Working Class

All year long, these Juniors could be found hard at work and play. Their responsibilities, other than schoolwork and sports, included earning money to pay for a great prom. In order to do this, they sold magazines, doughnuts, and raffle tickets for a jeep. They kept busy with many projects, such as decorating for the Homecoming Dance, planning the Bonfire and building the Halloween Haunted House. With diligent efforts, the class successfully completed its Junior year.

While selling raffle tickets for a jeep at Wal-Mart, Patrick Ritter, Amy Godley, and Stephanie Padgett decided to take a ride on the merry-go-round. Juniors are never too old to have fun!

Wes Pye and Ashley Woodard put up frames for the Halloween Haunted House. Even though this Haunted House was destroyed by rain, the Juniors were able to rebuild inside the boy's locker's room.

At Fort Dorchester, a group of the Juniors cleans and examines the artifacts that were found.
