

The Council

Leading The Pack

Meeting over the summer to plan a tentative schedule for school gave Student Council a head start. Not only did they plan school and community projects and fundraisers for the year, they set the date for class elections. Ginger Speaks said, "I was really excited about being class representative because I got to participate in more activities, including the Myrtle Beach conference." The Council began working on Secret Pal Week and Homecoming as soon as school started. The Council organized a Thanksgiving dinner for the elderly, planned a Christmas Party for the children's ward at the hospital, sponsored a family at Christmas, and a dance for the fourth and fifth grades on Valentines Day. They also took part in a food drive.

This year the Student Council stayed busy from start to finish. Their main goal was to have a successful year at the State Council Convention in Myrtle Beach, South Carolina. They hoped to win the award for Student Council of the Year. Divided into two sections by school size, the Council felt they had a better chance at winning.

The officers selected for the 1993-94 school year are as follows: Amy Godley, Secretary Treasurer; Gary Brightwell, Advisor; Garner Regenovich, Vice President; Shaw Regenovich, President; Jason Strickland, Sergeant at Arms.

One, Two, Three . . . Dallas Wood, eighth grade president, counts the money made from the cake raffle. Even though this is his first year, Dallas proves to be a very dedicated member.

Listen up! Cara Valentine, the ninth grade representative, begins the morning's announcements. This is a weekly job that gives all members a chance to participate in school activities.
