

Students weren't the only people to take part in Spirit Week. On "Country Redneck Day," Headmaster Ray Quarles with kindergarten teachers Belle Moorehead and Gail Howell flaunted their countrified attire during the day. Mrs. Moorehead's pet cow, Mrs. Howell's camouflage, and Mr. Quarles's tacky tie brought laughter.

During Red Ribbon Week, Tina Patel and other members of the Youth Advisory Board (YAB), presented a package of newborn-size T-shirts to Kay Summerford, RN, at the nursery at Colleton Regional Hospital. The T-shirts are printed with red ribbons and a motto "Have a drug-free life." Before the YAB left the hospital, the nurses allowed them to see some of the newborns.

Fifth graders sign their names in the handprints to promote drug and alcohol free youths. This poster, suggested by the Youth Advisory Board, was one of several advertisements at C.P.A. in observance of Red Ribbon Week. The "Hands Off of Drugs and Alcohol" poster makes a strong statement to young students who eagerly sign up!
