

Problems Don't Limit Talent

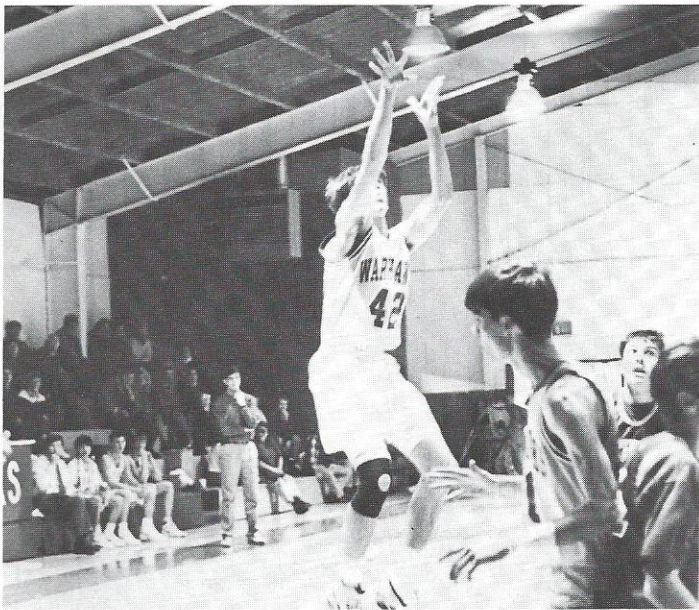

ECHNICAL DIFFICULTIES

The 1991-92 Varsity Hawks had a season full of ups and downs. They began with a small team which was constantly decreased because of injuries and sickness. Shaw Regenovich broke his hand during a scrimmage before the actual season had even begun. Marshall Morehead and Mike Regenovich received injuries to their ankles during games. With only seven players on the team, one player's absence made a big difference in the outcome of the game, considering the limited amount of substitutes.

Josh White prepares to block his opponent as Wes Pye comes in to help. Wes was just one of the J.V. players who occasionally stepped in to help when the varsity ranks were thin due to illness or injury.

On the other hand, the Hawks had a lot of talent and determination. They played well and walked away with many well deserved wins. Shaw Regenovich, a sophomore, enjoyed his first year on the varsity team after playing on the J.V. team the previous year. Marshall Morehead, a newcomer to Colleton Prep, showed much potential as he won an MVP award at the Pinewood Invitational. The older boys added the valuable experience. As a whole, the team was solid as they strived through a tough but rewarding season.

Shaw Regenovich, a sophomore, quickly releases the ball for an outside two point shot. Shaw's quickness and jumping and shooting ability were a great asset to the Varsity team. This was Shaw's first year on varsity and he proved himself game after game.

Even after a tough third quarter, Buck Howell stays alive and fights because he knows that the Hawks always have a chance to win. Although the Hawks struggled through a long, tough season, they did rather well in the Conference rankings.
