

2nd Grade

Full Of Optimism

The students of the second grade faced several new academic challenges. They were optimistic that they could accomplish the tasks of cursive writing, social studies, and multiplication. Art and computer class provided the chance to develop special projects. An end of the year trip to the Discovery Zone highlighted a year full of optimistic adventure.

Patrick Hamilton enters the lower school building for yet another day of school.

During homeroom in Mrs. Bolt's class, Nicholas Fargnoli prepares for the school day by sharpening his pencil.

LOOK WHO'S TALKING

“The best part about our trip to the pumpkin patch was picking pumpkins and getting to keep them. The hayride was fun, too.” Owen Brittle

“Recess is one of my favorite parts of school. I especially love to play on the monkey bars and slide down the sliding board.” Megan Kinard

“On rainy days, when we can't go out to play, we have fun inside. We play games or our teacher, Mrs. Bolt, tells us stories.” Kristen Carter

Ready to go out to recess, Rebecca Boykin removes her jacket from the rack so that she can put it on. Jackets were needed on those chilly winter days.

The second graders play with the parachute during P.E. with Mr. Morehead. P.E. gives the students a break from their work and a chance to stretch their legs.
