

FBLA

THE FUTURE //
The Fall Leadership Conference allows our future business leaders to network and engage.

Community service, school functions, competitions: these are just a few of the activities that the Future Business Leaders of America club participates in during the school year. FBLA is designed to help expose students to careers in business, focusing on leadership development, educational programs, academic competitions and more to help students succeed in a business career. Attending the Fall Leadership Conference, hosted in Charleston, SC, is just one example of what FBLA does. The students associated with FBLA have the opportunity to participate in regional competitions and can place and move up to the state and even national division where they would be rewarded for their skills displayed among many other students from other schools.

FBLA CELEBRATION //
The FBLA group expresses their excitement of participating in the regionals with busting a move.

LEFT: Thaliah Luat works hard to restock the student store.
RIGHT: Jared Bailey and Sinclair Brown win first place for Public Service Announcement

"Leaders become great, not because of their power, but because of their ability to empower others."

Leading The Way//

How has FBLA changed your life, and what life skills has it taught you?

Tevej Rhodes, President

"It's reopened my eyes and prepared me for the transition from high school to life after. FBLA has taught me to have a more competitive edge for the workforce and college."

Kenny Johnson, Vice President

"I've gained more experience from FBLA and gained more ideas about what I want to choose as a career path."

Dipali Patel, Treasurer

"FBLA has taught me more about business skills and gaining more responsibility along with how to be more professional."

