

"My favorite part of senior tailgate would be playing corn-hole with everyone." - Danielle Craven

As the seniors began their trek to the parking lot, excitement filled the air in preparation for Senior Tailgate. The party took place on the Friday of Spirit Week; it was a long standing tradition for the Senior class to take a moment out of their busy schedule to reflect on their final year at CCHS and spend time with their friends. This year was no different. The smokey smell of hamburgers and hotdogs filled the air, and the laughter from the seniors could be heard around campus. Corn-hole tournaments took place as the lunch time feast was prepared by each tailgating party. The Class of 2014 rallied together to condense their last memories into a single photo op. Senior tailgate was a special moment for each student of the departing class. Sometimes it can make the realization of being a senior finally sink in, setting a bittersweet mood for the remainder of the day.

"Memories that we will cherish forever."

Brantley Taylor and Donald Rizer are focused into a conversation at Senior Tailgate while Tina Zhou laughs, something she does frequently. During this memorable get-together, the seniors were allowed to prepare their own meals while others played corn hole as they waited for their lunch to finish cooking on the grill.

"Taking pictures, food, listening to music, and talking to friends" made Senior Tailgate fun for Terrance Johnson. Traveling from tent to tent to visit friends and taste-testing the best bites from the grill were the components that made Senior Tailgate one of the most notable lunches of high school.

After eating a hearty meal, Taylor Williams, Deaidra Jones, Charles Folk, Tivia Wright, and Ayanah Dubois gather together to spend the final moments of their Spirit Week together. Though Senior Tailgate was filled with laughter, it rang in the air that this would be the last time the class could spend time together as a whole.
