During a school wide event, the chorus presents their annual Christmas concert to the students and staff. They were excited to show off some moves and extend their vocal chords.

2

Seniors Hannah Houck and Adam Smith lead the chorus students in the National Anthem before the Homecoming football game. Sporting professional white conductor's gloves, the duo enjoyed their leadership.

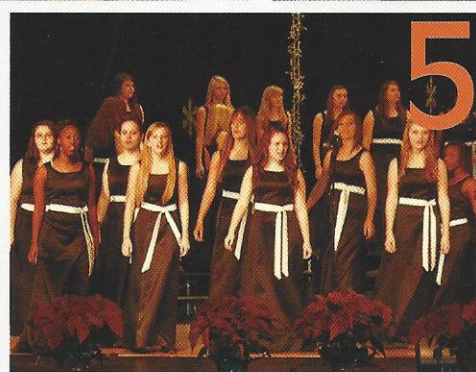

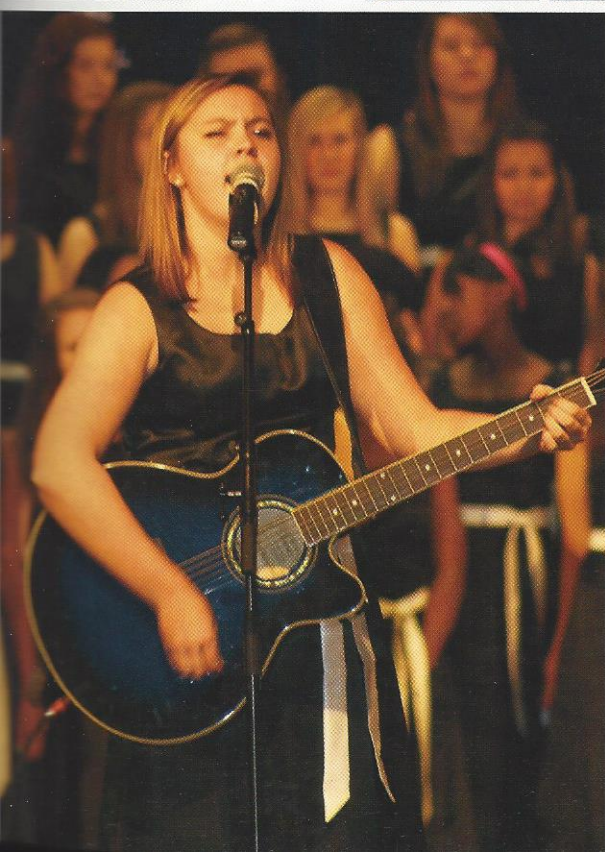

3

CCHS singers learn their music for the spring musical. Getting a head start on the material will make for a smooth-running and less stressful production.

4

Sophomore Marilyn Nolte and junior Tristen Douglas pair up to review their music sheets and try their best to hit the perfect notes.

5

The senior ladies of the chorus program join together to sing "Doo-Wop Christmas," a fan favorite of senior Taylor Williams. "My favorite part of the Christmas concert was when the senior girls were recognized," said senior Taylor Williams.

"I like to sing.
I've done it all my life."
