

Each graduating class has a project of choice to complete together by the school year's end. These projects are led and organized solely by the class itself with no outside help from Mrs. Goodwin or another teacher. At the beginning of the year they meet to set a goal to help one area of need whether it be in our school, community, or country. Afterwards, they devise a plan to help the area they picked. These are the projects the class set out and conquered this year:

1. The Senior class project consisted of a literacy outreach in which they collected books to read to children at Elementary schools in our community.

2. The Junior class developed their project of volunteering at the local animal shelter for the past two years. Over these years they have raised money and supplies for our local animal shelter. The class has also spent most weekends waking up early to volunteer at the shelter.

3. The Sophomore class held bake sales for Relay for Life and helped organize and run this year's celebration of life event.

4. The Freshman class organized a fundrasier on St. Patrick's Day to raise money to buy socks and other goods for the veterans at the Veterans' Victory House.

Senior Claire Copeland is the elected student body president. Claire has been in student council for all four years of her high school career and has been an active member in elections. Claire has attended SCASC and camp Cherry Grove which made her an eligible candidate for the position as Student Body President. In her Junior year she ran for district one chair president.
