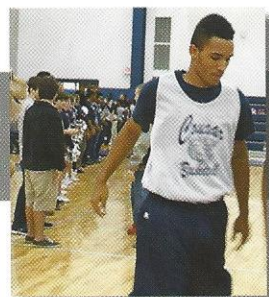

- 1. Junior Jami Sanders, #13, keeps his eye on the ball as he blocks an opponent.
- 2. Junior Sean McMillian, #30, awaits Coach Tew's instructions before the next play.
- 3. Junior David Monroe, #4, dribbles the ball fiercely down the court.

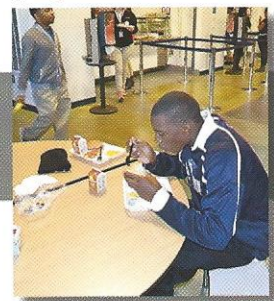

Senior Shaquille Walters quickly opens his locker so he is not late for his next period.

Junior Richard Brown runs through the student created tunnel after being recognized at the winter pep rally.

"I am amazed at their accomplishments!" -Coach Washington

Senior Courtney Eady, #43, tries her hand at a free throw during the game. "If I blocked a shot, I would feel amazing. I rarely do that because I'm so short."

Junior Alicia Williams, #3, thinks quick on her feet as she searches for a teammate to pass the ball to.

1. Junior Deyja Brown #5

2. Senior Briana Chisolm #20

Junior Alicia Williams is hanging up a project that she created in one of her classes.

Senior Terranda Green leaves the performing arts center after practicing for the chorus performance.

Senior Courtney Eady studies a poem to try and get a good grade for her Spanish class.

Net the Win

3...2...1... swoosh! The Cougars finished the season with a great record of 20-3. The girls started off the season with a bang, beating some of the toughest teams in our region. "When we work as a team, we get more accomplished. It feels better, and Coach can be happy," added junior Deyja Brown. Even with some losses, our girls managed to remain determined and work hard to make it all the way to the playoffs. The girls breezed through the first round, but fell a little short in the second round. Although it wasn't easy, our girls showed their dedication to the game of basketball and amped up our school spirit.

1. Senior Kwanesia Devore, #24, helps her teammate by pointing out an open player.

2. Sophomore Tia Chisolm, #10, runs after her opponent as they dribble the ball down the opposite side of the court.

3. Senior Terranda Green, #45, prepares herself for the next play.

Sophomore Tia Chisolm fixes a poster in one of the hallways for her teacher.

Senior Kwanesia Devore heads to lunch after working hard in her third period.

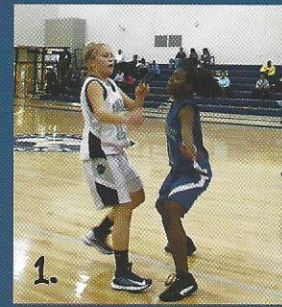

Junior Deyja Brown takes a quick break from class, and gets the rest of her books.

Senior Briana Chisolm reflects on one of the high points of the season against Summerville, "we fought hard and played as a team."

Gaining the Basket

During the JV girls basketball season, they managed to stick together not only as a team but also as a family. "There is nothing wrong with playing basketball, and when you're playing, you know the girls got your back, and you become a family" said freshmen Tabitha Monroe. The JV girls basketball team tended to get everything accomplished and worked hard, always using their best skills. Throughout the season, the JV girls gave everything they had each game and never quit. Even though some games may have been close, the JV girls kept their minds focused throughout each game. The JV girls basketball team had a good season this year and will be bringing an even better season next year.

4. Junior Deja Jamison #5 looks for an open player on the other side of the court.

5. Junior Kashaira Givens #43

Coach Washington gives a motivating speech to the players. Though every game seemed so tense, she was always great at reenergizing the team and focusing the tension into positive game plans.

Freshman Charesa Taylor said, "basketball is different and fun and worth going out and meeting new people."

Junior Kashaira Givens said, "I would encourage people to play basketball because it teaches good cooperative skills."

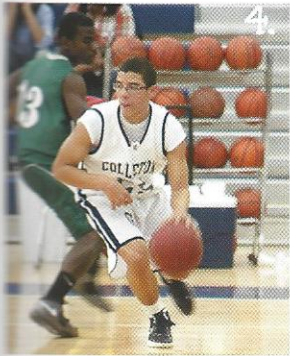

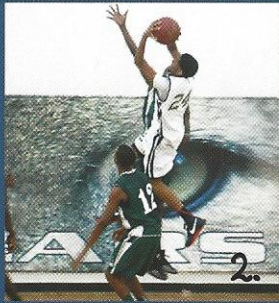

Freshman Casey Kinard said, "basketball is a fun sport, and you get to meet new people."

Junior Sade' Stokes said, "this is the funniest season so far and I really like Coach Warren."

Snag the Win

The Colleton County Cougar JV Basketball team worked their hardest this season. They were well focused and they worked great as a team. "I am very proud of the JV basketball team. They kept working hard and improving, with a winning record of 10 and 9 there is no doubt that they will be great varsity players," said Coach Michael Tew. They help each other with their weaknesses and motivate each other to play harder and don't give up. No matter what situation was at hand, they pulled together and got through it as a team. With their high spirits and dedication to win, next year's varsity team will not only be strong willed but also unstoppable!

1. Freshman Treston Brown #3 tries to out maneuver a defensive player so that he can score.

2. Freshman Trey Murray #24 goes up for an impressive shot.

3. Freshman Damian Petote #42

4. Sophomore Chris Ortiz #25 uses quick feet to get out from underneath Woodland's defense.

5. Freshman Viktor Payne #23

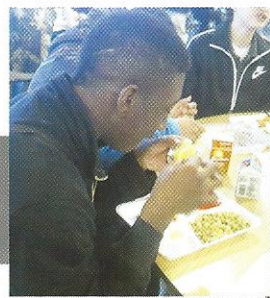

Throughout the game the coach likes to motivate the team with pep talks to keep their spirits up. Many opportunities reveal themselves as perfect moments to stop and review plays to make sure the team members are creating the best opportunities on the court.

"I have a deep love for the game, and I want to be like Michael Jordan one day!"

"My favorite game was the game against Bluffton because I scored 6 points!" exclaimed Chris Teasdel.

"I motivate my team by telling them to keep working harder when they miss a shot." Austin Holmes said.

"I would like to play basketball in the future because it's my favorite sport, and I like it" stated Anthony Bellamy.

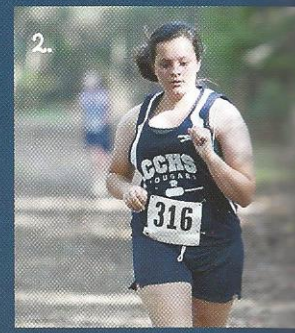

Get the Mile

One mile down. Now two miles down.

Three miles down, time to finish! The Varsity Cougar Cross Country team raced to multiple victories this year. The cross country team worked their hardest to improve their race times to be able to compete in the state finals race.

Many of the girls and boys set their personal best records for the seasons. Setting the best race time on the team was senior Jared O'Quinn with a time of 17:57 in a three mile race during the state qualifiers. As a senior finishing out a long season of cross country, it can sometimes be a bittersweet ending to the beginning of the school year. "We run all the time, and it keeps me in shape," added senior Shelby Peters. Staying in shape is always the plus side to running cross country.

1. Freshman Cody Courson runs his hardest to catch the nearest opponent.

2. Sophomore Alexandria Dessoie progresses through her final lap around the trail.

3. Senior Shelby Peters edges her way to the front of her group.

4. Sophomore Kaitlyn Ramey shows her endurance while making her way toward the finish line.

5. Sophomore Emily O'Quinn maintains her pace at the front of her pack.

Junior Christopher Hoff comes in to finish the race. Christopher said, "after a race I feel tired and exhausted, but excited that I finished."

Eighth grader Shelby Kincaid races on the varsity cross country team.

Senior Andrew Harrison tries to become first by passing the other racers.

Senior William Hood races through the woods to get to the finish line.

CCMS student Emmie Moore rushes to finish her race on the varsity cross country team.

Run-In the Win

Colleton County High has an outstanding track and field program. In previous years, our track and field program has had multiple state titles in events such as shot put and discus, as well as in 200 meter sprints. Riding on the success of previous years, our girls and boys track and field team has a lot of titles to uphold. As a track and field participant, there are many different events from which to choose. Students that enjoy running can choose between short distance or long distance races. Track and Field also offers events such as pole vaulting, long jump, triple jump, high jump, shot put and discus. Our girls and boys team have always made the high school very proud!

1. Junior Tyler Williams is neck and neck with his opponent. Many races throughout the season came down to which runner had the most determination.

2. Sophomore Shemar Simmons prepares to throw a 1.5 pound discus to try and win the event.

3. Senior Neilan O'Connor tries to set a personal best by making his highest pole vault leap of the season.

4. Sophomore Deshana Daniels comes to the end of the race and trying to stay in front of her opponent.

5. Senior Tichina Green tries to throw the shot put the farthest it has been thrown in the event yet.

Senior Matthew Ross does his best to get over the hurdles, beat his opponents, and win the race! To be successful, hurdlers have to not only be fast but also flexible and coordinated.

Senior Deandre Linder rushes to his locker before class. Deandre is the top male shot-put thrower.

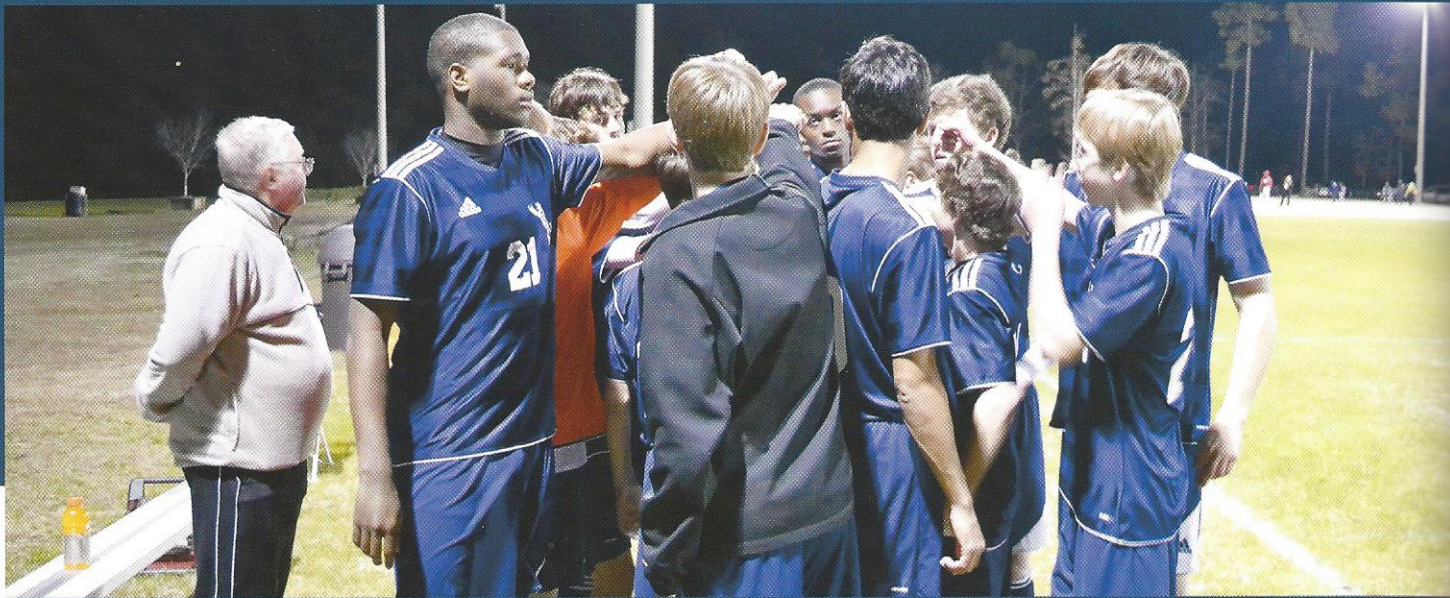

Junior Emalee "Paige" Seeley enjoys lunch. Paige is our only female pole vaulter at CCHS.

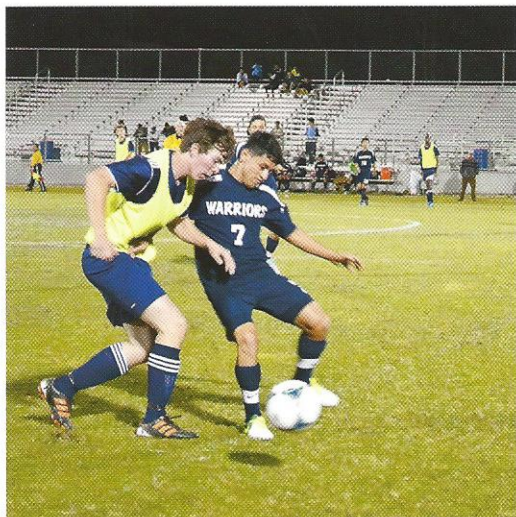

Sophomore Akirah Maloney participates in a conversation. Akirah does the events long jump, triple jump, and high jump.

"Track is something I liked doing since sixth grade," stated junior Faith Calloway. Faith runs the 100m, 200m, and the 400m races. She has also been to Lower State qualifiers twice.

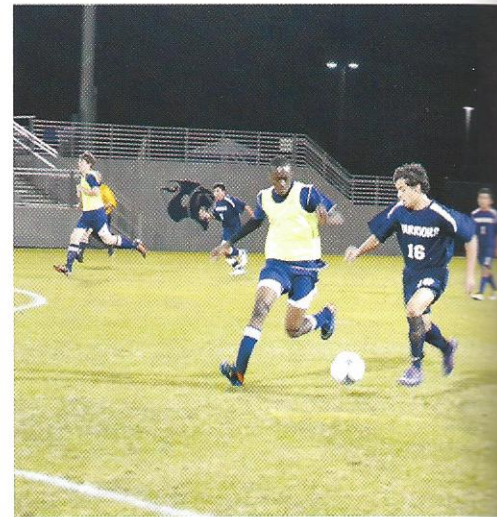

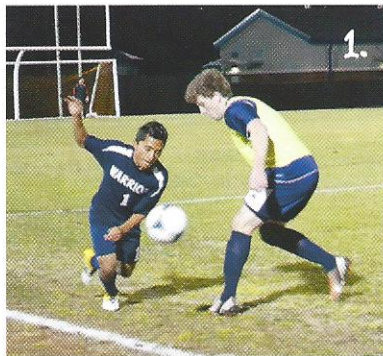

"Hardwork and dedication is the key to success." - Senior Austin Hollis

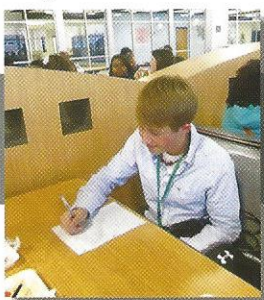

Senior Andrew Harrison, #18, competes to steal the ball so he could send it to his offense and avoid the opposing team from keeping the ball and scoring a point.

Junior Derell Walker fights to obtain the ball as he quickly makes his way to the goal.

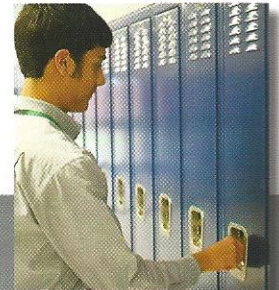

1. Senior Stewart Bailey #5
2. Freshman Sheldon Reynolds #21

Freshman Charles Cummings says, "soccer gets my mind off of things."

Freshman Zachary Beach says, "I feel like our team will be better this season and the years to come."

Senior Alvin Walling, explains, "Coach Townsend is really good at what he does. I am always learning something new from him."

Senior Jarred O'quinn, quotes, "the competition in soccer is always fun."

Assist the Goal

The varsity boys soccer team had their work cut out for them with the arrival of a new, intense coach. Senior Shaquille Walters said, "I feel with a new coach we can build a better team and make this season a great one." With Coach Townsend, the boys put more effort into practices and games to improve. They worked really hard five times a week at practice to accomplish a successful season. Several players say that the new coach has brought them together more as a team because he understands the individuality of each person rather than just as a team. Even though they fell short sometimes, they always had smiles on their faces and Cougar Pride in their hearts!

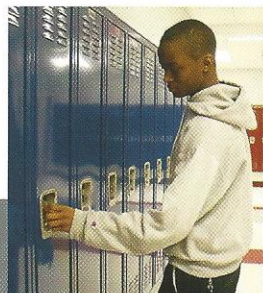

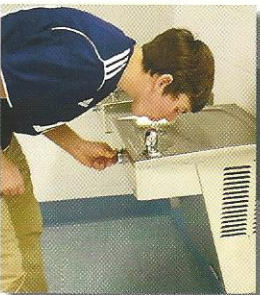

1. Junior Thomas Dessoye, #23, stops the opponent in his tracks as he attempts to pass the ball.

2. Senior Jared O'Quinn, #10, prepares to punt the ball to give his team control of the offense.

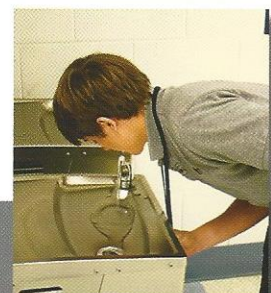

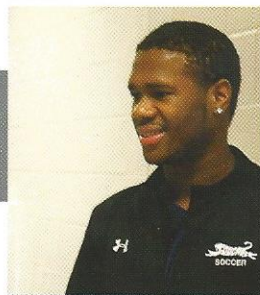

3. Senior Shaquille Walters, #21, scours the field in search for an open teammate.

Senior Andrew Harrison says he enjoys soccer because it keeps him, "active and in shape".

Junior Derell Walker said, "we are not the best, but if we try our hardest, we can do good."

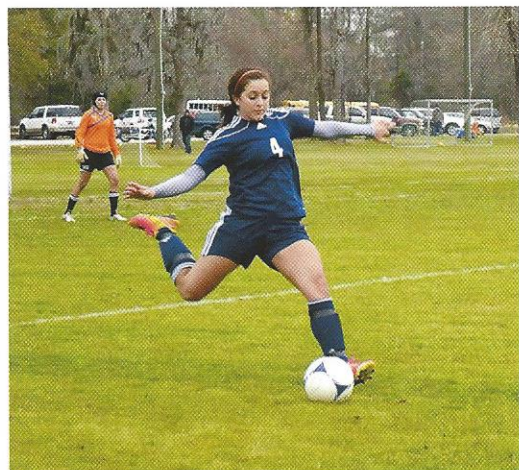

Senior Shaquille Walters, said, "the new coach is cool. I like him because he breaks things down more."

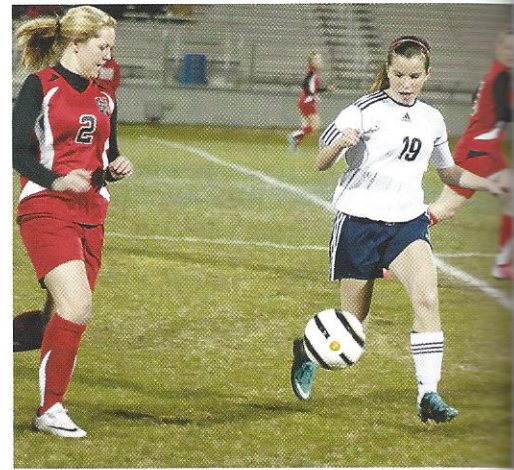

Junior Thomas Dessoye said, "our new coach is really cool. He knows his skills, and I believe we have a good chance this year!"

"We've started off the season on a positive note with a tournament win, and we hope our success carries on into our regular season." - Senior Anna Davis

Junior Adrienne Land clears the ball away from her goal. "I'm really looking forward to this year because I believe we will be able to compete with some of the top teams in our region. So far, we have shown a lot of improvement since last year."

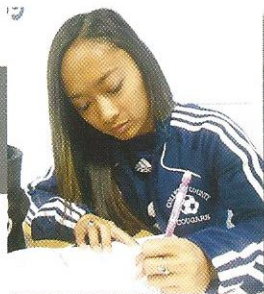

Freshman Amanda Evans sticks with the ball while trying to pass to an open teammate.

1. The team cools down with a run after a long game.
2. Sophomore Alexandrya "Alleigh" Dessoie expresses like playing Fort Dorchester because they're aggressive and a well played team. They test my strengths and I'm good at."

Senior Erica Concepcion reflected on her past seasons, "My favorite memory was the bus rides home."

Senior Megan Ballew stated, "When I moved to Missouri soccer is the only sport they basically played."

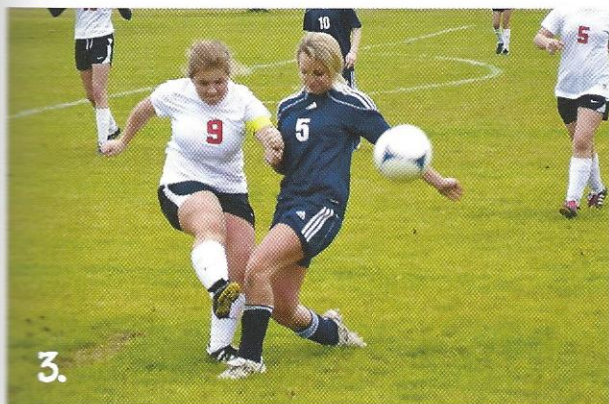

Junior Olivia Heath responds about finals, "I feel really confident about making it to state."

Sophomore Kaitlyn Ramey shared her opinion by saying, "a couple things I don't like about soccer is the offside rule."

Gain the Pace

1. Freshman Allyn Wiggins #10 and sophomore Emily O'Quinn #2 work together to navigate the ball down the field.

2. Senior Anna Davis #1 kicks the ball to mid-field.

3. Junior Ansley Hiers, #5 tries to stop the ball and steal it away from her opponent.

This year's varsity girls soccer team has showed their determination by trying to take down any team in their path. Not only do these girls work as a team, but they also have fun when they are all together, which makes communication easier during the game. Bound and determined to have a victorious season, our Lady Cougars practice really hard to get ready for their games. Even if the outcome of the game is not in their favor, they still stay confident about themselves and their team. Coach Townsend stated, "the girls have put forth a lot of effort in preparing for the season. We are excited and hopeful to compete with some of the best teams in the area." Aw Yeah, Cougars, Yeah!

"This is my first year on varsity because it is a contact sport and you can't play until you are in 9th grade," explained freshman Allyn Wiggins.

"I feel our team works as a unit. We communicate. We have trust in each other, and we've got each others backs no matter what," stated freshman Lacey Thompson.

"I hate practicing but it pays off in the end with a win," stated senior Jenny Beebe.

Junior Halie West's favorite team to play is Summerville because she, "knows all of their strengths and weaknesses."

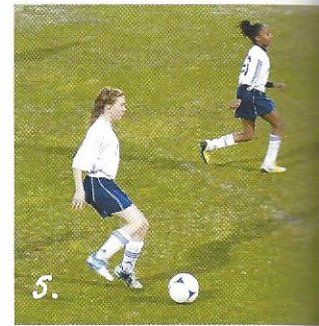

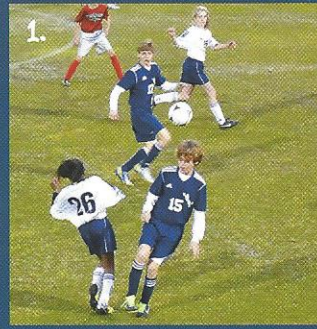

Zip Through the Field

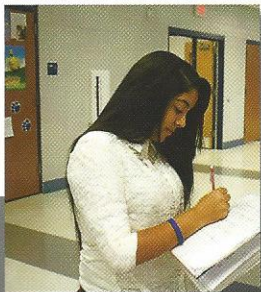

Out with the old and in with the new! The junior varsity soccer team is in it to win it. Starting the year off with a new coach, our junior varsity girls have learned how to work hard together and rally like any great team. Through their practices and games, all the players have overcome defeat to come out on top. The players work five days a week practicing for the games and improving their skills. Coach Matt Hooker has a optimistic outlook and game plan for the girls to go for the win out on the field. Coach Hooker said, "I am looking forward to a great season; the team looks as though it has a lot of talent as well as a good chemistry with everyone on the team."

The girls huddle around the coach talking about the game plan as they prepare themselves to play their best game this season. The junior varsity girls played very well in the end.

2. Senior Alyssa Hughes, #2, nearly intercepts a pass to an opposing player.
3. The junior varsity soccer players defend the ball and work together to score a point.
4. CCMS student Samantha Calcutt #15
5. CCMS student Sara Ramey, #7, looks down field for an open player to pass to in order to make a play.

Freshman Jasmine Llamas started playing soccer because she wanted to try something new.

"I have been playing soccer for three years," said junior Victoria Hickman.

Sophomore Marissa O'Quinn shared, "I like the competition, and the feeling it gives me when we do well."

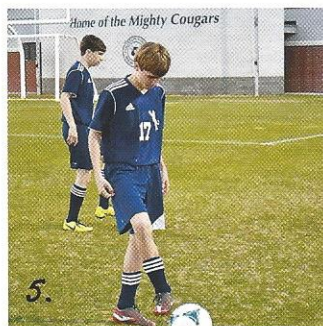

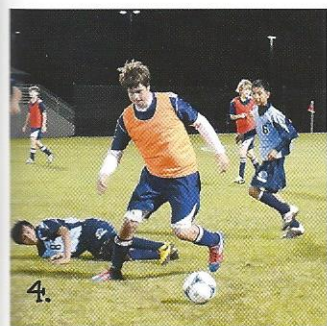

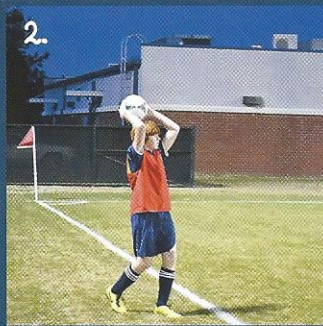

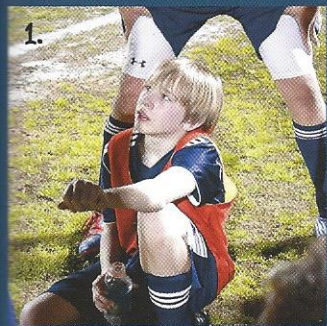

Sophomore Malaysia Malone was questioned what was her least favorite rule in soccer and added "no hands."

Hook the Win

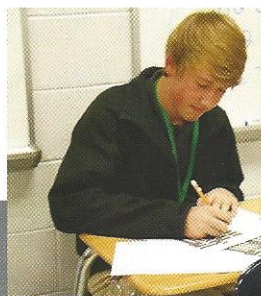

"Goal!" That is what you want to hear at the soccer games. Colleton County Boys Junior Varsity soccer team has played hard and worked hard. They have overcome all of the obstacles. Head Coach Edward Fitch said, "This year's team is young but with a lot of potential. Seeing how they have developed, individually and collectively so far, gives us a lot to work with in the future." The boys tried to work hard every practice to stay on top. With every practice, the team gained more strength and endurance for the next. The competition would do well to watch out!

1. Freshman Caleb O'Quinn, #25, listens intently to the coach's halftime speech.
2. CCMS student, Justin Williams #3
3. Some of the boys discuss play strategies before the game starts.
4. Freshman William Rast, #28, executes some skilled footwork to eliminate the opposing team from the play.
5. CCMS student, Riley Downey #17

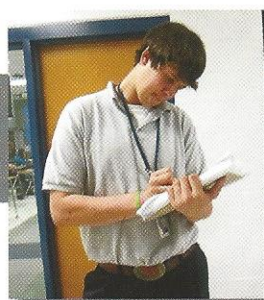

Senior Stewart Bailey has a talk with some of the team to tell the boys how proud he is of them. Varsity members often acted as mentors to help the younger junior varsity players mature in their skills so that they will make a great addition to the varsity team in the future.

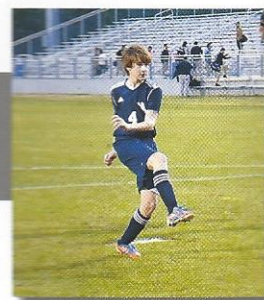

Freshman Charles Cummings quoted, "Soccer gets my mind off things."

Freshman William Rast's least favorite rule about soccer is that fact elbowing is illegal.

CCMS student Campbell Pryor stated, "My least favorite rule would be that you cant use your hands."

CCMS student Colin Thomas is warming up. "Soccer is very challenging," said Colin.

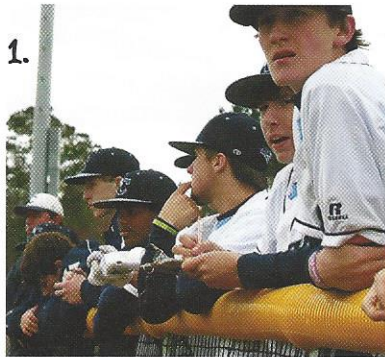

"Every Pitch, Every Play, Focus."

Junior Dustin Call, #18, effortlessly back hands a ground ball while he plays defense. After making the catch, he made the throw to first, making the third out to end an intense inning.

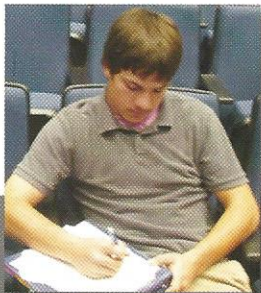

William "Dalton" Colson, sophomore, said, "I started playing because I wanted to be just like my older cousin that was really good at baseball."

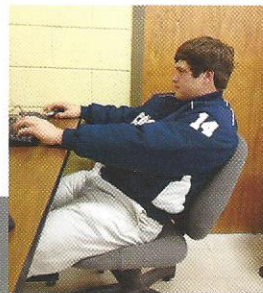

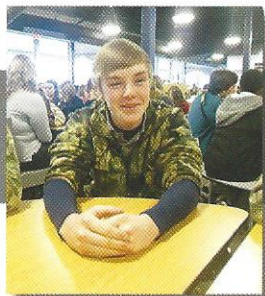

Freshman, Tim Hickman #9, takes a big cut at the pitch while Coach Knight looks on.

1. Standing on the fence of the dug-out, the boys watch their teammates while the team plays offense.
2. Catcher William "Dalton" Colson #10 throws ball down to attempt to pick the runner off.

"For the love of the game," stated senior, Joshua Brown as to why he started and continues playing baseball for his high school years.

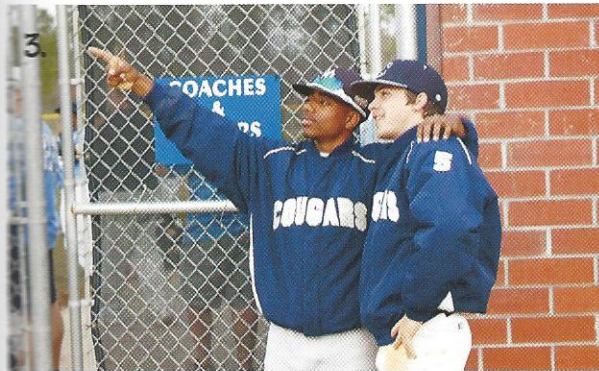

Senior Dakota Crosby said, "We have a decent team, but we are young and will improve with every game."

"Fort Dorchester is my favorite team to play," stated Junior Dustin Call, "because it is always a close game and we come prepared."

Steal the Base

Three strikes and you are out! This phrase is what the Cougar Varsity Baseball team likes to hear while playing defense. Practicing more efficiently, and putting in a lot of extra hard work has helped them improve this season. Senior Dakota Crosby said, "winning is fun, but not the biggest part of the game. It is more important to work together and build up our skills." Both coaches and players had high expectations of an improved season as a team and program. They wanted to not just win this season, but also build for future success. The team was a mix of returning and younger players, which made the teamwork even harder to obtain success, but it worked well. With experienced senior leadership and coaching, the Cougars will have a more successful season than in years past. The Cougars have hit a homerun with success this season.

1. CCMS student Michael Thigpen #17 winds up to deliver his next pitch.

2. Senior Dakota Crosby #14 stands in the batter's box to take the next pitch.

3. Seniors Joshua Brown #5 and Willis Dobison #2 talk about their strategy before their game starts.

Willis Dobison, a senior, "My favorite game of each season is playing our rival, Summerville, because it is always an intense game."

Brandon Reichle, junior, quoted, "Baseball has taught me how to work hard in life as well as on the field."

Caleb Nichols, sophomore, says, "my favorite part of playing is pitching because I feel like I have control over the game."

"I started playing baseball because my dad made me, but then I began to like it, and continued playing," stated sophomore Tanner Massey.

"We can be as good as we make up our minds to be" - Coach Adams

The girls cheer on their teammates from the dug-out as they played in the Bishop Blast Tournament. At the tournament, the girls played their hearts and even though they didn't win all the games, they still came out on top.

Freshman Skylar Chambers sets up to catch for the pitcher.

- 1. Senior Amber Reeves #17
- 2. Junior Rachel McDowell #16

Senior Kristina "Michelle" Pye is the short stop on the team and has been playing softball since she was 5.

Sophomore Brittany Creel says, "Hitting on the T with my best friend Hannah was the best memory I have about softball."

"The best part about softball is competition because I'm competitive," said senior Kimberly Broach.

Junior Kashaira Givens, says that Easton is the best brand of softball equipment because it lasts longer.

Pitch the Victory

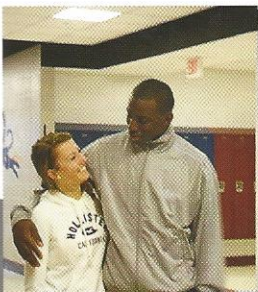

This season has been very positive and the girls have been working hard all year. From conditioning in November to practicing in May, the varsity softball team works hard and plays even harder. "Practice makes perfect and that's the only way to get better," said senior Brianna Chisolm. Softball for these girls is a way of life and it takes a lot of dedication. Every one on the team worked together to help each other improve their game. With softball, your team becomes your family and like any family there are always going to be ups and downs, but in the end they always have each other's back.

1. Sophomore Canyon Crosby #8

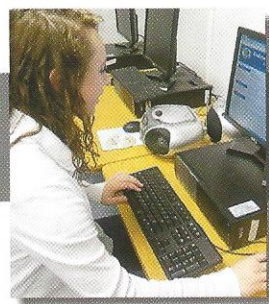

2. Coach Adams and freshman Skylar Chambers #2

3. Seniors Taylor King #5, Amber Reeves #17, Kristina "Michelle" Pye #3, Kimberly Broach #11, and Shakerra Sanders #12

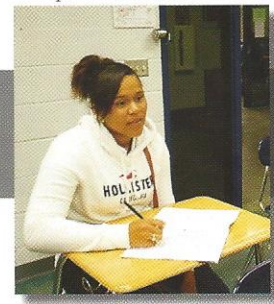

Sophomore Teagan Crosby plays outfield and pitches during some of the games.

"My grandmother inspired me to play softball because she played when she was younger," said sophomore Skylar Maxey.

"My favorite memory from playing softball was spending the weekend in Myrtle Beach for a tournament," said senior Taylor King.

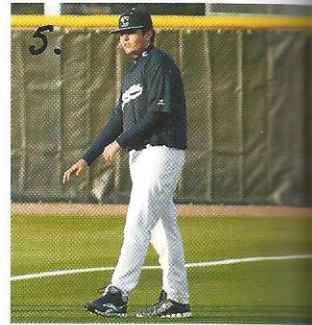

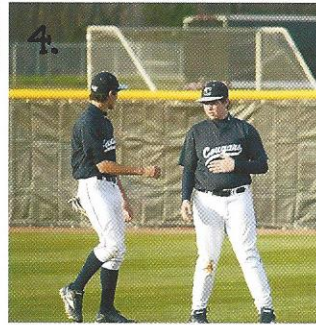

Senior Shakerra Sanders can't wait to compete against Stratford, because "they're our hardest competition."

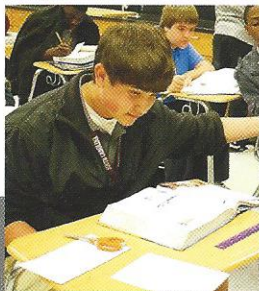

Grasp the Bat

The Colleton County Junior Varsity Baseball team has worked their hardest this year. Every member has put all of their heart and soul into every game they played. For them, baseball is not just a hobby or a game but a way of life. It is a way for them to show who they are, and what they love to do. Freshman Kristopher Rhett Judy said, "baseball is a great way for everyone on the team to challenge themselves and become a little better." This year's junior varsity baseball team has done a great job representing our high school. They have showed our Cougar pride and their love of a great sport. Next year, our baseball team will carry on; the only difference will be the improvement they will bring from this year's experience.

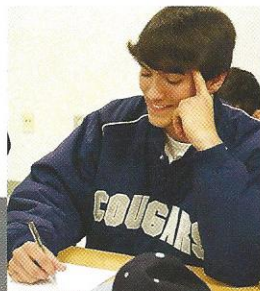

The junior varsity baseball team runs around the field as a warm up before their first game. Taking it very seriously, they put on their Cougar pride and determination for the game. They know the warm up is just as important as the game itself. It helps to get their minds in the zone and ready to win.

1. Freshman Timothy Hickman #9 listens to the instructions of what to do next.
2. The junior varsity baseball players begin to gather around each other at the beginning of their first game.
3. The junior varsity boys begin their warm up with stretches in order to not pull any muscles before their intense games.
4. Eighth grader Micheal Thigpen #17 and ninth grader Timothy Hickman #9 have a conversation before their first game.
5. Freshman Andrew Jones #19 is intently focused on the next play.

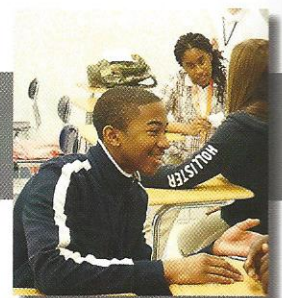

Andrew Jones, freshman said, "I've been playing since I was five, I grew up playing."

Zachary Crosby, freshman, said, "The hardest thing about baseball is staying confident about yourself."

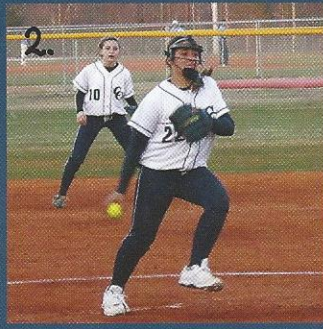

Timothy Hickman, freshman, said, "My favorite memory is when I hit my first home run at the age of 13."

Karl Levine, freshman, said, "My favorite thing about baseball is playing right field because I'm fast."

Conquer the Field

Our Lady Cougars had an amazing season. Every game, they went out on the field and tried their best by showing our rivals the true competition. They wore the Cougar Pride the best that was expected. They showed it well, no matter what the outcome of the game was. At the games and practices, anyone and everyone could see determination on the faces of the players. They showed their love of the game and worked hard to be better than everyone else. When asked why she plays softball, freshman Kennedy Crosby said, "it's a good source of exercise. I have a lot of fun playing."

1. Eighth grader Victoria Brown #9 runs to every base making the first homerun of the game

2. Eighth grader Lauren Dewitt #22 throws her very fast pitch, causing the player to strike out.

3. Freshman Courtney Morris #2 tries to get the softball to the base before the other teams player

4. Eighth grader Katlyn Bishop, catcher, gets ready to catch the ball thrown by the catcher if the other teams batter doesn't hit.

5. Freshman Kayla Christopher #11 steps up to the base ready to hit the ball sky high.

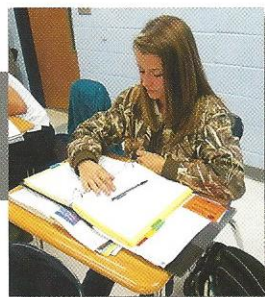

The Lady Cougars huddle around the coach to listen to the game plan for their next round. Sweating down their faces, the Lady Cougars won the first game of the season.

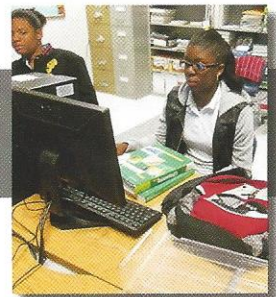

Freshman Courtney Morris said, "I'm looking most forward to playing Summerville this year."

Freshman Kayla Christopher said, "my favorite position is short stop because I've been playing it ever since I was little."

Sophomore Hannah Perritte said, "I started playing softball because it's been in my family for so long."

Sophomore Tia Chisolm said, "not striking out is the hardest thing about softball because you have to adjust yourself to the speed of the ball."

Seizing the Green

Although golf has been an admired American pastime for years, this generation's youth may overlook it. Some tend to question golf because they know little to nothing about the sport. "Everyone else plays the normal sports: football, basketball, and baseball. Not many have tried golf," said sophomore Yunus Miller. They may be small in number, but our golfers do not let quantity intimidate them. Amount does not always come into play because it is a game between "man" and "course." While wrking hard to stay focused and trying their best to steadily improve, there is no doubt that the golf team will continue to succeed and grow, in years to come.

Golf members sophomores Yunus Miller and Andrew McCaskill, and freshmen Zachary Lowery and Zack Armentrout ready themselves for the course.

2. Sophomore Andrew McCaskill winds up and keeps his eye on the ball as the competitors observe.
3. Freshman Zack Armentrout keeps his eye on the ball before he makes his next move.
4. Sophomore Yunus Miller putts the ball from about twenty feet away on the lush, green golf course.
5. Freshman Zachary Lowery gathers his thoughts and devises a shot strategy before making his next swing.

Sophomore Yunus Miller said "Not many have tried golf, there's only five of us."

Sophomore Andrew McCaskill works hard in class. He knows that golf is a sport that takes a lot of concentration.

Freshman Zachary Lowery said, "I take it as both a sport and a good way to calm down."

Before this season, sophomore Yunus Miller had no experience on the green, but found golf increased his self-confidence.

We knew you could do it! We are so proud of you for hanging in there! It seems like such a short while ago you were little and starting preschool, then kindergarten and first grade. Now, all of those years are just about to be behind you and there's so much more to do in the future. We know you can accomplish anything if you put your mind to it.

Love,
Mom and Dad

To our sweet "Kat Bug,"
We love you and are so proud of you! From a little baby, your eyes sparkled. You are still sparkling! You made it! We love you forever and always!

We have watched you grow from our little Tay-Bug into an extraordinary young lady. You brighten our lives with your smile. We are so proud of you. We love you with all our hearts.

Mom and Dad

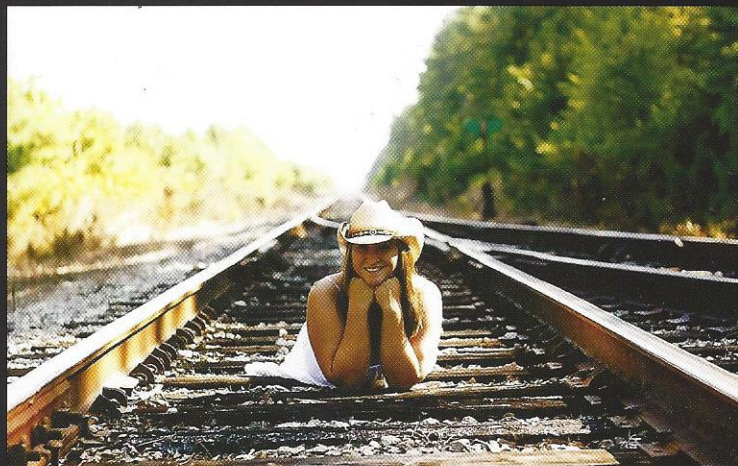

Kristin Leigh Roberts

Life is journey of many blessings and having you as a daughter is one of the best. We are so proud of the young woman you are becoming. You can do anything you believe in, so dream big and shoot for the stars! Love you most...
CASE CLOSED!

Dad / Pam

What we are is God's gift to us; what we become is our gift to God. You live your life believing this, please continue. Two important gifts parents can give a child are roots and wings. You've got firm roots, now spread your wings and soar. We love you MOST!

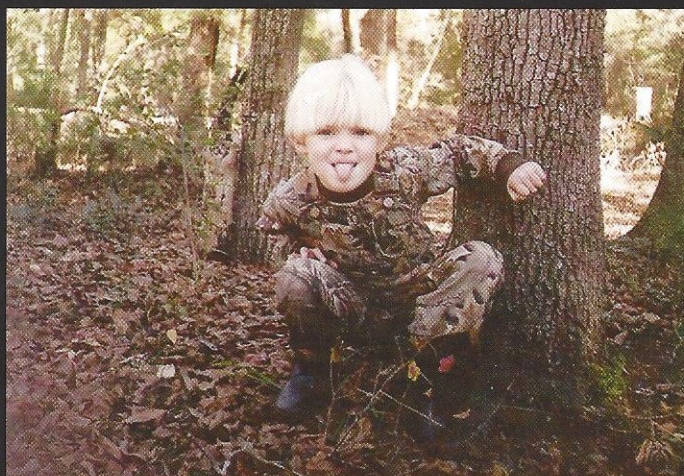

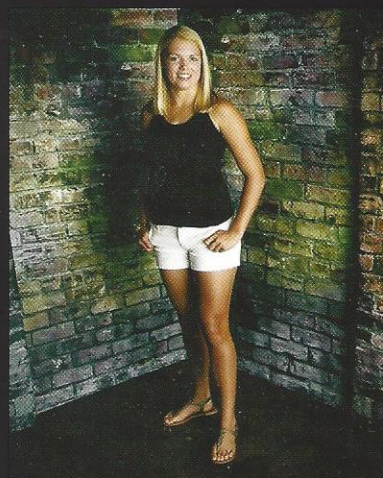

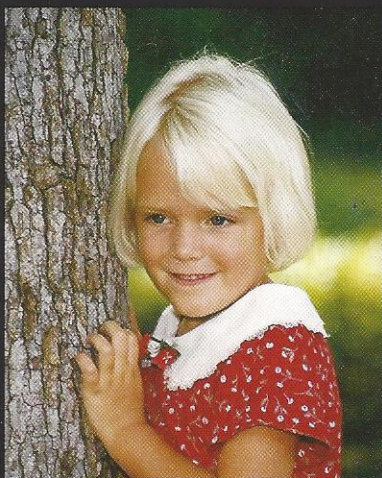

Mom / Clint

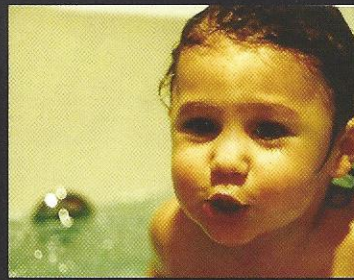

Anna Caroline Davis

We are so proud of you! The dedication and commitment you have shown to achieve your goals will reap awards in the future. Stay the course. The sky is the limit, so fly high! You are the light of our lives, and we will miss you very much.

Mom & Dad

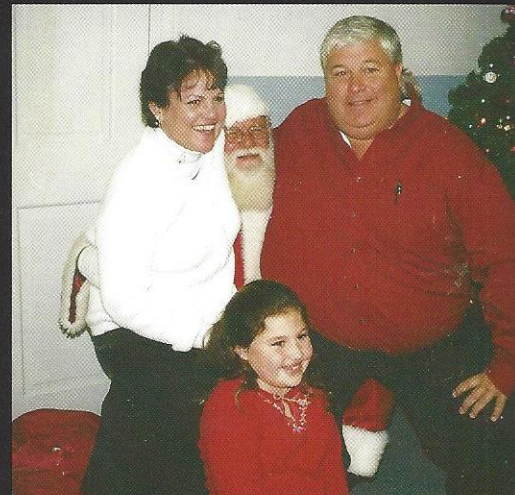

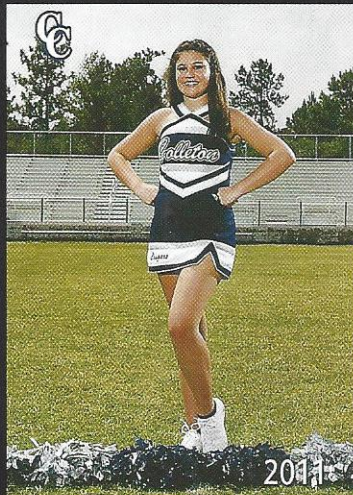

MaHallie Elizabeth Martin

Your dad and I were given the best blessing parents could ever receive when God blessed us with you. Our journey through life with you as a daughter has been, as parents, a blessing beyond words. I can't believe this chapter of your life is about to close. Our hearts are saddened but yet excited as well to see what yet lies ahead. It all began with how excited you were to begin "Candy Garden," as you called it. You could not wait to start school. It all seemed like yesterday. We drove out the driveway to start your school year. You were so excited, yet I cried all night because my little girl was starting school! Little did I know, once again how so many memories would unfold in all these wonderful school years. It would begin with school parties, picnics, being room mom (which I loved), and I so loved coming to pick you up in first grade. I can remember just like it was yesterday you running to the fence to wave at me and your sweet little fingers barely making their way through the fence to make sure I saw you. I loved those days, and they got even better. Then there would be cheerleading, which has been our great pleasure. Dad and I have always gotten so much pleasure out of the games. We always looked forward to your excitement about cheering (even when you cheered as you showered)! Your love for it never ceased to amaze us. Then there was dance. You had the most graceful moves and as the teacher once said: it was a pleasure to watch you. It showed in your face how much you loved what you did. The games, dance recitals, proms, dates, driver's license, and the wonderful families we have come to know through you are the best memories we could ever ask for. Oh, and this year you reminded me you were 18 and could vote for the very first time. As we reflect on these school years, we want to say to you as parents that your accomplishments, achievements, rewards, grades, attitude, but most of all your warm, caring, and respectful personality have made us most proud. MaHallie, we are most honored to call you our daughter. As parents, we are even more excited to see what wonderful things lie ahead for you. Thank you for all the love, joy, and sunshine you give to us! The best is yet to come! Remember what we have always told you: respect takes you a long way in life; find the good in everyone; there is no such word as "can't;" you can do anything; the sky is the limit. Now, go forward and make for yourself the best life has to offer. We love you dearly.

Thanks, MaHallie.

Emily Hiott, Junior

Co-Editor

"Yearbook has meant more to me in the past three years than any other extracurricular activity. This year was filled with many changes, but I couldn't be more proud to lead such a great staff. With senior year approaching, I am ecstatic to see what next year has in store."

Madison Lucas, Junior

Co-Editor

"Being on the Yearbook Staff has made me become more organized and social. Interviewing and taking pictures really teaches you better people skills. I've loved yearbook from the start, and I will miss it very much in the future."

Brantley Taylor, Junior

Clubs & Organizations Editor

"My first semester in yearbook was a success. I enjoyed meeting new people. Yearbook taught me how to be a leader. I am very excited for the book to come out so I can see all that we accomplished."

"Clay" Robertson, Junior

Academics Editor

"Being a yearbook editor has been an interesting experience that has prepared me for many parts of life. It has taught me how to conduct myself in a business-like manner, how to handle myself under pressure, and has provided me with journalistic and technological skills."

Halie West, Junior

Sports Editor

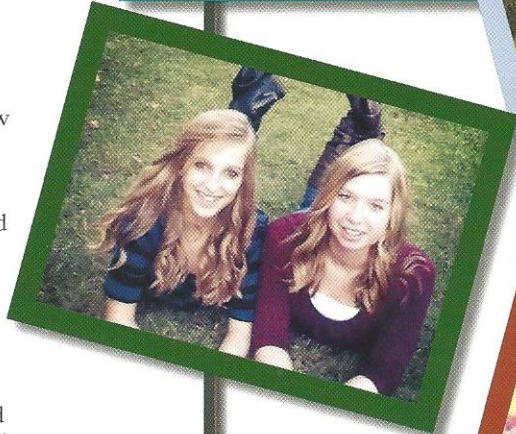

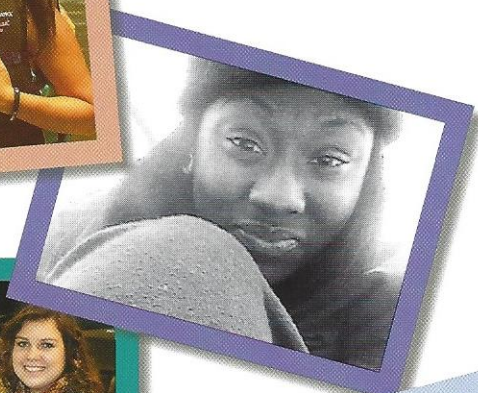

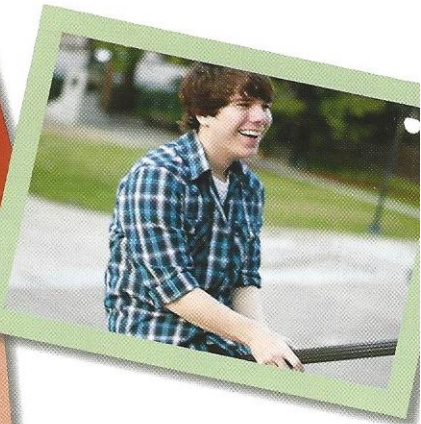

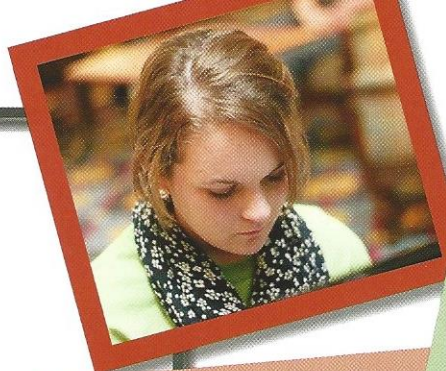

"Yearbook is awesome! I've learned a lot from being on the staff. We all work really hard and everything always turns out great! I absolutely love being in the class, and our seniors on the staff should be really proud of what we've put together!"

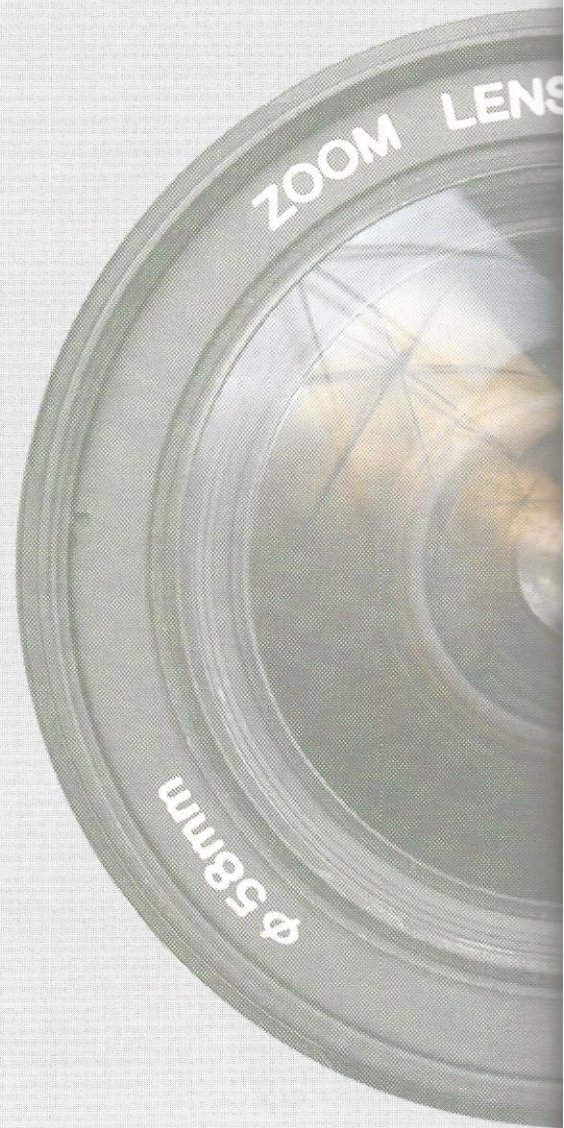

Victoria Sineath

Student Life Editor

"Being able to create a book that will hold students' memories is amazing to me. This year, I've moved up to being an editor, and even though it gets crazy at times, it's so worth it. I love being a part of my crazy yearbook family."

Memories

Memories

Closing

This year, I believe our school has grown closer as a family. The tragedies and accomplishments of our students and staff really brought us all together in unity. Our yearbook staff set out to publish a successful yearbook by becoming involved with school activities and taking part in events. With the help of the amazing students, we are very proud of our production thus far, and I am positive we will be proud of it in the end. The yearbook, as a team, strove to provide the student body with the most memorable reflections of the past school year. Looking back and admiring your past is a part of growing up. Making the yearbook something you enjoy to flip through over and over is the biggest accomplishment we could ever achieve. The yearbook is truly a book chock-full of memories. Memories will always be kept away somewhere safe, whether they are good or bad. We will always encourage you to capture your memories and keep them dear to you, for you will never relive them.

"Do not dwell in the past, do not dream of the future, concentrate the mind on the present moment."

-Buddha
