Two special events at Colleton Prep help in increasing communication between the younger and older students. These two events were Secret Pal Week and Halloween.

Secret Pal Week, which was sponsored by Student Council, allowed students to grow closer. All week the high school students sent treats and notes to their secret pals. At the end of the week the secret pals met each other at a picnic lunch that was held on the football field. During the long lunch time they got to know each other better.

Halloween was another event which brought the students together. The annual Halloween carnival drew a huge crowd. Students, families, and friends enjoyed the activities at the carnival. The dunking booth and Haunted House were both very successful.

Once you enter there's no turn back . . . Walking through the Haunted House you will be frightened by gory sights such as Jennifer Mixson eating Patrick Ritter's guts. Each year the Junior class sponsors this project at the Halloween carnival to raise money for the Junior-Senior prom. They did an excellent job on making a gruesome and scary house.

Mmm, Mmm good . . . Jennifer Linder and Shanna Butterfield enjoy their lunch which was brought to them by their Secret Pal.
