1 The officers join the advisor, Mr. Cable, along with the guest speaker, Dr. Miller, on stage after the NHS Induction. All of them smile proudly with how smoothly the induction ceremony went.

2 Senior Ansley Hiers joyously helps put together gifts for Operation Christmas Child. In total, fifteen Christmas gifts were put together and sent off to children in poverty.

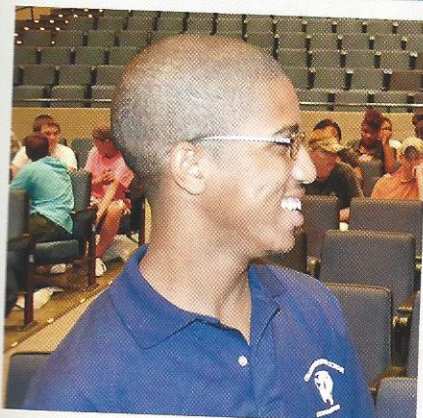

3 Senior Leon Williams discusses future plans for the community service that they will be participating in for Habitat for Humanity. "It teaches NHS members community skills and the power of teamwork," said Leon.

4 The NHS inductees pledge to follow the rules of the organization and pledge themselves to the characteristics of the organization which are scholarship, leadership, character, and service.

president profile

Leon Williams

"Being president of NHS has taught me that being president does not mean doing everything by yourself, but taking the input of your team and those being led. It also takes time and consideration to make all executive decisions and one must understand that all outcomes and effects are on your shoulders."
