Special organizations for special people

Special organizations for special interests include Teen Institute-Youth Advisory Board, and Spanish Club. Teen Institute and the Youth Advisory Board consists of students chosen for high standards of conduct and leadership. T.I. members Travis Folk, Tina Patel, and Amy Carter attended a special workshop at Coker College on teenage drug and alcohol abuse. Membership, to the Y.A.B., is limited by invitation only to students in grades 8-12. These students must maintain high standards of conduct and provide leadership within the student body. New members are seniors Virginia Greenwell, Rebecca Speaks, Dori Futch, Kristy Godley, Archie Murdaugh, and Mike Regenovich; juniors Randee Ritter, and Marnie Amerson; sophomores Tracy Tittle and Walter Fralix; freshman Laurel Anne Oswald; eight graders Ginger Speaks, Kaci Nelson, Danielle Dantzler, and Lindsay Davenport. Appropriate holiday decorations were hung from the ceilings in every building. Posters about drug and alcohol abuse, posters promoting school spirit and pride enliven the halls.

On the other hand, the Spanish Club is open to any high school student. Like T.I. and Y.A.B., the Spanish Club celebrates holidays too; the only difference is that this club commemorates the Spanish traditions instead of the American traditions. Columbus Day, Day of the Dead, and Day of Three Kings are the most observed. Spanish Club members celebrate these holidays with picnics, parties, and caroling.

On January 13, 1992, the Y.A.B. sponsored a dance for the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades. Making sure everyone has a good time, Dori Futch and Archie Murdaugh encourage the others to dance.

Spanish Club members often ate lunch on the front lawn during their meeting. Carmon Valentine finishes eating while listening to Mrs. Folk make plans for the Day of the Dead celebration.
