

The male chorus members clustered around the microphones and sang "White Christmas." Full of different pitches and tones, the song was made slightly comical and identical to the original version. They took a bow and the audience gave them a round of applause.

Mrs. Drawdy takes the stage at the annual Christmas concert, ready to sing her solo. As she sang "O Holy Night," the room was completely silent. The sound of applause filled the air when she finished.

Seniors Patrick Lyons and Emily O'Quinn, two best friends, are narrated to the stage to perform a duet. They put on a dramatic love story for "Baby, It's Cold Outside." Delicately dancing across the stage, the pair never goes out of character.

Five members of the chorus choreographed a dance to a pop Christmas song. Performing front and center stage, the dancers were dressed in their bright reds. Diligently practicing, they put on a show full of spins and slides.

Junior Ciara Wallace performed "Mary, Did You Know" as a soloist in the Christmas concert. Standing front and center stage, she performed under the spotlight. Audience members said, "it gave them chills."