

Language is a big part of who we are; it's how we all express our feelings and greet our loved ones. Languages have helped us leave our mark on this world. By taking Spanish this year many students learned to leave their mark not only in native countries, but also in foreign lands. The students who attempted to tackle this new art took a big step. By learning a new way to speak, students jumped into a different culture.

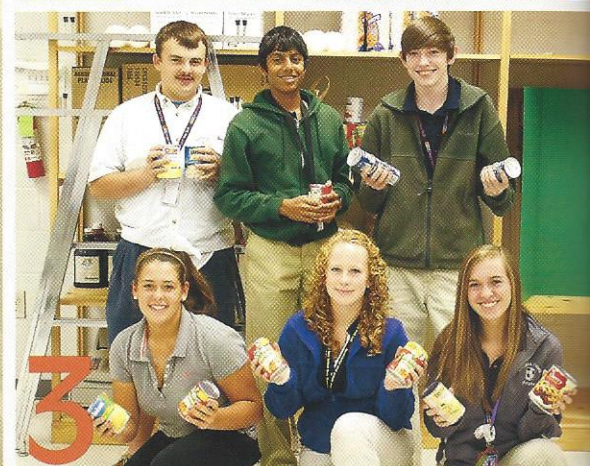

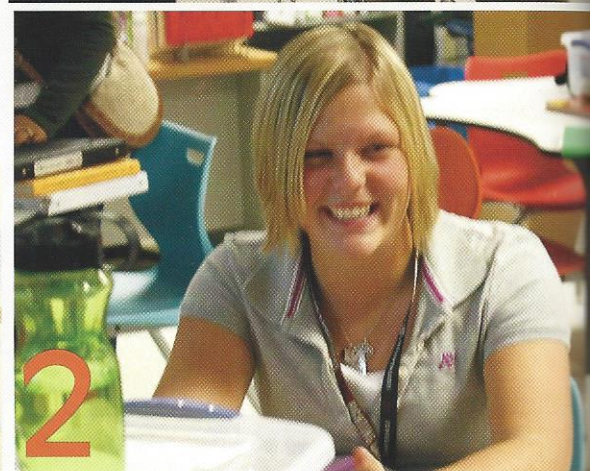

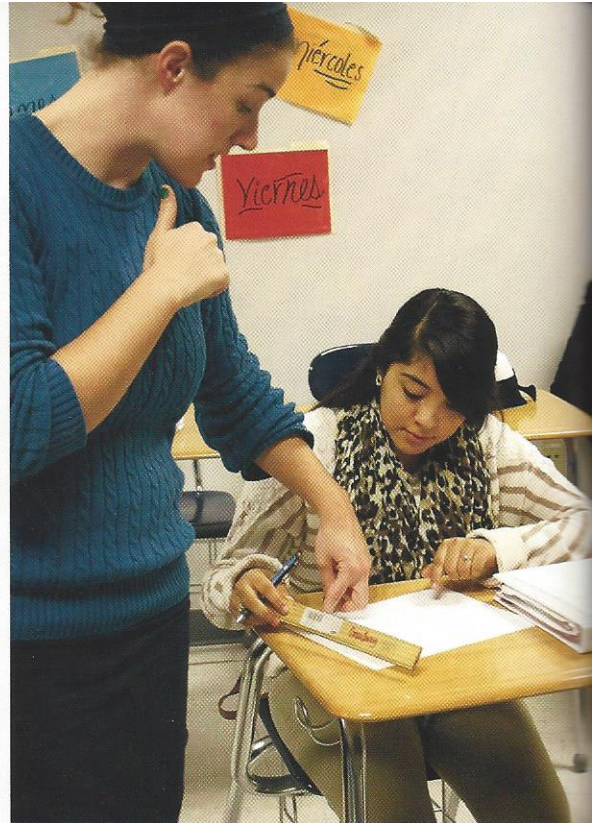

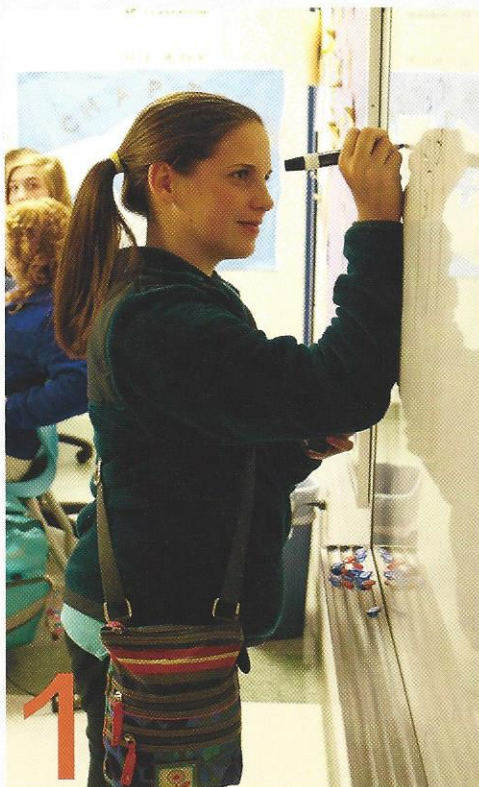

Not only were the students taught to speak the foreign language in class, but they learned Spanish traditions and holidays. Spanish and all other foreign languages are progressively becoming more important in America. Senorita Ford said, "I think Spanish and language in general opens up a new world because if you limit yourself to one language, you have tunnel vision, and you can only see the people like you. So when you speak a second language, you see the world for what it is."

1 Freshman Anna Lee keeps the score for Spanish Bingo in Ms. Clark's class. Anna enjoyed her language class because "it's fun and I love it!"

2 Junior Brianna Evans thoroughly enjoys her Spanish class. Brianna said, "Ms. Clark makes it really easy, and it's a interactive class. It's a lot of fun."

3 Freshmen John Bridge, Kenny Johnson, Matthew Crosby, Lauren Dewitt, Brittany Risher, and Samantha Calcutt sport their canned goods that they collected for Dia de los Muertos, or Day of the Dead.

"Spanish will progressively become more and more important to us as a nation as time wears on." - Sophomore Madison Hay
