

JAG is a huge part of Colleton County High School. It was an organization that allowed high schoolers to obtain knowledge they will need to secure future jobs prior to graduation. The students in JAG took the program very seriously and dedicated their time to going on college tours and broadening their horizons. They took field trips and helped with charity events. This year was the first time that JAG had ever held a Daddy-Daughter Dance, which allowed the young women to let loose and enjoy time with friends and family. Mr. Birch and Ms.

Jamison guided the driven group to greatness. This was the fifth year that JAG has been a part of CCHS and the program has helped influence and change young people's lives for the better. Not only did JAG produce better teens, but they also produced better leaders, artists, and entrepreneurs.

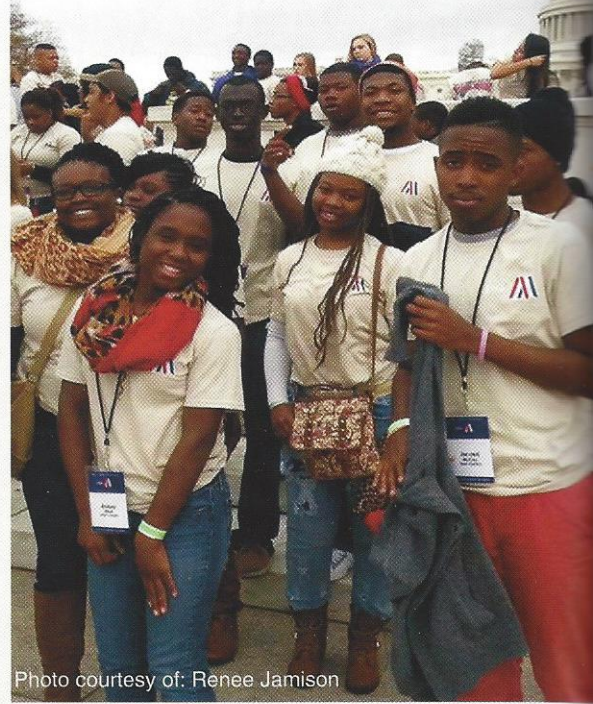

Photo courtesy of: Renee Jamison

jag

1

Seniors Ramon Hall and Terele Parker volunteer at the Voter's Registration Drive. They handed out voter's registration packets and talked to students about the importance of voting and having their voices heard.

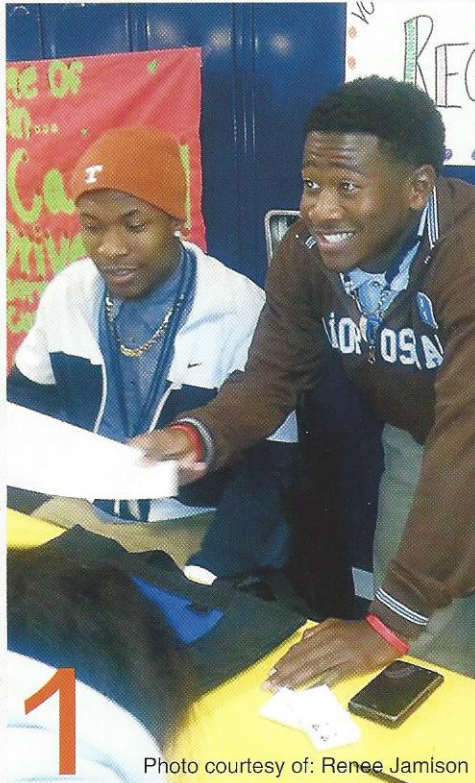

Photo courtesy of: Renee Jamison

2

Junior Shakema Carr and seniors Malik Cobb and William Glover pitch in to help South Carolina GearUp organize their mounds of paperwork.

Photo courtesy of: Renee Jamison

3

Students participate in the ACE Hardware Workshop. ACE Hardware hired select students over the Christmas break to work in the local store to gather real world experiences.

Photo courtesy of: Renee Jamison

"JAG is our home away from home. It's a place we come to school and feel at home. We're learning how to be a part of the workforce and gaining experience for college and our future." - Senior Kashaira Givens