

WAY BACK WHEN

Life All Began In Sixth Grade

It Has Not Slowed Down Yet

The 6th Graders (currently Senior class) arrived in the middle school building (as all 6th graders do) enthusiastic, frightened, and nervously chattering. They eagerly awaited the day when they would "travel" from one class to another. No longer would these students assemble in self-contained classes; they had reached the age of walks down the hall to change classes, quick darts into the restrooms between bells, and noisy sips from the water fountain as teachers watched the line dwindle before class. The shock of showing up at the right class with the right books on time and with all that homework prepared, quickly became a routine.

As 7th graders who were confident and fun-loving, sharing jokes and even homework sometimes, they turned into cocky 8th graders whose interests mushroomed, class routines became "old hat" and we became more sophisticated! After all, the younger students needed inspiring role models in the middle school building. School assumed a new dimension for 8th graders — they perceived it not only as a place to learn but a place to socialize!

Taking a break to gossip has always been the thing to do. Even as sixth graders this group of seniors has always been ready to get away from school work.

Crazy as ever!! Seniors have not changed a bit from the wild times in seventh grade history class.
