

1
2

Freshman Britney Risher serves an impressive floater to Fort Dorchester hoping to ace it. Britney's opinion on her team this year was that, "we played well, but a team can always improve."

The JV Cougars huddle up before their second game against the Fort Dorchester Patriots. Coaches Jimmy Hiott and Drew Calcutt talk with the girls and explain the changes that need to be made when they get back on the court.

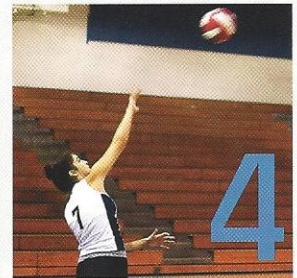

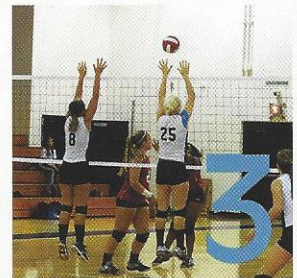

Sophomore Amber Cromer and freshman Victoria Payne attempt to block the ball as their opponents try to gain a point. Both Victoria and Amber have improved their blocking since the beginning of the season.

3

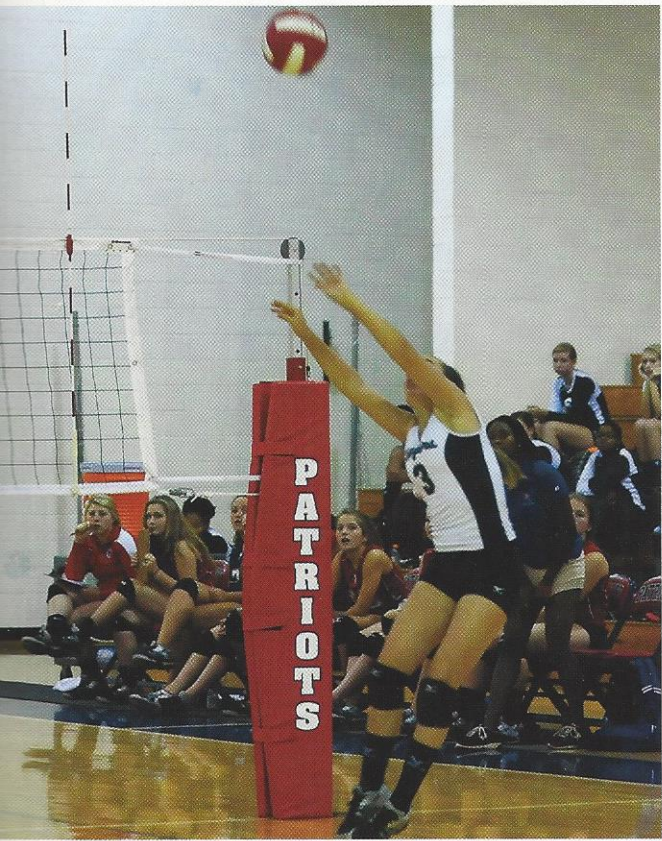

Freshman Haley Felder hopes for an ace as she serves against her opponent. Even though they lost, Haley felt as if this season went well because they defeated their rivals, Summerville.

4

3

4

This year's JV volleyball team started off with an outstanding record. Along with varsity, the girls worked hard and practiced the majority of the summer hoping to become a stronger team. Also attending the College of Charleston summer volleyball camp, the girls continued to become a more secure team before their season started. This group of ladies put their heads and hearts into each game. With dedication, determination, and motivation the girls defeated Summerville for the first time in Cougar volleyball history and ended their season with a record of 7-8. With their sight set on next season, the improvements that were made this year will surely make a positive impact on the seasons to come.

JV VOLLEYBALL

"No matter how far apart we are, we are always still one." - Sophomore Ciara Wallace