

"Journalism has been a great experience and has helped me broaden my English, reading, and writing skills." -Sophomore Christopher Hunt

journalism

1

There are many great ways to capture and write your own story at Colleton County High School. In Journalism, students learn and develop new writing, social, and language skills. The staff was sent all around the school, and sometimes even the town, to gather any information to contribute to their spreads and articles. Business skills were tested and improved to sell ads to local shops. Journalism adviser and teacher, Mrs. Cable said, "journalism is important for the school and student body to have as an organization because it gives students the opportunity to develop real-world skills in a structured environment." Attending sporting events, performances, and even prom are required to finish the CatTales yearbook and the BluePrint newspaper. Without the Journalism staff, it would be a great deal harder to capture the events and memories around the campus. Journalism isn't just a class, it's a business. Deadlines must be met and events must be covered. In the future, looking back at previous productions will bring back forgotten memories. What better way to write your story?

2

1 Senior yearbook editor Madison Lucas begins the task of editing the spreads for the upcoming deadlines. "Yearbook has opened up a lot of social and academic opportunities for me," "Maddie" explained.

2 Senior newspaper editor Emily Stone edits stories on the BluePrint to make sure the newspaper was up to her expectations. "I love seeing the final publication and seeing everyone's hard work pay off."

Q why is journalism an important part of school or your life?

Q
&
A:

"Journalism helps other students become aware of events going on in the school and to get them more involved."
-Freshman Sydney Green

"Journalism is important to me because I have been a part of it since freshman year. I've decided to make it one of my career choices."
-Senior Logan Anderson

"Journalism is important to me because I enjoy being able to help make the yearbook better."
-Junior Kennedy Maxey

"Journalism is important to the school because it broadcasts the information that the student body needs to know."
-Sophomore Amanda Evans

"Journalism is important to me because it improves my writing, interviewing, and picture-taking skills. It's a really good foundation to build on."
-Freshman Aliayah Barrett