

Varsity Baseball

The hard work and determination of the CCHS varsity baseball team is rivaled by no other. Throughout the years, people have come to know these players as not only the best of their sport, but as the best of friends as well. Though the goals from season to season are often the same, winning isn't always the key factor of the sport. It's the dedication to the game, the preparation, and the hard work that players put in at every practice and game. Under Coach Knight, the varsity boys condition and practice nearly every day in preseason and practically nonstop throughout the actual season. In addition to all the time spent working hard on the field, however, the varsity baseball players put forth just as much effort in the classroom. Overall, the varsity boys played a successful season and made memories that both senior players and boys that will return in following seasons will never forget.

Senior Ryan Penfield is all smiles on signing day. Ryan, a baseball player throughout high school, signed to play college level baseball at Erskine College in Due West, South Carolina.

Senior Tanner Massey has been playing baseball throughout his entire life and his goal for his final high school season is to make it to the playoffs.

varsity baseball

Junior Timothy Hickman watch from the dugout as the game progresses.

Senior Justin Litchfield credits baseball for helping him to create lifelong friends.

Coach Knight gives the team a quick pep talk at the mound before heading back onto the field.

