

TROPICAL

Lagoon, Waterfall, Leis, Pineapples

HIDEAWAY

On May 18 at 8 p.m., ushers, dressed in white tuxedos and wildflower caps, escorted the seniors through a tunnel of wildflowers into their "Tropical Hideaway". Pineapples and coconuts, surrounded by leis, decorated the tables. The juniors had tucked away a straw hut, near the lagoon and waterfall, from which the ushers served punch. Gossamer curtains gave a feeling of seclusion, and the popular music provided by Jay Maxwell's Music By Request enlivened the evening.

Since Prom is the last school dance the senior class will ever attend, it has to be more than just an ordinary dance. "The junior class did an excellent job of making Prom a special memory for the senior class," commented Mrs. Griffith, the junior class sponsor. The senior class will always remember Prom.

A toast to prom . . . Jason Strickland and Ashleigh Padgett enjoy some tropical punch at their "Tropical Hideaway". The punch was served in cocktail glasses to add an exotic flair to the mood of the evening.

So close to paradise . . . Senior Lance Dennis and his date, Becky Smith, wait patiently for the gates of paradise to open. To keep the seniors in suspense, prom officially begins no sooner than eight o'clock.
