At the Teaching Kids About the Environment camp at Lake Marion, we learned about natural resources. We enjoyed the outdoor laboratories for wildlife, soil, water, and forests, but we didn't like singing "Wake Up the Birdies"!

Colleton Preparatory Academy

I couldn't wait to meet my secret pal. I liked secret pal week a lot. I had a good time with him at the picnic and I enjoyed all the food he brought me.

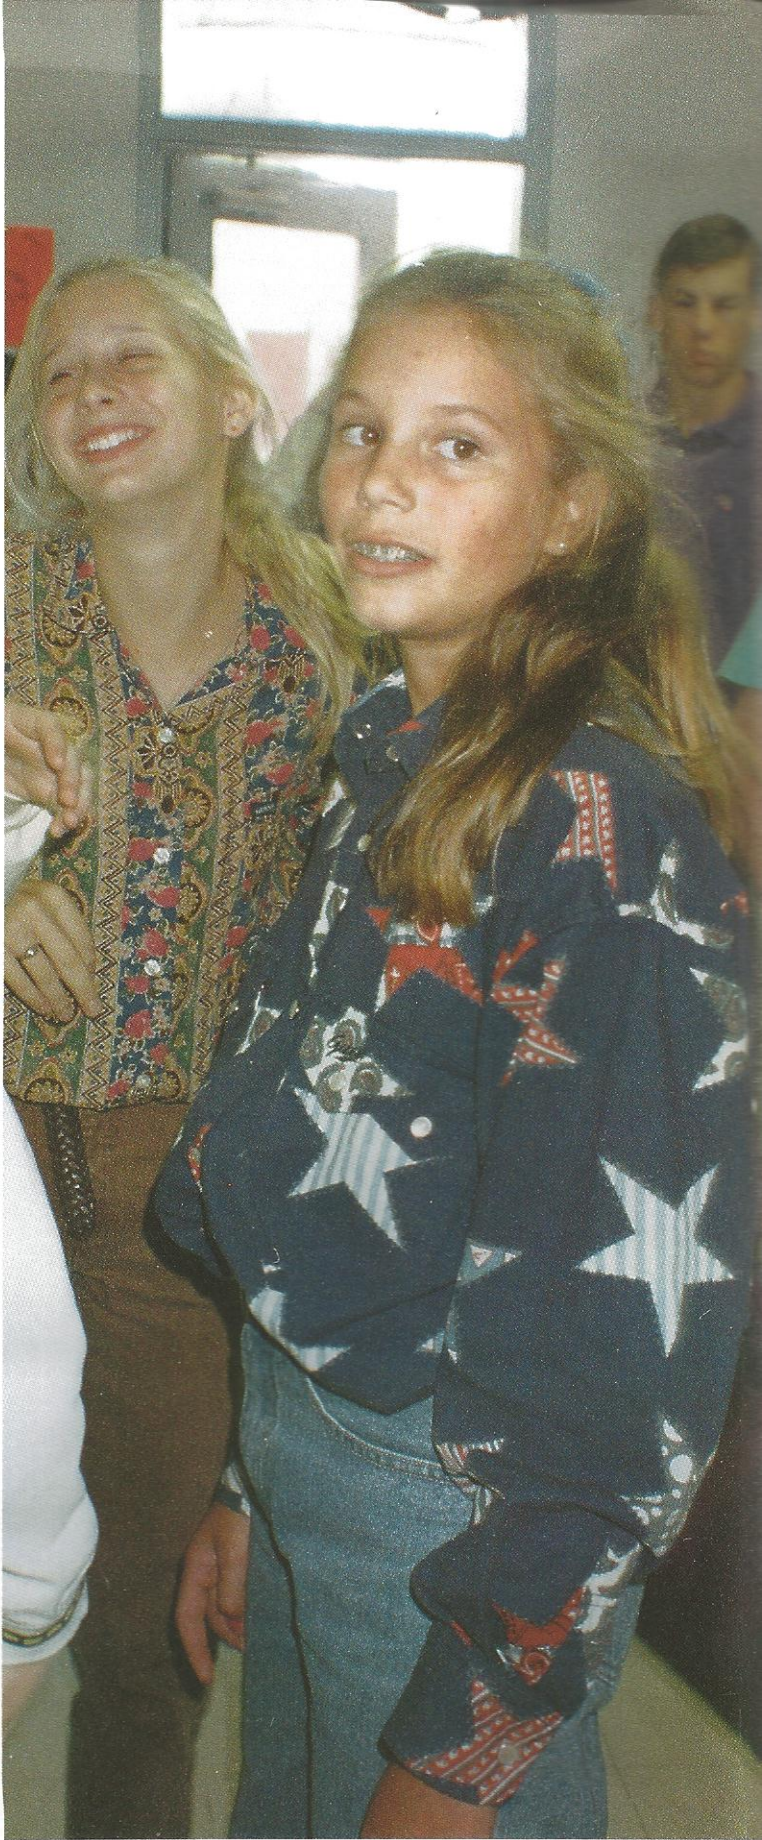

Stephan Copeland

These sixth graders and their secret pals eagerly await the next cheer for the Hawks at the pep rally. Because all grades participate in school activities, the classes can develop better relationships.

Seventh graders Hannah Huffines and Chris Zipperer catch up on the latest news while they wait for the bell to ring. Socializing before class plays a large role in the lives of Colleton Prep students.

TALON

“May I have your attention for today’s announcements . . .”

(Did you hear what she told him?)

“There will be a Student Council meeting during lunch today.”

(Homework? WHAT homework?)

“We will also be having a pep rally today after school.”

(Meet us at the Waffle House after the game.)

“Have a nice day.”

After we signed up for Physics, we were a little worried; we wondered if we could even pass. We all thought that Physics would be really hard, and the idea of having a new teacher didn't ease our minds. But Mrs. Kluge makes our class interesting. She uses activities in class to apply what we learn.
— Beth Childers

Coach George Brittle has many jobs, including acting as the official bus driver for school activities. While the seniors brave the waters in the bumper boats at Frankie's Fun Park, Coach Brittle decides to take a break from it all and get a little sleep before the return trip home.

Throughout our high school years, Travis and I spent many lunches in the lab with Mrs. Griffith, but in the end it has paid off. She helped us to understand many things in all of our Biology and Chemistry classes, and she is a good friend, too.

Brandon Sauls

Speaking For # YOURSELF

Almost every morning at ten 'till eight, their sounds can be heard in the halls — their cramming for tests, their finishing homework, their sharing the latest gossip and socializing. These individuals, diverse and varied, gather as students to form classes with distinct personalities.

Step by step, these voices mature. From reciting the ABC's to delivering speeches in class to cheering the team on to victory, each student's unique personality contributes to the one voice of Colleton Prep — the voice of the War Hawks.

7 through The Years

When the freshman class of 1994 walked through the doors of the high school building, they knew they had a long and tough road ahead of them. As the years passed, they have made many memories, good and bad, and stuck together when times were tough. New friends have come and old friends gone, each for their own reason. The ones that remain have almost finished that road and now have become seniors, the Class of 1994.

Through the years the class as a whole has accomplished many goals. As freshmen, they learned how to speak a different language in Mrs. Folk's Spanish I class, and found out what high school was all about. In the tenth grade, everyone toughed it out together in Mrs. Smoak's history and Mrs. Linder's English class. The next year was a year of disagreements, arguments, and many meetings. Trying to put together a haunted house, homecoming dance, and Junior/Senior Prom was a task. Raising money for these things was difficult, but they did it by selling magazines, doughnuts, and washing cars. Now they are seniors and preparing themselves for graduation by visiting colleges and deciding what college to attend, ordering caps and gowns, making sure their grades are good, and taking the SAT or ACT.

The senior class has come together through the years, and this togetherness will be remembered after graduation, when each student will go his separate way always remembering what made him a part of the Class of 1994.

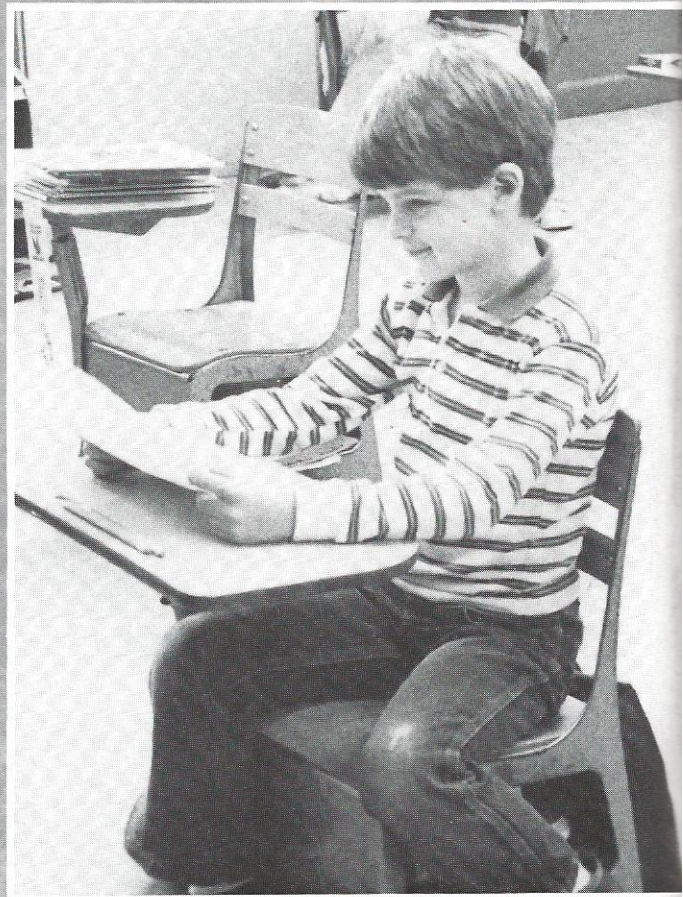

The senior class welcomes back the newlywed Mrs. Jason Reeves, by giving her a party with snacks and a three-tiered wedding cake made by Mrs. Fralix.

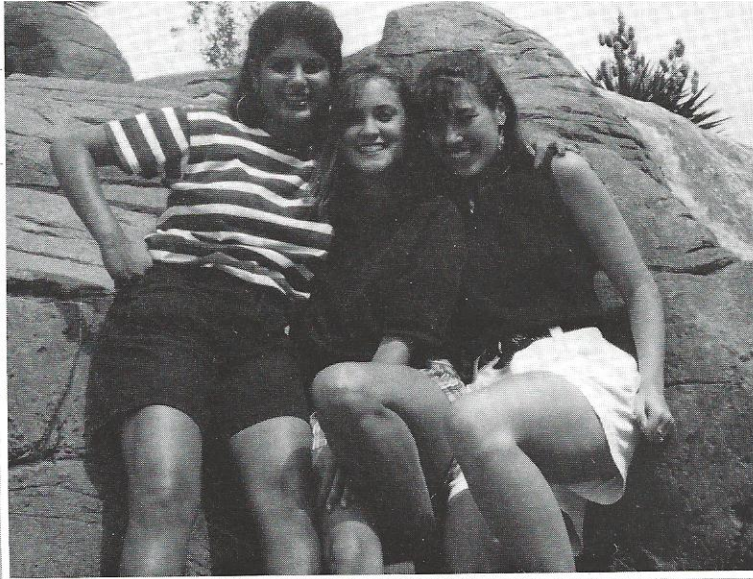

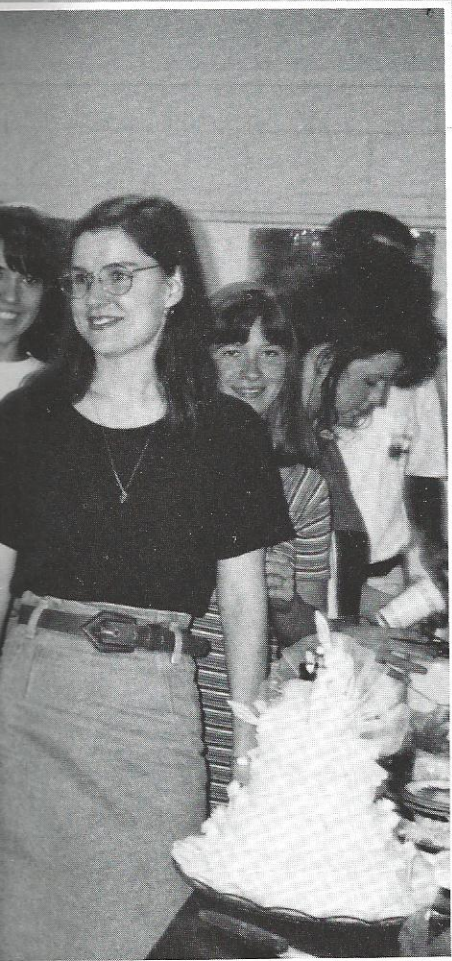

Recess was always a great time to have fun.

Trey Asbelle and Steven English, along with another classmate, liked to play touch football on the playground.

Steven English looks thrilled at the test just given to him by his teacher. Do any of the questions look familiar?

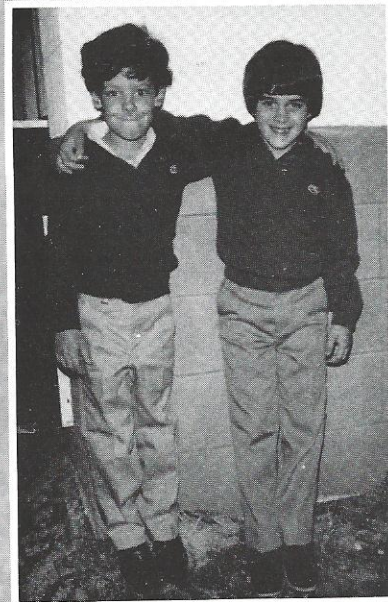

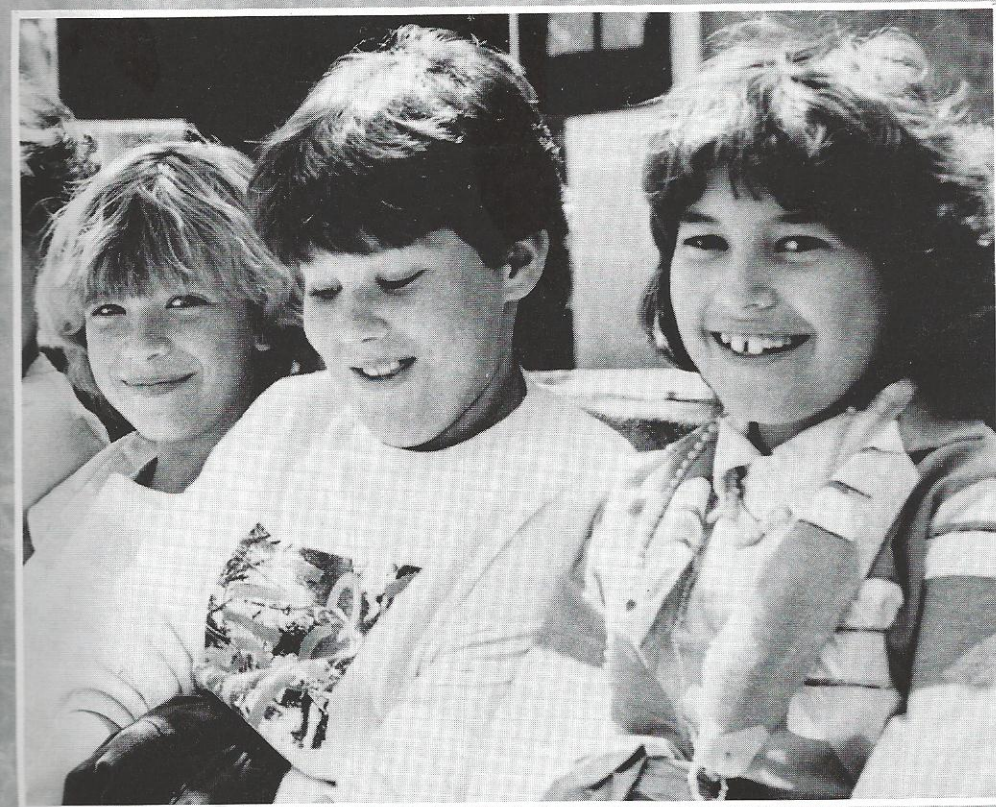

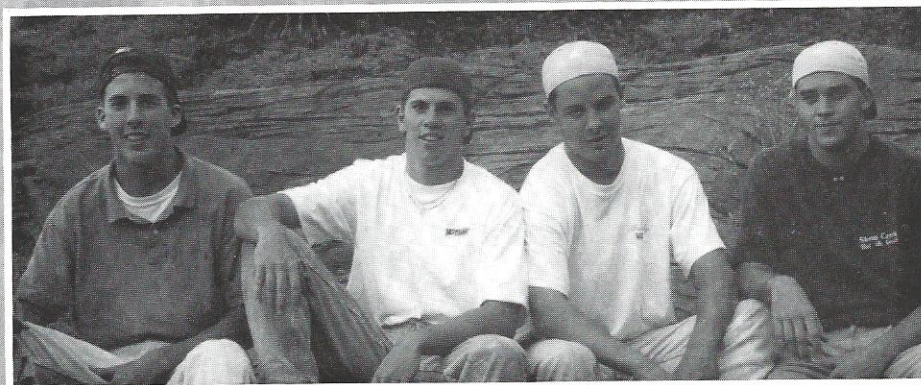

Tina Patel, Tracy Tittle, and Susan Drawdy hope to be friends forever.

Tina Patel and Susan Drawdy attempt to play skee ball. It did not take them long to find out that the game is harder to play than it looks.

What a face on these guys! Marshall Morehead, Bert Sweat, and Gene Alderman traveled to Washington, DC with Mrs. Werntz. Try keeping up with her and you will look like that, too.

Jason Stripling is trying to convince Trey Asbelle that if Trey could lift weights and work out like he does, Trey could be just as strong as Jason is in no time at all.

We, the senior girls, are glad to have finally made it to our last year in high school. We look forward to the years ahead with high hopes and dreams. We can only hope to be as happy as we were the day we had our senior picnic.

We walked into our kindergarten class that first day, holding onto our mother's hands, not knowing what to expect. We were not sure if we could make it until the end of the day. The farthest thing from our mind was graduation.

Thinking back, we helped each other get through that first day and many others. Through growing friendships, we laughed and cried, studied, and partied together. Becoming more than just classmates, we could always find a friend to comfort us — someone in which to confide and share our hopes and dreams.

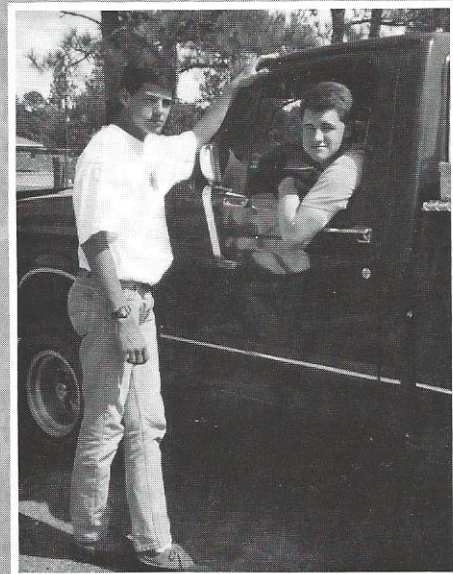

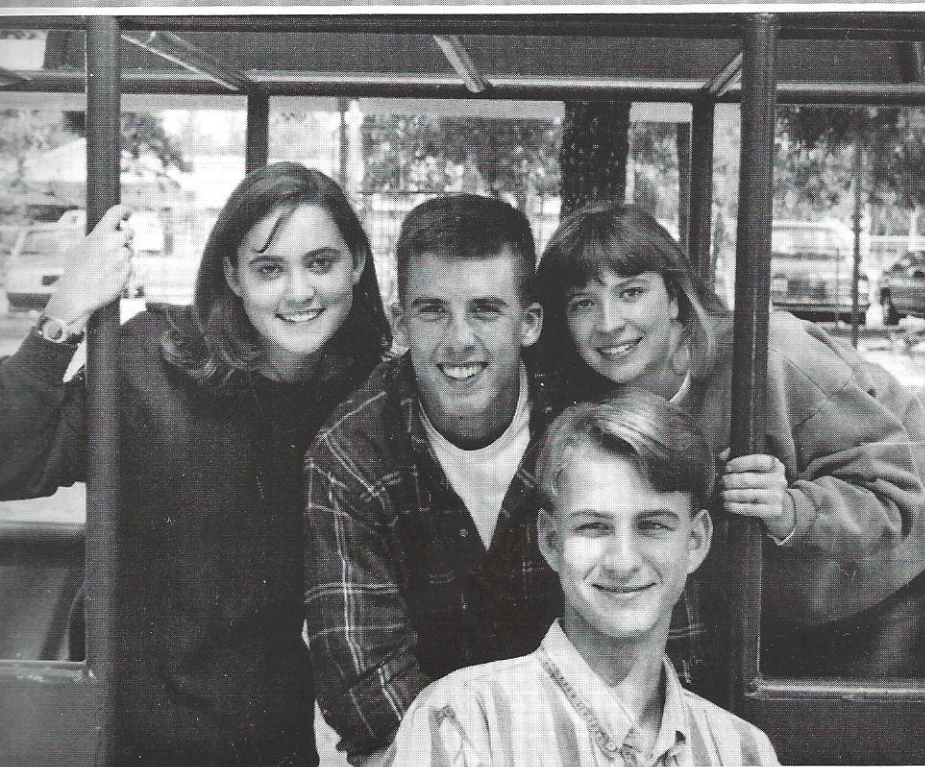

Now, at last, the hand we hold is the hand of a friend. When we go our separate ways we will remember the times we've shared at Colleton Prep. As we grow older, the first memory we will recall will be of a friend ... a friend forever.

A Friend Forever

The senior guys gather for one last photo. They took this opportunity to commerate the good times they have shared. While on their picnic, the seniors spent the afternoon eating at Coach Brittle's favorite restaurant.

Hurray! School's out. Brian Snead and Steven English are planning what they are going to do for the rest of the day.

1993 Senior Class Officers are Tracy Tittle, Pres.; Brandon Sauls, S.C. representative; Holly Griffith, Sec.-Treas.; and Walter Fralix, Vice-President.

Juniors

Working Class

All year long, these Juniors could be found hard at work and play. Their responsibilities, other than schoolwork and sports, included earning money to pay for a great prom. In order to do this, they sold magazines, doughnuts, and raffle tickets for a jeep. They kept busy with many projects, such as decorating for the Homecoming Dance, planning the Bonfire and building the Halloween Haunted House. With diligent efforts, the class successfully completed its Junior year.

While selling raffle tickets for a jeep at Wal-Mart, Patrick Ritter, Amy Godley, and Stephanie Padgett decided to take a ride on the merry-go-round. Juniors are never too old to have fun!

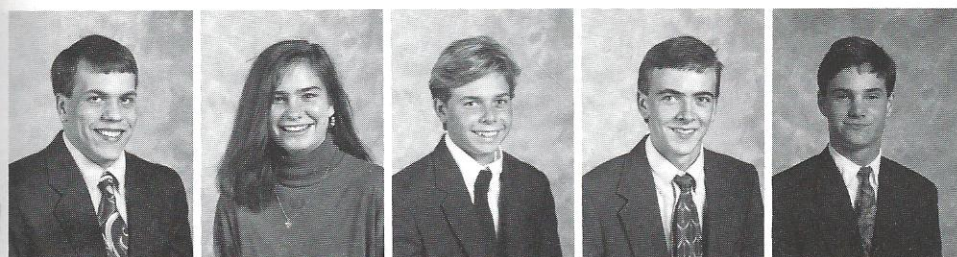

Wes Pye and Ashley Woodard put up frames for the Halloween Haunted House. Even though this Haunted House was destroyed by rain, the Juniors were able to rebuild inside the boy's locker's room.

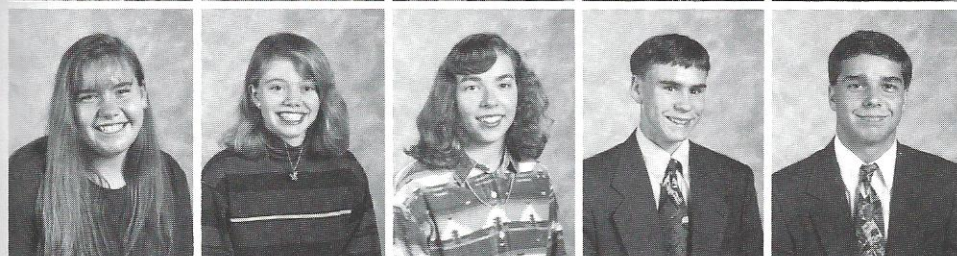

At Fort Dorchester, a group of the Juniors cleans and examines the artifacts that were found.

Sophomores

Ready And Willing

If there was one word to describe the Sophomores, it would have to be involved. In addition to class responsibilities, almost everyone participated in a sport, or other extracurricular activity. Jennifer Beach enjoyed her packed schedule. "We are so busy with studying, sports, YAB, Student Council, and yearbook staff that it is a wonder we find time for friends and sleeping; but somehow we do." The Class also enjoyed trips to see the Ovation! stage production and to the MUSC Children's Hospital. Always busy, the Sophomores should be well prepared for next year.

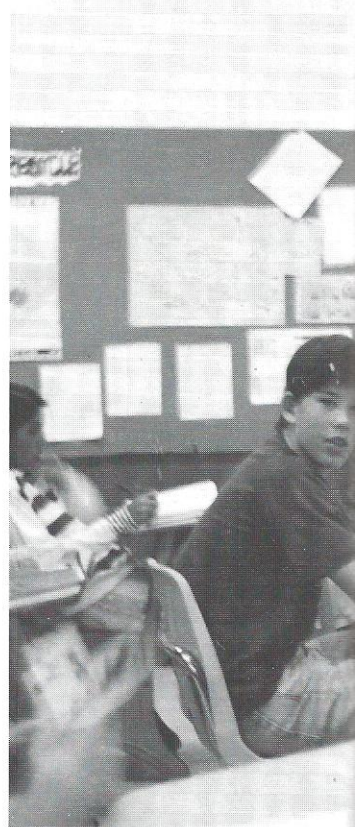

During lunch, Garnett Johnston and Lindsay Davenport study in the hallway for their vocabulary test.

Lori Smith prepares to get in her car to leave school. Many of the Sophomores have their driver's licenses and enjoyed the privilege of driving to school.

Freshmen

Off And Rolling

Entering their last phase of education at CPA, students were just a little anxious at the beginning of the year, but soon became accustomed to this new routine. The many activities available to choose from included working on the Talon staff, participating in sports, or joining the Quiz Bowl Team, YAB, FCA, and the Science Club. A foreign language, Spanish, was added to the curriculum. Becoming a part of high school was an exciting achievement for the Freshman class.

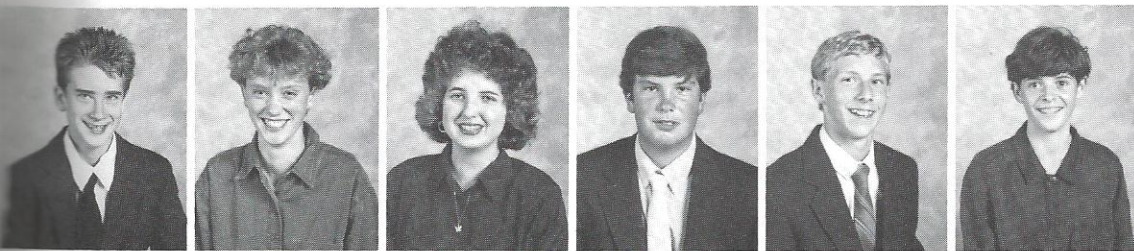

Cara Valentine and Melanie Hoats smile as Mrs. Folk shows a pacifier to them. When a student whines, Mrs. Folk gladly rewards him by having him wear a pacifier for the remainder of the class.

Standing Firm

In their last year of middle school, the eighth graders found that there was much to do. More difficult subjects, such as algebra and geography, were added. In science, the class studied birds and rocks in great detail. New responsibilities included cleaning the bird sanctuary. With effort, they continued their pursuit of education.

A Year Of Learning

Advancing to the seventh grade was an adventure providing new challenges for these twenty eight students. In all of their subjects, the class found themselves very busy. A history requirement had each student write a report on a different S. C. county, while in literature, they made an in-depth study of Charles Dickens. For math, the class participated in an M&M's project, which allowed them to eat the candy after they had used it to compute problems. By year's end, the seventh graders were anxious for summer vacation.

David Padgett, James Troupe, Mills Hawkins, and Brian O'Quinn play soccer with sixth graders John Osteen and Jesse Filion. The sixth and seventh graders shared a P.E. class, taught by Coach Brittle.

Preparing for the next class, Douglas Lorin looks in his notebook for his notes from the day before. Being a member of the seventh grade meant that the students had to study a little bit more, but it also meant that they had more privileges.

Changing Ways

As Middle School students, the sixth graders could change classes, have different teachers, and participate in junior varsity sports. The girls were especially excited to be able to be involved in a girl's B-Team for basketball. Keeping an expert's journal allowed students to choose a particular subject they were interested in and learn more about it. This active group enjoyed getting away from school to visit the State Museum and Middleton Place. The class also took exams for the first time, an experience that most would like to do without.

Rising Stars

As the oldest class in the lower school, the fifth grade enjoyed many activities. Loving to read, the students participated in the Accelerated Reader Program. They were also instrumental in starting the Post Office. The Science Fair was another big project for them. In all of these aspects, the class proved to be winners.

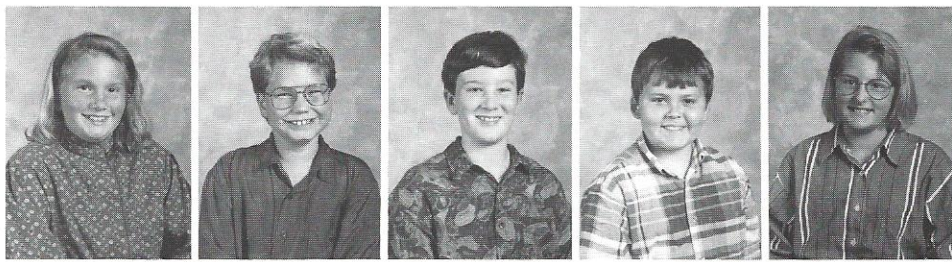

At the Thanksgiving feast, Tyler White and Kevin Dennis eat the lunch that was prepared for them.

Young Naturalists

The fourth grade class seemed to be constantly on the go. Field trips, including touring the Westvaco Bluff Trail, the Earthquake Center, and watching the lumbering process at the Upchurch's, broadened the students' knowledge, and helped them take notice of their environment.

The fourth graders, dressed as Christmas presents, practice singing. The class sang carols at a P.T.O. meeting.

A Challenged Group

This energetic group of sixteen students entered third grade with high expectations. Taught by Mrs. Davenport, the class faced challenging demands. South Carolina history was a favorite subject for some. Trips to the State House and the Governor's Mansion in Columbia and to the Confederate Museum in Charleston brought history alive with visual experiences. In math, they learned about fractions, square roots, and even how to write a check. The students were able to learn new things and have fun at the same time.

Full Of Optimism

The students of the second grade faced several new academic challenges. They were optimistic that they could accomplish the tasks of cursive writing, social studies, and multiplication. Art and computer class provided the chance to develop special projects. An end of the year trip to the Discovery Zone highlighted a year full of optimistic adventure.

A New Beginning

The new prep first grade was small in number and size, but big on enthusiasm. Serving as a bridge between kindergarten and first grade, this class expanded their skills of math and reading, enjoyed art, and made books. All year, they learned of friendship, sharing, and life at CPA.

Memorable Experiences

The kindergarten class had a year full of memorable experiences. Their education included not only the basics of reading, writing, and arithmetic, but also an introduction to computers, Spanish, and P.E. Helping with classroom decorations each month, decorating cupcakes to enjoy at the "100-days" party, and joining in the school spirit as Wee Hawks kept these students involved at CPA.

The playground is a fascinating place for kindergarten students. Catherine Harvey and Melanie Manigo find the swings especially interesting.

Isabel Carlton, Rebecca Jacobs, Ashley Karst, and James Waddell think that riding the merry-go-round is a great way to spend recess time.

WHAT DO YOU

SAY!

Beginning the year with the first cheers of the season at the Football Jamboree, and ending with laughter mixed with sadness at graduation, the lives of Colleton Prep students could be traced by their familiar sounds. Year after year, students not only attended classes together, they also joined to show their spirit, have fun, and make lasting memories. From the small voices shouting “trick or treat” at their first Halloween Carnival to shouts of victory at Homecoming to heated discussions over plans for Prom, CPA was filled with the noise of student life.

Crew

If an outsider were to come to Colleton Prep during the week of Homecoming, he would be in for a total surprise. Every day of Spirit Week is a special day with a special name. On each of the days, the students come dressed according to the day. On Monday, "Kris Kross Day," students wore their clothes backwards. "Pajama Day" followed, with people dressed in their night clothes. On "Mourn the Rebels Day" students wore black, symbolizing the hoped victory over Country Day. "Country Redneck Day" was the day the halls were filled with students dressing as Rednecks. The week ended with "Blue and White Day" where the students showed their Hawk Spirit by dressing in blue and white and participating in the biggest Pep Rally of the year.

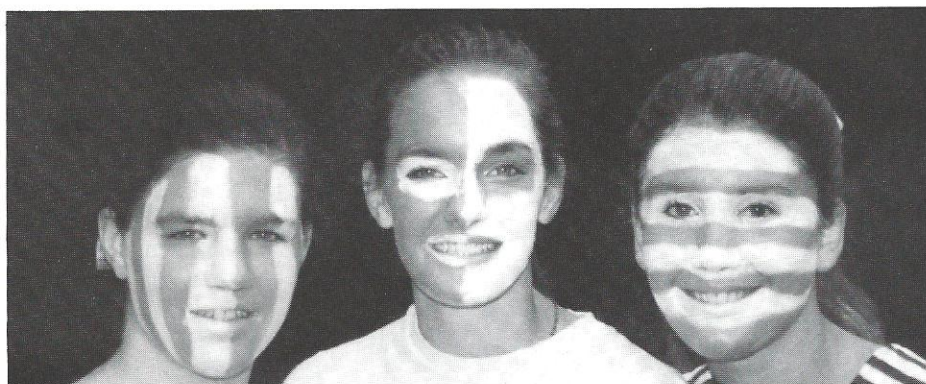

At the Pep Rally, students from Kindergarten through third grade competed in a spirit wagon competition, where each class decorated wagons with spirit paraphernalia. The third grade was judged "most spirited". Students in grades four through twelve competed in a skit competition, where each class presented an original skit about the Hawks and the Country Day Rebels. The winners of the skit competition were the fourth graders.

Here come the Country Day Hillbillies . . . The sixth grade performed a skit in which they told a tale about the Country Day Rebels. John Osteen, Brooks Morehead, Moya Moberly, and Amanda Morrissey are dressed as the Country Day Hillbillies on their way to Hawk territory.

True Country Boys . . . Bud Herndon and Michael Stone went all out on "Country Redneck Day" to show their spirit. Bud, dressed as a country farmer, and Michael, dressed as a hunter, try to impersonate the Country Day Rebels that the Hawks hope to defeat.

Blue and White Attack . . . These girls have spirit written all over their faces. Lindsay Davenport, Garnett Johnston, and Ashleigh Padgett show their support for the War Hawks by painting their faces blue and white on Friday.

A little bit of spirit with cherries on top . . . Mrs. Speaks and Mrs. Barello amazingly agreed to take part in the eighth grade skit, however, they had no idea what they were getting themselves into. The eighth grade made a spirit cake with actual ingredients such as eggs, oil, and icing. Mrs. Speaks and Mrs. Barello were the main ingredient — spirit.

Catch the spirit . . . These fourth graders, dressed as spirit ribbons, are showing their support for the War Hawks at the skit competition.

“I look forward to Spirit Week each year because it’s the only week that we can really be different. My favorite day is ‘Pa-jama Day.’” Amy Godley

Bubba . . . This Country Redneck is taking his time out from a busy schedule. Mr. Quarles shows his spirit by dressing up as a Redneck. During Spirit Week everyone gets involved — not just the students.

Like mother like daughter . . . Sophomore Lori Smith and her mother, who is also the fifth grade teacher, show off the latest country fashions.

The crowd waited suspensefully as the reigning Homecoming Queen and the candidates were chauffeured onto the field by Brian Snead and Steven English. When the cars came to a stop at the fifty-yard line, the Homecoming King candidates, Gene Alderman, Marshall Morehead, and Jason Strickland escorted the candidates for queen, Beth Childers, Holly Griffith, and Tracy Tittle to their places on the field. They waited anxiously, along with the crowd, for the announcement and coronation of the next Queen and the first King of Colleton Prep.

Finally, when Cope Johnston, the reigning Queen, crowned Holly Griffith and Marshall Morehead, the crowd burst into cheers and applause. As the two stepped forward to receive congratulations, Holly Griffith and Marshall Morehead stepped into Colleton Prep history as the first royal couple to reign over the Homecoming festivities.

Crowned ... Holly Griffith, after being crowned Homecoming Queen 1993, stands before the crowd, thanking them for their support.

Yoursel

Two special events at Colleton Prep help in increasing communication between the younger and older students. These two events were Secret Pal Week and Halloween.

Secret Pal Week, which was sponsored by Student Council, allowed students to grow closer. All week the high school students sent treats and notes to their secret pals. At the end of the week the secret pals met each other at a picnic lunch that was held on the football field. During the long lunch time they got to know each other better.

Halloween was another event which brought the students together. The annual Halloween carnival drew a huge crowd. Students, families, and friends enjoyed the activities at the carnival. The dunking booth and Haunted House were both very successful.

Once you enter there's no turn back . . . Walking through the Haunted House you will be frightened by gory sights such as Jennifer Mixson eating Patrick Ritter's guts. Each year the Junior class sponsors this project at the Halloween carnival to raise money for the Junior-Senior prom. They did an excellent job on making a gruesome and scary house.

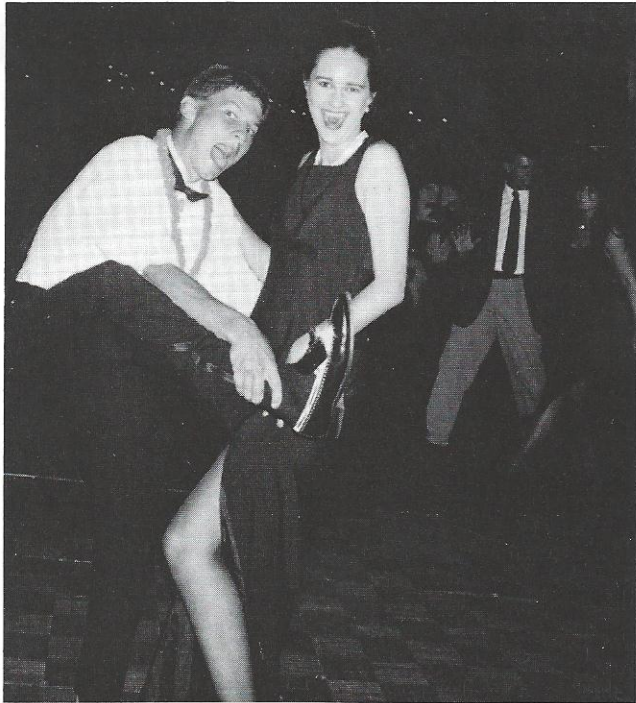

Mmm, Mmm good . . . Jennifer Linder and Shanna Butterfield enjoy their lunch which was brought to them by their Secret Pal.

Making Memories . . . Years of friendship and months of planning have made this night one Susan Drawdy and Walter Fralix will never forget.

Shoes or no shoes . . . Seniors, Craig White and Randee Ritter, show off their secret to staying on their feet until the last dance.

Success . . . Tina Patel, junior class president, and Amy Carter, junior class vice-president, take a break from the excitement to admire the success of Prom. These class officers went beyond the call of duty to make sure that everything at Prom was as close to perfect as possible.

HIDEAWAY

On May 18 at 8 p.m., ushers, dressed in white tuxedos and wildflower caps, escorted the seniors through a tunnel of wildflowers into their "Tropical Hideaway". Pineapples and coconuts, surrounded by leis, decorated the tables. The juniors had tucked away a straw hut, near the lagoon and waterfall, from which the ushers served punch. Gossamer curtains gave a feeling of seclusion, and the popular music provided by Jay Maxwell's Music By Request enlivened the evening.

Since Prom is the last school dance the senior class will ever attend, it has to be more than just an ordinary dance. "The junior class did an excellent job of making Prom a special memory for the senior class," commented Mrs. Griffith, the junior class sponsor. The senior class will always remember Prom.

A toast to prom . . . Jason Strickland and Ashleigh Padgett enjoy some tropical punch at their "Tropical Hideaway". The punch was served in cocktail glasses to add an exotic flair to the mood of the evening.

So close to paradise . . . Senior Lance Dennis and his date, Becky Smith, wait patiently for the gates of paradise to open. To keep the seniors in suspense, prom officially begins no sooner than eight o'clock.

It wasn't easy, but they passed the test! These Kindergarteners are proudly showing off their caps, gowns, and diplomas. They worked hard all year trying to learn the alphabet, tying shoelaces, and lots more! Now they face a greater challenge — First Grade.

Recognized . . . Holly Davenport and Randee Ritter received the highest honors of the senior class of 1993, respectively Valedictorian and Salutatorian. These two girls deserve to be recognized for all their hard work.

"I did it! I loved kindergarten, but I can't wait for first grade."
Michael Stone

Goal Accomplished . . . Marnie Amerson shows off her awards. Each year Headmaster Raymond Quarles presents the Headmaster's award to the senior who puts forth the most effort in school. Marnie Amerson is this year's recipient of the award.

On

Graduation is not only a time to bid farewell to what you have known, but it is also a time to greet change with open arms. When the clock struck eight on May 28, the lives of the graduating class of 1993 were changed forever. Seniors bid farewell to their family at Colleton Prep during the graduation ceremony. The two most outstanding students, Holly Davenport and Randee Ritter, presented speeches filled with pride and respect for their fellow classmates. South Carolina Representative Tommy Hartnett also provided a few words of wisdom for the graduating class.

Graduation is a time to move on. To the Kindergarten class of 1993, this meant moving up on the lower school totem pole. Molly O'Quinn, Christina Crosby, and Lindsey Creech welcomed the audience. Following their presentation, Michael Hickman, Ryan Bishop, and Jacob Morris led everyone in saying the Pledge of Allegiance and in singing "America". The Kindergarten class gave a performance of their favorite play followed by a recitation of the alphabet. Mr. Quarles presented individual diplomas, and K.C. Campbell and Jessica Johnson ended the ceremony with a farewell speech.

Proud . . . Garnett Johnston and Cope Johnston share a close and unique relationship; for they are not just sisters, they're friends.

Close for so long . . . Holly Davenport, Dargan Rowe, and Harper Kinsey stop for their first picture as Colleton Prep Alumni. After being together in the same class for so long, they are now forced to go their own separate ways. This, however, will not stop these girls from keeping in touch.

DAR AND HOBY . . . Amy Carter was chosen as a Miss DAR scholarship candidate and Lori Smith was chosen as Colleton Prep's representative to the Hugh O'Brien Youth Foundation. These girls have shown leadership qualities both in their communities and their school.

Guvies . . . Tina Patel and Amy Carter were chosen to be Governor's Scholars. Governor's Scholars are selected throughout South Carolina to attend Governor's School, a four week camp for rising Seniors who are academically accelerated and have leadership qualities, at the College of Charleston.

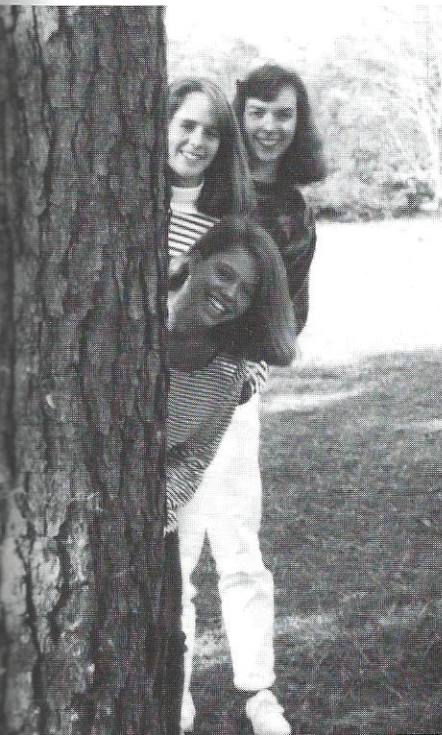

At Boys' State we saw how a court works by participating in a mock trial. I proved my point in court, and I really cornered the criminal.
Travis Folk

Girls' State, Boys' State . . . Travis Folk, Jason Strickland, and Walter Fralix attended the S.C. Boys' State held at Wofford College. Their alternates were Shaw Regenovich and Brandon Sauls (both not pictured). Tracy Tittle and Holly Griffith (alternate) attended the Palmetto Girls' State which was held at USC. Amy Carter and Tina Patel (alternate) were also selected, but could not attend.

Duke . . . Nikki Wise, Regina Ackerman, Michael Wood, and Will Haynes (not pictured) were recognized by the Duke Talent Identification Program for having SAT scores that are better than or as high as high school seniors.

Hidden Talent . . . Wanda Herndon, Laurel Ann Oswald, and Amy Godley attended Leadership '93 at Columbia College this past summer. Laurel Anne also attended Leadership Camp at Presbyterian College. These girls work hard all year on the yearbook staff, the Y.A.B., as well as their schoolwork.

Today & Camps, Govies, TIP, Adventure, Talent Tomorrow

The leaders of today and tomorrow can be found right here at Colleton Prep. The students at Colleton Prep have tight schedules, but this does not stop them from making a difference. Because of their hard work and dedication to achieving highly set goals, students are often given the honor of attending such institutions as the Wofford Summer Program, Girls' State, Boys' State, and other leadership camps. Being able to attend a leadership camp allows a student to learn more about himself as well as the world around him. Some camps such as Governor's School give a student a head start at preparing for college life.

The honor of attending institutions such as those listed above is given only to a few outstanding students. These students truly deserve recognition for their hard work.

JUST SPEAK YOUR

MIND

Sighs of relief after a three-day Calculus test, a question asked about the new graphing calculators, laughter at a story read in the library, and the gritting of teeth at the middle school math meet contribute to the sound of academics at CPA.

With a strong academic tradition, Colleton Prep has continued to strive for the highest standards. The addition of AP Chemistry has increased the already-challenging science and mathematics curriculum, and a new Prep-First grade will aid in providing a strong base for future learning.

Middle building students, sandwiched between elementary and high school, sometimes felt overlooked. However, each class admitted many "turning points" during the year. Morgan Harrell noted that "Fifth grade was easier; in sixth grade you had several teachers instead of just one." Seventh graders taking the Saxon math scored high on the Stanford Achievement Tests. The seventh grade boasted of seventeen students who were academically eligible for the Duke University Talent Identification Program.

Fourth graders Fay Helmly and Chris Davis use computer skills to make changes while writing a story. These students practice reading, writing, and math skills during computer classes.

Fourth graders watch Mrs. Fischer as she explains assignments on the board.

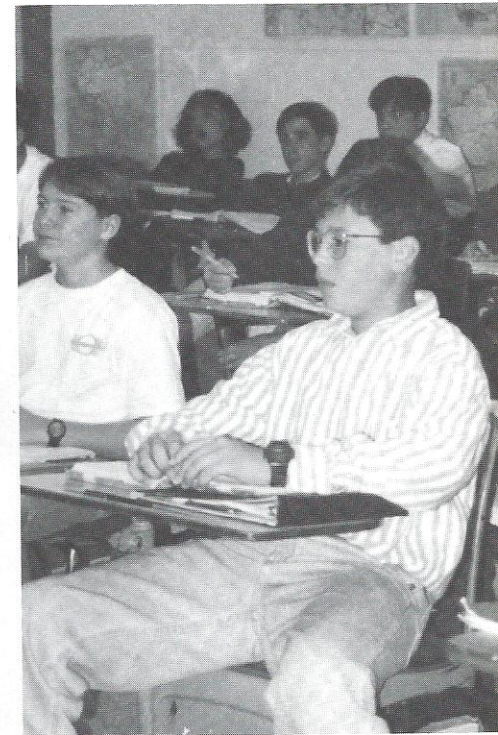

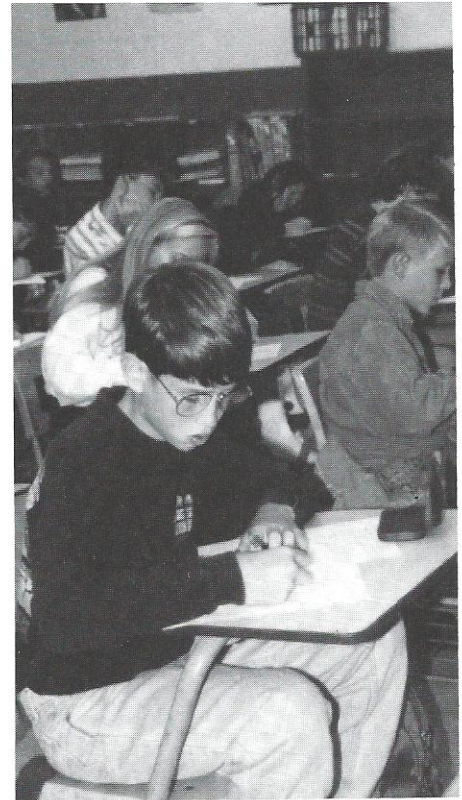

Practicing math skills, sixth graders Pam Godley and Emily White tally the lunch orders in home room.

David Padgett, Brian O'Quinn, and Chris Zipperer make corrections on math homework. The Saxon math program helps students to learn from their mistakes.

Ansley Bailey and Shera Brown create a masterpiece during their art class. These fifth graders enjoy their weekly art lessons.

Discussing current events during Mr. Morehead's geography class, eighth graders Eric Sumner, John Henderson, and Amy Joyner listen attentively.

Burnout

Can You Handle It

Stress is a common problem shared by students. Actively involved in many areas, they struggle to cope under pressure. Setting priorities in academics, athletics, helps students manage the demands placed on them. Teachers are also affected by stress as they try to prepare lessons, grade tests, serve as class sponsors, and attend various functions. Balancing a hectic schedule is difficult.

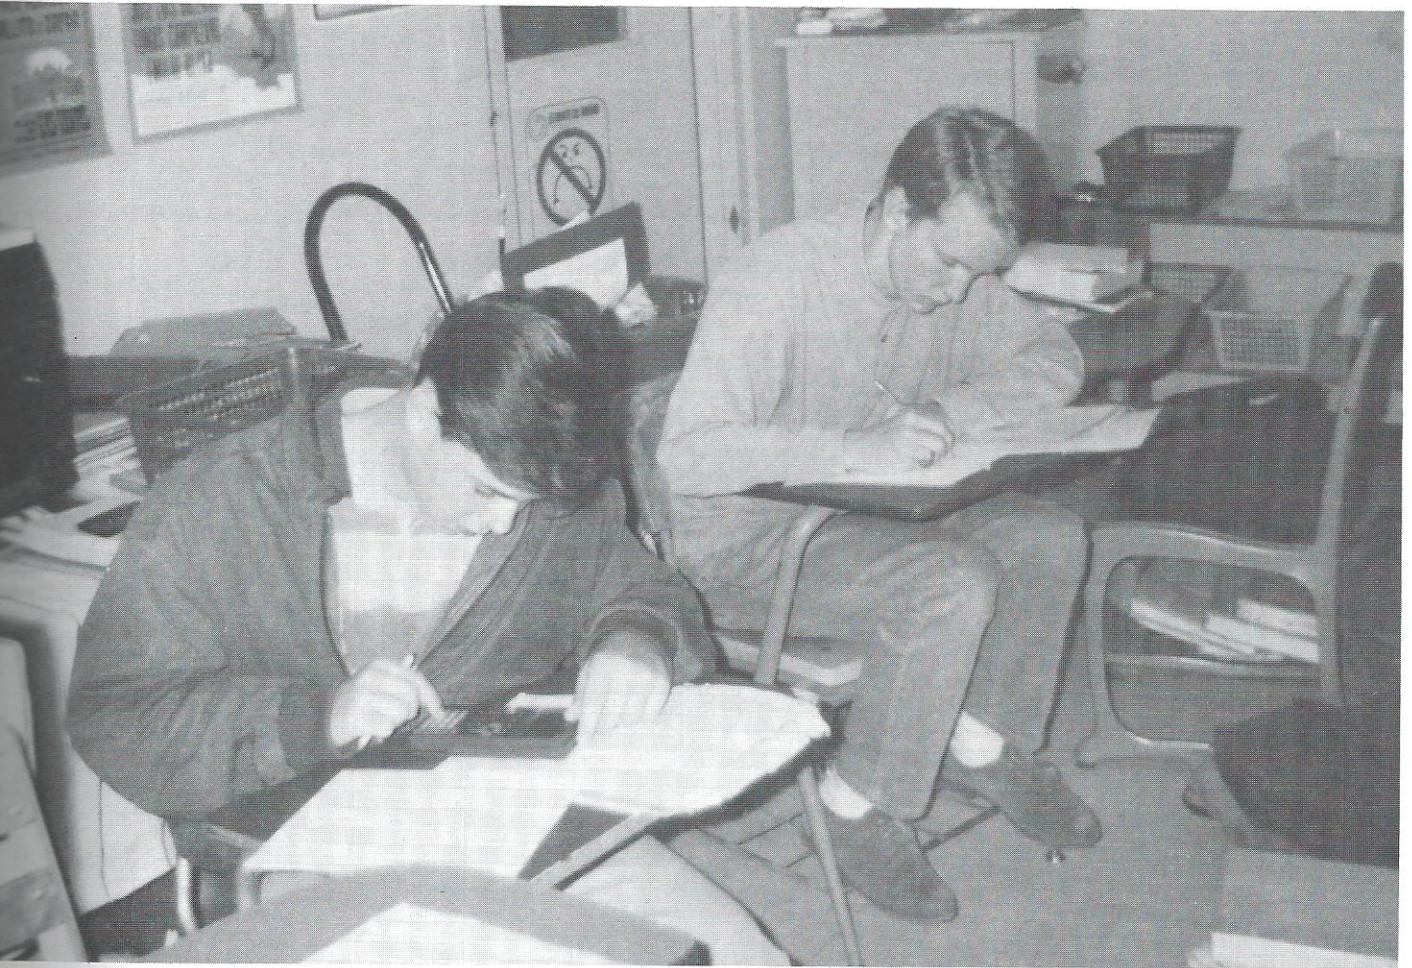

Under stress, Junior Kimberly Smith struggles to recall an answer on a test.

Sophomore Joe McConnell and Jarred Sumner minimize stress by carefully taking notes.

Cara Valentine re-reads her literature so that she will be prepared for class.

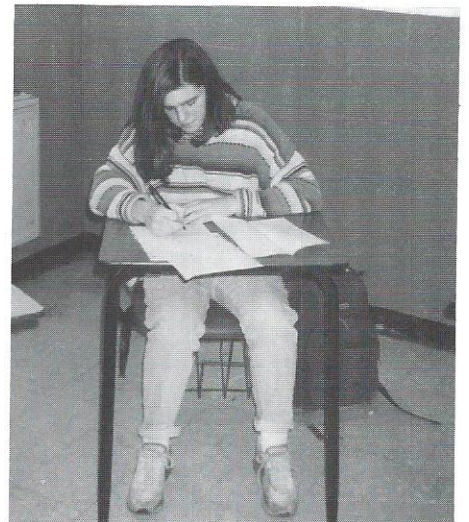

Trying to finish before the bell rings, Patrick Ritter and Bill Carter hurriedly write down the correct answers.

Assistant headmaster, Mr. Danny Parnell, searches through the files for information needed for the day.

Concentrating on her history test, Lindsay Davenport jots down important ideas on a discussion question.

I nnovations

Changes Make

the Difference

With advances in curricula and staff, the year was full of changes. Juniors were relieved that they could use calculators on the S.A.T. to solve difficult problems. AP Chemistry, taught by Mrs. Griffith, offered seniors the chance to get college credits. The Accelerated Reading program allowed lower school students a chance to test and improve their reading skills. In the Learning Center, Ms. Torrie O'Hear and Mrs. Carol Updyke were available to give one-on-one help to students. Through it all, innovation and creativity helped bring out the best at CPA.

Learning Center teacher, Mrs. Carol Updyke, prepares her schedule for the day.

Juniors Jamie Floyd, Ashley Woodard, and Wanda Herndon look at the schedule for the S.A.T. testing dates.

Mrs. Wertz answers a history question by seventh grader Mary-Margaret White.

Ms. Bowman, art instructor, helps Laura Aiken choose the materials she needs for art class.

ACTIONS SPEAK

OUT

Almost every day after school someone caught his breath, a teammate shouted encouragement, a coach bel-lowed his instructions, or the catchy rhythm of a new cheer floated across the parking lot. These were the sounds of the preparations for the BIG game.

Whether it was a contest of football, basketball, of another sport, the shrill tones of the referee's whistle and the shouts of the fans succeeded in stirring the excitement as the players faced their opponents. Then, until the final buzzer rang, the War Hawks strove to do their best.

Before the game, the Hawks took time out to talk about game strategy. This last minute preparation proved effective with a victory over Dorchester.

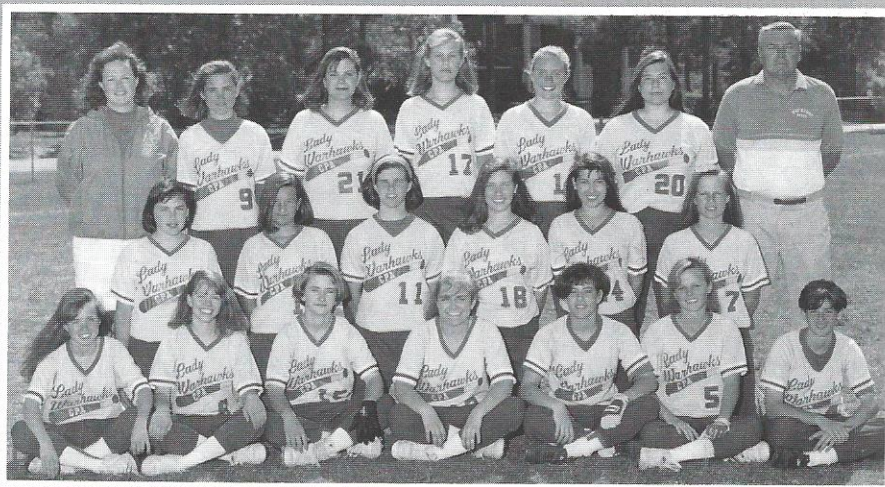

Lindsay, Kimberly, and Heather practice vigorously before their opponents from Sea Island arrive for the long awaited conference game.

Hitting Home

RUNS

The Lady Hawks had a tough, hard-working season. With practice every afternoon, these girls proved that they could stand the hard work that was needed to have a strong team. "Softball," said Susan Drawdy, "is the toughest sport to play because you have to block away all of these spring fever temptations and concentrate on the game." Therefore, with dedication and spirit among the team members, the Lady Warhawks finished off another season with a winning record of 6-5. With a mixture of new and old team members, the girls worked together with enthusiasm. They put forth their best throughout the year until the playoffs at Avalon, but they returned home defeated by one run.

"I believe that the team can look forward to a better season, even though because of soccer, the number of players may decrease," said Christy Farnoli. The team has also graduated many valuable players including Marnie Ameron, Marie Deloach, Dargan Rowe, and Anne Clamp. However, because of the perseverance and optimism, the Lady Warhawks are anticipating improvement.

The 1993 Varsity baseball team consisted of thirteen players who lacked experience, but had great determination. The combination of talent and skill required for baseball was exacting, but the perseverance of the team became evident during the two hour daily practices. Early in the season Coach Brittle had decided that "All our players have ability — they need to concentrate on the game." Perry Hunt agreed. "You have to take baseball seriously."

The Hawks enjoyed a great win over Beaufort Academy but still ended the regular season with eight wins and nine losses. Despite a losing season, the Hawks made it to the play offs, but were defeated by both Richard Winn and Avalon. "Next season our team will be older and stronger, which hopefully will be a winning advantage," said Shaw Regenovich.

Awards given at the 1993 Athletic Banquet went to Bert Sweat for most improved player, Jason Strickland for best batting average, and Lance Dennis for most valuable player and second best batting average.

Despite losing three starting players and having to get to know a new coach, Kim Bethay, the tennis team still managed to have a winning season. The team was the conference champion for the third consecutive year, but couldn't successfully defend the state championship title. Coach Bethay was not daunted by this. "We will get them next year. Our team is young, but promising. I hope that everyone is planning to return next season."

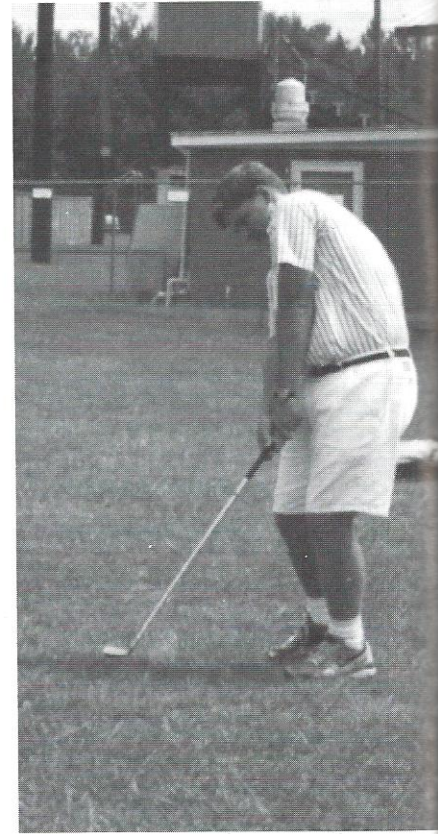

A trip to the Masters to learn techniques from the professionals helped instruct and boost the morale of the golf team. "It was exciting and fascinating to watch Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer play in person," said Ginger Speaks.

The golf and tennis teams played in a tournament at Fripp Island. Laurel Anne Oswald came in second place, and Carmon Valentine came in third in the overall competition among four schools. Coach Danny Parnell was pleased with the results. "We play to have fun," he said. "all that matters is that they play fair, and enjoy it."

Go For The # GOAL

Overall the 1993 Warhawk football team had a good season. In the beginning the Hawks had a few losses but got their act together by practicing and concentrating harder. One major accomplishment was a three-way tie between Clarendon Hall, Holly Hill and CPA for Conference Championship. The Hawks also made it to the first round of the State playoffs this year. Unfortunately, their season ended when Wardlaw defeated them 13-12.

After losing five starters, the team consisted of nine seniors, three juniors, and nine sophomores. "This year our team was older and more experienced, just not motivated," stated Coach Brittle. The coaching staff consisted of Coach Brittle, Coach Morehead, Coach Parnell, Travis Morehead, and Shan Pye, assisting.

Awards given at the 1993 Athletic Banquet were to Jason Stripling, most improved; Shaw Regenovich, most valuable player; Wes Pye, best offensive back; Marshall Morehead, best defensive back; Gene Alderman, best offensive line; and Jason Strickland, best defensive line.

Focusing in! Wes Pye searches for a teammate to pass the ball for another touchdown.

Spirit Of # FIRE

The 1993 Varsity Cheerleading Squad was dedicated to its responsibilities. Practicing twice a week, they prepared for cheerleading camp held at Coastal Carolina College in Myrtle Beach. "We had a great time," stated Amy Godley. "Our work really paid off." They won several awards for their spirit.

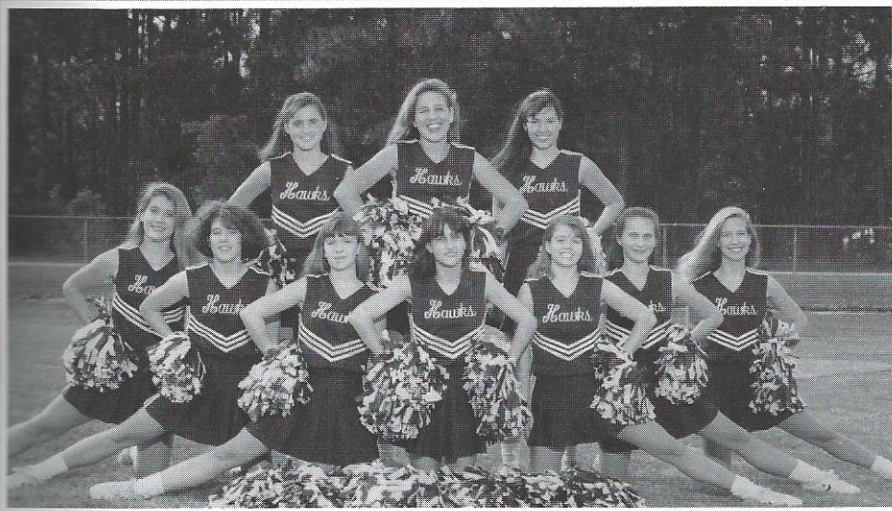

When the cheerleaders weren't practicing, they were painting the cheerleading stand, selling ribbons, or face tattoos on Friday mornings. To keep the students full of spirit, the cheerleaders made posters to decorate the walls, not only for the football team, but for all of the teams at CPA. They also worked hard on the pep rallies held during sixth period before home games. "The cheerleaders mean a lot to the football team. Even if we are playing badly, they are always trying to keep our spirits up," said Gene Alderman.

The cheerleaders also hosted the Jamboree, in which several squads competed. "We were involved in everything," said Angie Sweat.

Stephanie Padgett, Holly Griffith and Carmon Valentine practice their pyramid before the next game.

The Varsity Cheerleaders start another game with an energetic cheer to push their team to victory. These girls' enthusiasm spreads to everyone in the gym.

"Cheerleading camp is really hard work but I know that its worth it because of the great cheers, chants, and dances that we learn."
— Amy Godley

"Cheerleading requires a lot of extra work such as making posters and candy bags, and teaching cheers to the WeeHawk cheerleaders."

— Kimberly Smith

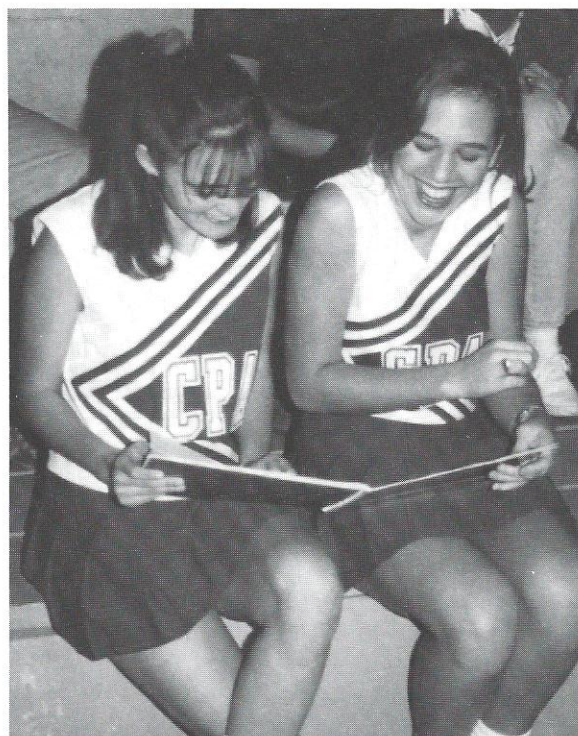

Around they go! Angie Sweat and Wes Pye spin around uncontrollably in the rallying "Dizzy Bat" contest as Susan Drawdy assists. There is no limit to the cheerleaders' imaginations during a pep rally.

Ashleigh Padgett, Amy Godley, and Stephanie Padgett practice a double-based stand before their half-time performance to perfect the cheerleaders' complete pyramid.

Captain Tracy Tittle and Co-Captain Kimberly Smith review sideline chants and discuss what quarter-change cheers will be done.

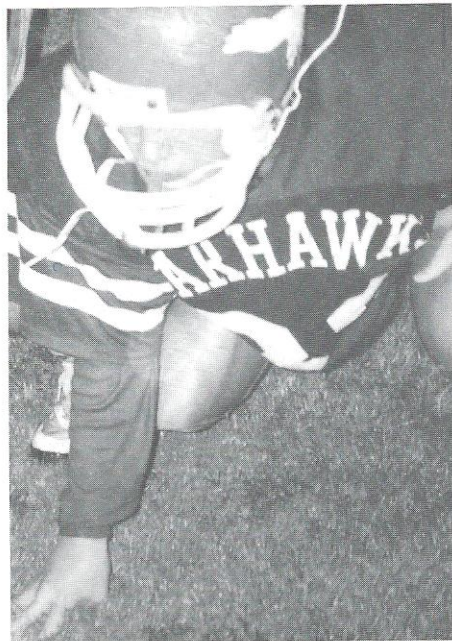

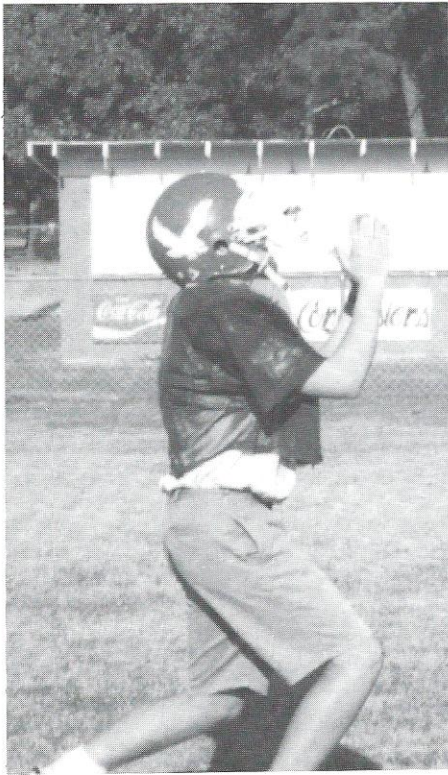

During a quarter-change, the Varsity cheerleaders perform cheers for the parents and special guests in the crowd. These girls work really hard to involve not only the players but also everyone in the audience.

Holly Griffith tacks up a poster in the gym before a basketball game, to support the team.

John Henderson practices his hand and eye coordination as he receives a return punt from a team member during practice.

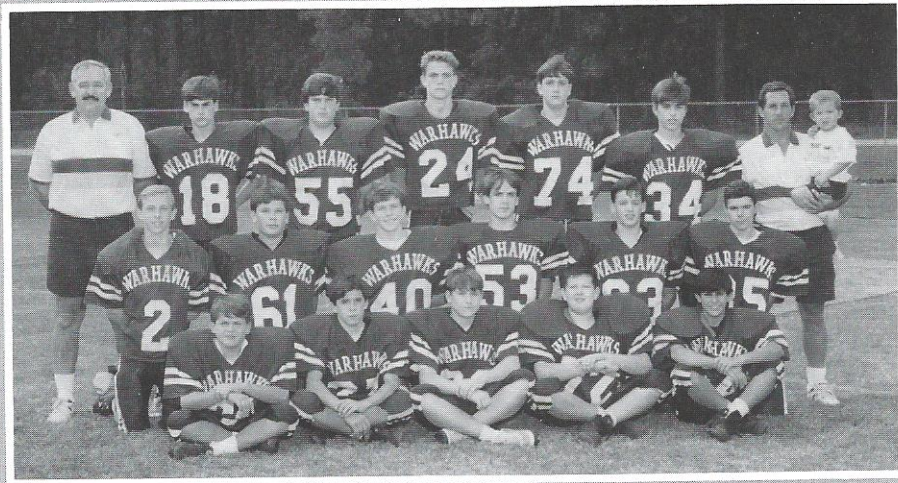

Grrr! Lee Stringfield growls at his rival before he attacks with a fierce tackle. Intimidation is a major key in the Hawks' defensive strategy.

No Time For # FEAR

Fear was not a valid concept of the J.V. Hawks this year. With little experience on their side, they worked diligently to form a team that soon became a family. As the new team took shape during practice and games, they discovered that sharing hardships in a common goal bound them together. It is this comraderie that helped them survive. They finished up the season with 2 wins and 4 losses. Coach Moorehead believes that their most successful game was against Country Day when all members participated in a win over the Rebels by 23-2. Participation was a key factor in the strategy of the J.V. Hawks. Both new and old team members were involved the entire season, which will benefit the J.V. Hawks in seasons to come. Although their record does not portray it, the team experienced a good season and anticipates better scoreboards in the future. As Jonathon Spell said, "We certainly have the potential and the ambition to be a winning team, we just need to gain experience."

Cheering wildly, the JV Hawks begin a knee-slapping cheer to encourage the JV boys to "rebound that basketball." These cheerleaders are always ready with a cheer or chant during all events of the game.

Before halftime, the JV practice their pyramid while Kelly Smith makes the final corrections.

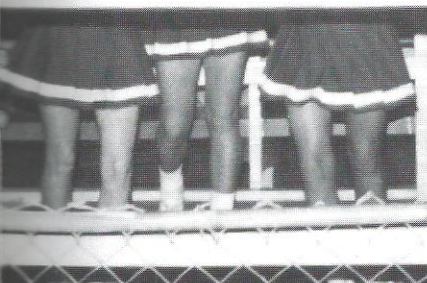

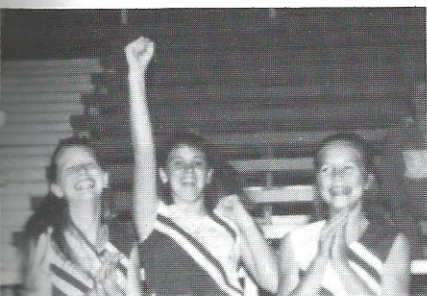

The JV cheerleaders, led by Cara Valentine, work diligently during their weekly after-school practice to prepare for the football season. They believe that "practice makes perfect."

During halftime, Coach Corinne Brittle and Co-Captain Kelly Smith discuss cheers and share a joke before returning to the sidelines.

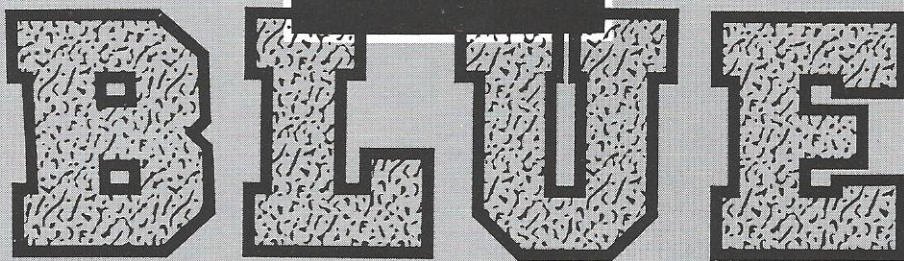

As the Hawks score again, Chris, Becky, and Hannah show their excitement by cheering wildly.

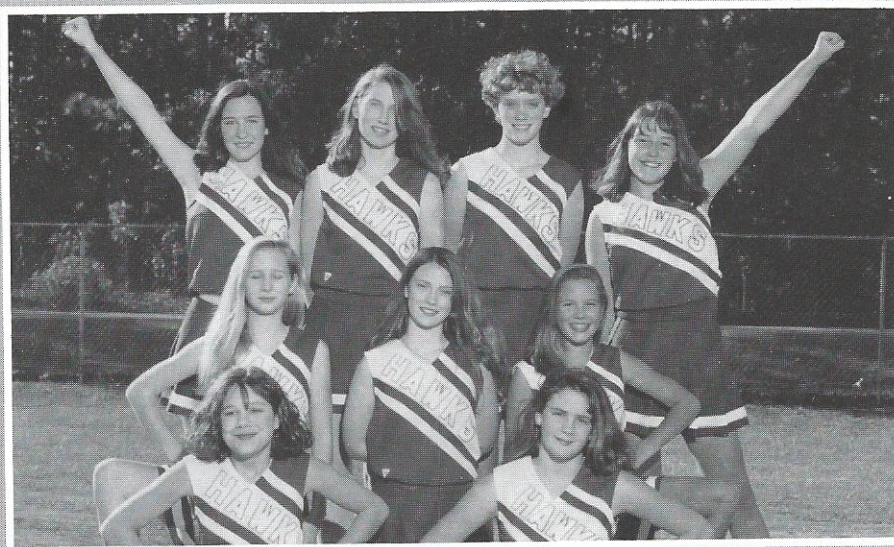

Kelly, Nikki, and Hannah cheer toward the fans and rouse their spirits as the scores rise.

Go Big

As the referees call a time out and the gym gets quiet, the spirited Junior Varsity Cheerleaders begin another rallying cheer and the crowd begins to yell again. This year's squad certainly seemed to possess the necessary spunk to rock the crowd. However, this spirit was not achieved overnight. The cheerleaders held weekly practices on Thursday afternoons and even held extra practices before they performed a big half-time show. They orchestrated cheers, dances, pyramids, and pep rallies to boost the morale of their team. As their coach, Corinne Brittle, said, "This year's squad was really special to me because they were prepared to give their all; and I believe that this type of dedication is what makes a special squad." This summer the cheerleaders attended the Carolina Cheerleading Association camp, where they picked up pointers on building pyramids and performing dances and cheers. They skillfully combined what they learned with imagination and motivation. Even though some of the cheerleaders will be graduating to Varsity next year, Captain Cara Valentine believes that "this was a dynamite year and we look forward, in a few years, to being united on Varsity."

Together. The 1993 Lady Hawks Volleyball team truly exemplified the meaning of teamwork. With an average of 3 games a week and practices in between, the girls certainly had plenty of time to form lasting bonds. The Lady Hawks completed the season with a winning record of 10-7 and an exceptional 4th place in the state playoffs. Their coach, Corinne Brittle, believes that the girls played the best at the playoffs at Francis Marion, when they played 6 different teams with a total record of winning 9-4 games. The Lady Hawks hope to place first at state next year although, as Ginger Speaks said, "It will be difficult without the graduating players, but I still believe that we can do it." Although exhausted, the Lady Hawks ended the season victorious. Overall, Ginger Speaks led the team in spiking with Tracy Tittle not far behind. The team especially benefited from the penetrating serves of Amy Carter, Holly Griffith, and Tiffanie Lee. A special thanks goes to Tina Patel and Susan Drawdy, scorekeepers.

Playing As A # TEAM

The Varsity Boys' Basketball Team will soon look back on the 1993-94 season as Unforgettable. Although small in number, these boys pulled together to win the 1994 State Championship. During practice, the Varsity Hawks sharpened their skills and learned play after play to enable them to defeat their opponents. However, what really brought them to victory was their undying devotion to the game. The team members were always seen in the weight room and in the gym on the weekends for extra practices. Although there were a few close games in which the crowd was kept on the edge of their seats, the Hawks almost always pulled away with the victory. As Coach Barry Morehead said, "I knew I had a good team when the members ceased being separate ball players and became one unit, composed entirely of teamwork and devotion." The team worked especially well offensively, scoring an average of 60 points a game, while their defense was equally effective with a high number of steals and rebounds. What teamwork!

Before the game, the Warhawk fans form a tunnel and pump up their enthusiasm. Garner Regenovich and Brandon Hiott lead the pack. Warm-ups are a big part of the team's game strategy.

Wes Pye mentally prepares for the foul shot while teammate Shaw Regenovich takes a break from the fast paced game. Meanwhile, Brandon Hiott has as easy conversation with his opponent.

"We had something similar to magic — teamwork. It was an honor to be part of it."
— S. Regenovich

"Basketball is a fun sport because it is non-stop action and you can participate whether you are playing or not."
— Patrick Ritter

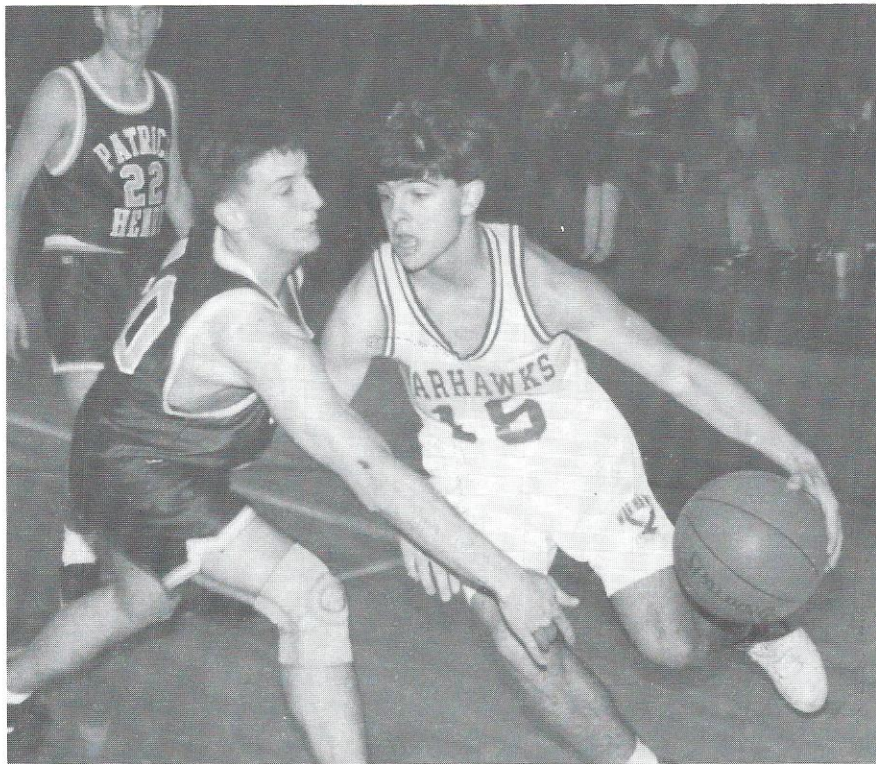

Wes Pye shoots a quick jump shot while Reid Updike prepares to jump for the rebound. In this sport, defense and offense certainly do go hand in hand.

Brandon Hiott shoots a long-range 3-pointer and increases the Hawks' lead over the Patriots. The team's strategy consists of a combination of short and long range shooting, thus making the team very versatile.

Driving past the offense, Garner Regenovich makes this sport look incredibly easy. However, the skill takes hours to perfect, and the Hawks are always willing to contribute time.

Making Their

MARK

With great hope and expectations, the Varsity Girls' Basketball Team started off the 1993-94 season in an attempt to defend their State Championship title. The Lady Hawks consisted of all returning players, coached by Danny Parnell and assisted by Lewis Tittle. Throughout the year the team played with unflinching determination and spirit. The Varsity Hawks practiced diligently, learning plays and sharpening their skills to increase their scoring average. The agility and quickness of the team members enabled the Hawks to play an effective man-to-man defense, which proved especially beneficial in the game against the Patrick Henry Patriots. The Patriots, as well as other teams who averaged 50-60 points a game, were shut down by the penetrating War Hawk defense and consequently only scored an average of 30 points. Although the Hawks' offense hit a temporary slump in the mid-season, the team's defense kept them strong until their shooting came around. As point guard, Heather Hoffman said, "I think of our team as a family because we can and have made it through good times and bad."

"I really felt pressure this year to defend our state championship, but it was great that people knew us."

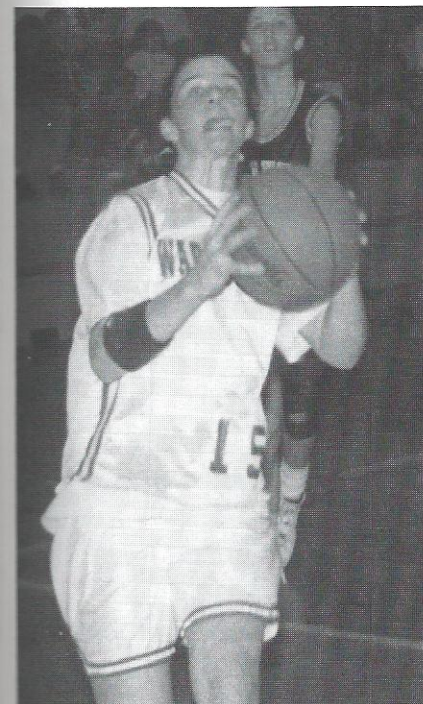

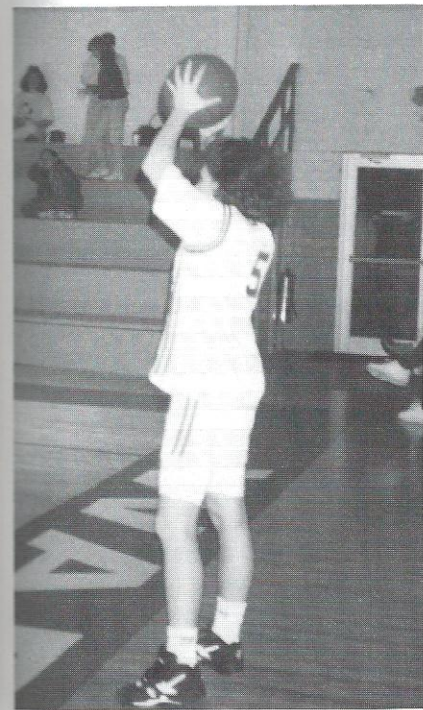

— L. Davenport

"Being on Varsity is a totally different experience from J.V. — it is a faster pace."

— Kaci Nelson

Stephanie Padgett yells "Break!" and the play begins. She looks around for a teammate to pass the ball and finally gets the ball to someone before the five second call.

During a fast break Lindsay Davenport goes for a lay-up. Coach Parnell says, "Fast breaks are great because then we don't have to run a play to score some points."

When the ball is shot, the entire Hawk team "crashes the board" in order to retrieve the rebound and try for the basket once again, as Kaci Nelson does.

As Tracy Tittle goes for a fast-break layup, she is met with resistance from the Holly Hill opponents. However, because of her confidence and accuracy, the shot is good.

In an attempt to drive to the basket, Carmon Valentine becomes defensively outnumbered. Looking for an outlet, Ginger Speaks gives the signal and receives the pass from the troubled player.

WORK

The Junior Varsity Boys' basketball team had some tough opponents this year. Fortunately the Hawks were a strong team with some experience. They only lost one player to the Varsity Hawks, and a few decided against playing at all. The core team knew how to work together because they had been playing together so long.

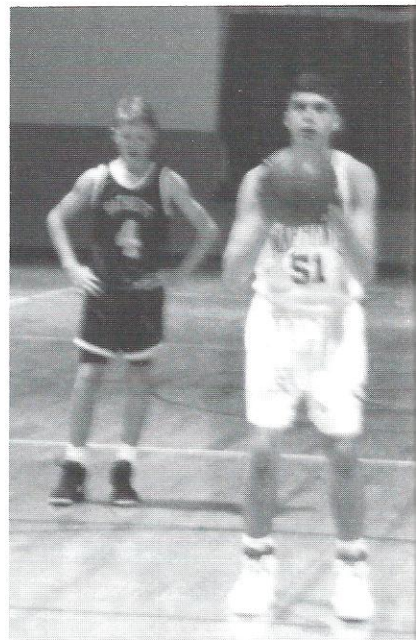

The JV Hawks were pleased with the results of their efforts, despite the losses. "No one's perfect; we really expected the losses more than the wins," stated Michael Wood.

As the Varsity team looks forward to the new players next season, the Junior Varsity players hate to see their key sophomore players leave. Next year the Junior Varsity team will be young and inexperienced because of their lack of playing time this year. "I hate to see next season come. We will have to work a lot harder to get a good record," said Hunter White. Next season will be a rebuilding season for Coach Morehead and The JV Hawks.

TIME

The 1993-94 Junior Varsity Girls' basketball team had enthusiasm as well as experience, but stature was almost a handicap for them. "As a whole our team was small, but we had enough determination and spirit to make up for our size," said Melanie Hoats.

Just like any other basketball team, the girls had some wins and some losses. "The losses didn't make us lose faith," said Christy Fagnoli. "They helped us work at what we had done wrong." Both the wins and the losses help the girls prepare for the more experienced Varsity team. "There are a few players that are ready for Varsity," said Coach Parnell. "Next year others will have more playing time."

By the end of the season the girls had many ups and downs, wins and losses, but through it all the girls learned the main aim of basketball — to have fun!

The Time Of Their

Two activities at CPA include students too young to participate on the junior varsity teams: the Wee Hawks and the B-Teams. The Wee Hawks, cheerleaders in Kindergarten through fifth grade, practiced during and after school with the junior varsity cheerleaders to learn how to perform cheers and dances during football and basketball games.

The Girls' B-Team was coached by Mrs. Brenda Carter and managed by Reid Updyke. The Boys' B-Team was coached by Mr. Vince Farnoli and managed by Christy Farnoli. Both coaches and managers volunteered their time to work with the teams. The B-Teams were open to any sixth through eighth grader. They practiced techniques, played intramural games and also played against other schools on the weekends.

The Wee Hawks and the B-Teams are important for the younger students to learn the basics they need to know to participate on the Junior Varsity teams.

FCA

This was the first year that a Fellowship of Christian Athletes was offered at Colleton Prep. Available to grades nine through twelve, FCA was not limited to just athletes; anyone could be a member. The purpose of the fellowship was to allow the members to pray for each other and the Colleton Prep teams. "It is important for us to know that we have each other to lean on during the good times and the bad," said Brandon Fralix.

The FCA was headed by Coach Barry Morehead. Marshall Morehead was voted president, Susan Drawdy Vice President, and Jessica Street Secretary-Treasurer. There were only eighteen members this year. Next year more students should become involved in FCA after they learn what the club is about.

"I'm really glad Colleton Prep finally started the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. It helps the team members to think of each other and work better as a team," stated Coach Morehead.

Coach Morehead explains why prayer is important. Prayer is the purpose of the FCA.

Their voices could be heard continually, making plans for morning announcements, designing hallway decorations, and preparing for that FINAL deadline! Participation began early at CPA, sounding from the first Wee Delivery post office, to the distinctly diverse sounds of National Honor Society pledges, Spanish Christmas carols, and shouts of glee as the last piece of garbage was picked up. As many students divided their time among the many organizations, they found they were enriched by their involvement and proud to be part of the CPA experience.

Español

¿Comprende?

Before Christmas caroling, Stephanie Padgett and Kimberly Smith read over the songs which they will sing in Spanish to all the students.

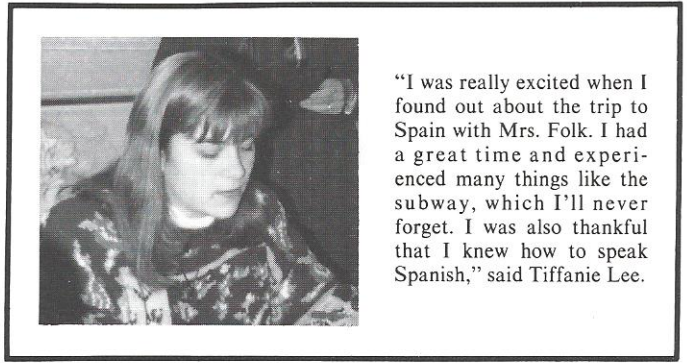

The Spanish Club officers for the 1993-94 school year are: Stephanie Padgett, Sergeant of Arms; Ashleigh Padgett, President; Laurel Ann Oswald, Secretary Treasurer; and Carmon Valentine, Vice President.

Just because students aren't enrolled in a Spanish class doesn't mean they can't be a member of the Spanish Club. Anyone in grades 9-12 can join. The Spanish Club, headed by Mrs. Sharon Folk, has been around for many years. They have picnics during school lunch, normally to discuss a main event happening in Spanish culture. The Spanish Club held a midnight picnic on November 2 in honor of Day of the Dead. They also sang Christmas carols around exam time to all grades.

The trip to Spain was another highlight, which lasted for two weeks in June. Mrs. Folk took six girls and three other chaperones. Spending their time in Madrid, Toledo, and Seville, they learned much about the Spanish culture and way of life. "It was a long trip over there but we had a great time," said Carmon Valentine. The Spanish Club has its own unique style.

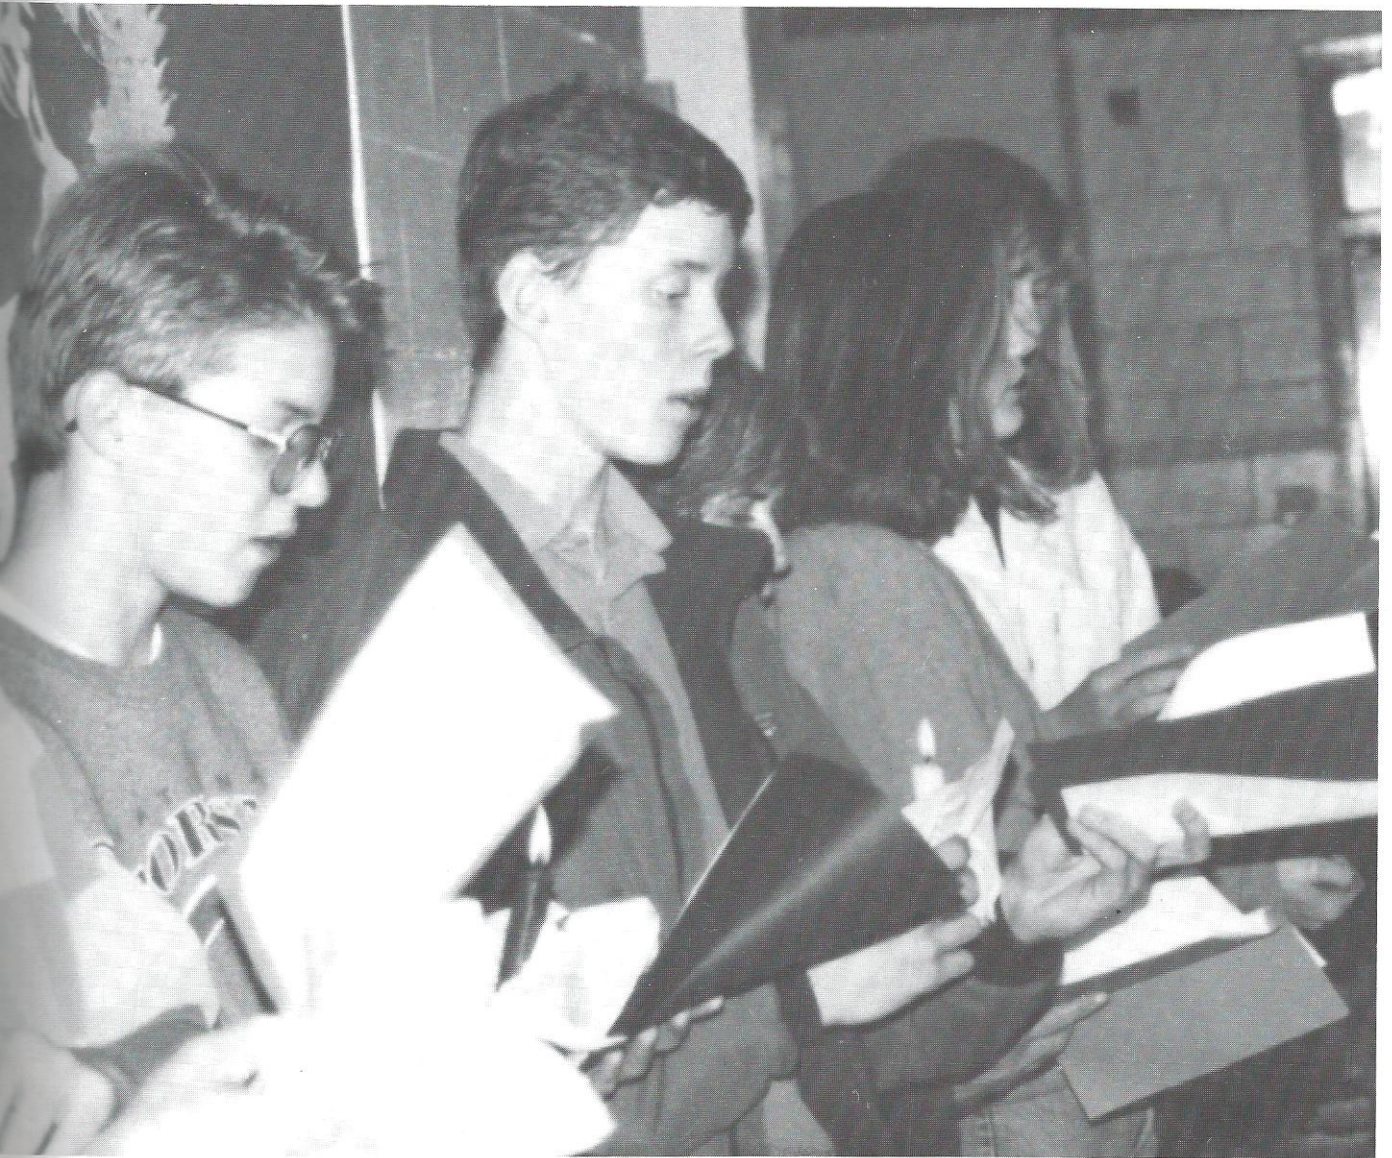

"I was really excited when I found out about the trip to Spain with Mrs. Folk. I had a great time and experienced many things like the subway, which I'll never forget. I was also thankful that I knew how to speak Spanish," said Tiffanie Lee.

In Spain Amy Carter, Holly Griffith, Jennifer Mixson, Kimberly Smith, Carmon Valentine, and Tiffanie Lee tour the Plaza de Espana in Seville.

Christmas caroling is a major event for the Spanish Club. James Murray, Henry Sauls, and Garnett Johnston sing to the lower school students by candlelight.

The Club

Putting Earth First

The Science Club has been a big part of CPA for the past two years, but this year it changed hands. Mrs. Kluwe became the new head of this organization. Not only was she enthusiastic, she was the only one willing to accept such an undertaking. "I was concerned about having such a large group," said Mrs. Kluwe. "But many participated, which made it enjoyable."

The club began the year by selecting officers. They participated in the Adopt-A-Highway Program three times, which determined who would go on the field trips. "The work paid off with the laughter that was shared on the trips," said Daniel Garris. The club hoped to experience new adventures like traveling to the Science Museum in Charlotte, North Carolina and also delivering flowers on Valentine's Day.

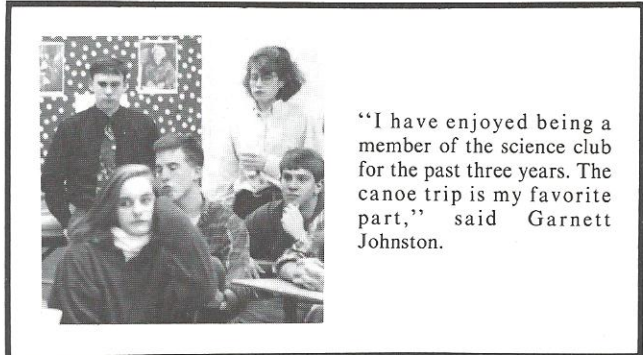

The Science Club was a very well-rounded organization that involved grades 9 through 12. The club increased students enthusiasm about science, helping them to enjoy learning. "My favorite part about being in the Science Club," said Lori Smith, "was helping to clean up the environment."

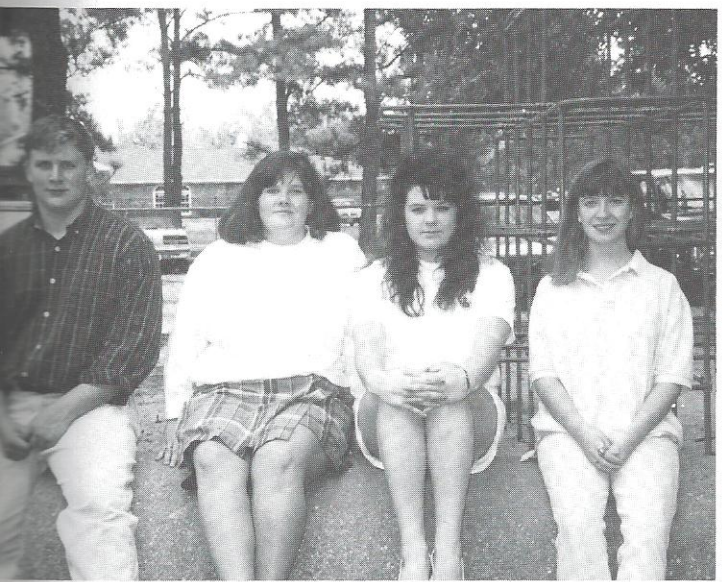

At the trash pick-up, Lori Smith, Stephanie Padgett, and Daniel Garris find that working together is the best way to get the job done in a short amount of time.

Patrick Ritter, Ashley Woodard, and Heather Hoffman listen carefully as Mrs. Kluwe, the advisor, goes over the Adopt-a-Highway schedule.

"I have enjoyed being a member of the science club for the past three years. The canoe trip is my favorite part," said Garnett Johnston.

The Science Club officers are as follow: Ashley Woodard, President; Amy Carter, Vice President; Beth Childers, Secretary; and Holly Griffith, Treasurer.

To show appreciation for the trash pickup, Mr. Kluwe provides doughnuts for those who participate. Brandon Hiott smiles as he helps himself.

The Society

Best Of The Best

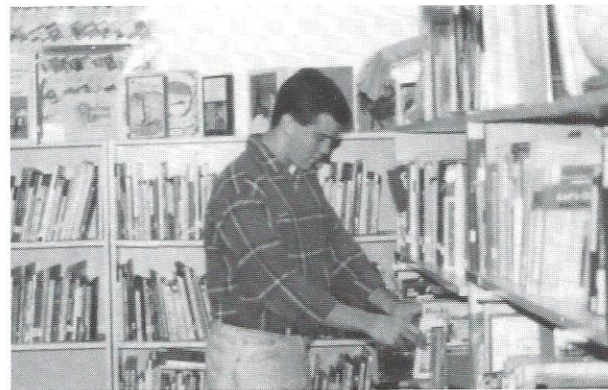

To any sophomore, junior, or senior, being inducted into the National Honor Society is a privilege. "Being inducted into the NHS was a great honor, but I was really nervous when my candle wouldn't light," said Kimberly Smith. Students in grades 10-12 are eligible if they have maintained a B average or better. Dedication, leadership, and honor are just a few of the qualities needed to be an outstanding member.

This year the National Honor Society took on a new duty. Every member was required to work in the library as often as possible. "I learned a lot about the library, like where the books go," said Jamie Floyd, "but I was also helping Mrs. Brightwell." The NHS, headed by Betty Geohring, worked hard and showed true dedication.

Jason Strickland carefully organizes the books. This is a new project which helps Mrs. Brightwell out tremendously.

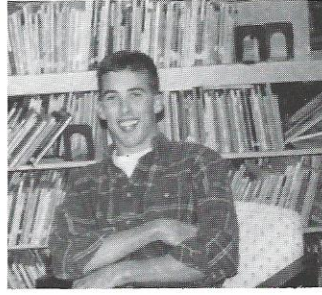

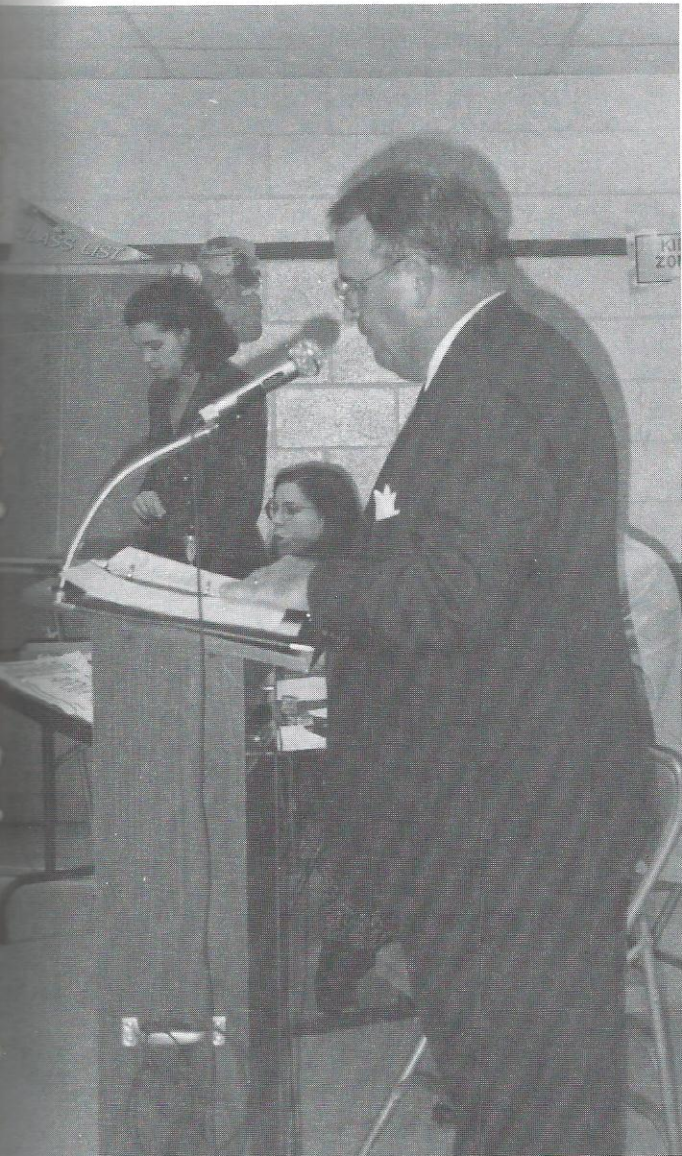

Being a part of the NHS means helping others. Patrick Ritter and Jennifer Mixson work on Pre-Cal, one of their toughest classes.

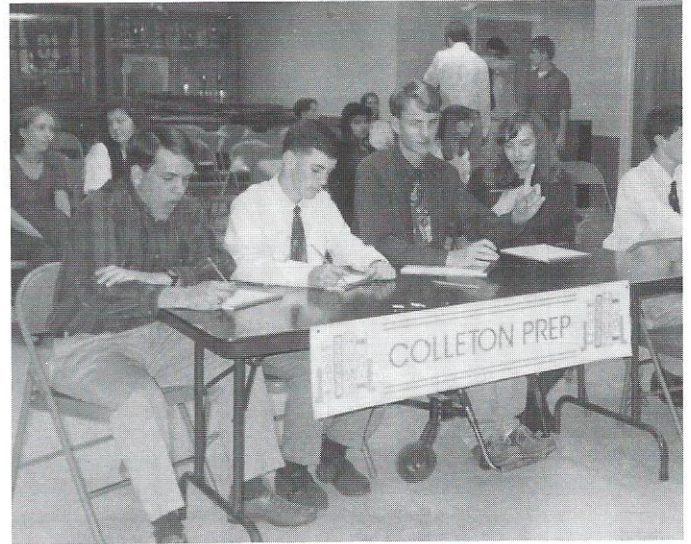

Kimberly Smith lights a candle as President Craig White looks on. The lighting of the candle is a tradition of the NHS that symbolizes honor.

Headmaster Raymond Quarles gives a brief introduction and welcoming speech to the visiting teams competing in the Quiz Bowl.

"I am proud to be a member of both the National Honor Society and Quiz Bowl. They give me the opportunity to share my knowledge and to compete to the best of my ability," said Brandon Sauls.

Jon Baggett, Michael Stone, captain Walter Fralix, and Wanda Herndon prepare themselves for another round.

The Quiz Bowl is a very challenging organization for which intelligence and a fast hand are helpful. "Being a straight A student isn't all it takes," said Jon Baggett. "Knowledge of many subjects is essential."

The Quiz Bowl worked hard to prepare for the match by practicing every Monday and Thursday during school lunch. The preparation paid off because the team came in second place for the region. Mrs. Reeves, the advisor, commented, "I was proud to have such a dedicated team that would give up their lunch to practice." The Quiz Bowl also had a scrimmage planned against Walterboro High School. Even though it was a small group, they had lots of fun. "We were all dedicated," said Wanda Herndon. "And we worked as a team, which made things better."

The Book

Capturing Memories

The yearbook, received in May, is important to students in all grades. It contains many memories of activities and sports, but most of all, friends. Without a yearbook there would be nothing to remind one of school. Everyone was worried when Mrs. Hawes, who had been the advisor for nine years, left. Then Mrs. Katrina Reeves came to the rescue. She, from previous experience, knew exactly how to deal with a young staff and what was going on. By working over the summer, the staff regained their confidence by getting better acquainted with her.

Working with the yearbook was not as easy as it appeared. The members sold ads over the first part of summer, then had camp in August. At camp they chose the cover, section design, and drew their layouts. The photographers also worked very hard, repainting and cleaning the dark room.

Many members of the staff who were in 11th and 12th grade signed up for a journalism class. This proved to be very helpful because it provided extra time to work on the yearbook. The yearbook is a hard job that takes dedicated people, which is what this year's staff was all about.

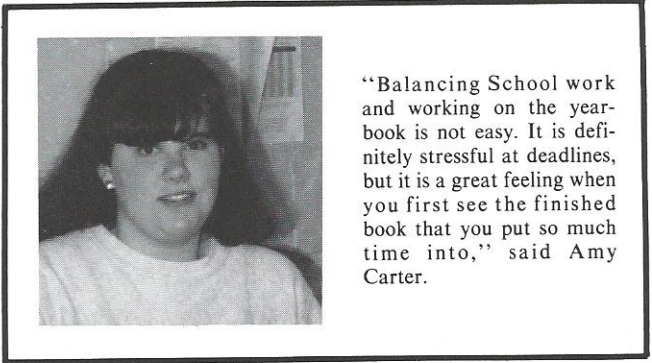

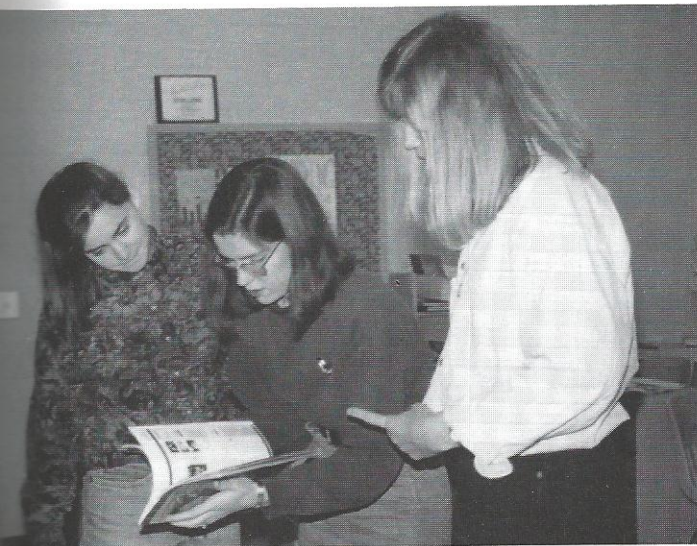

Tiffanie Lee, special sections editor, works diligently on her layout for the last deadline.

The 1993-94 yearbook editors include students in grades 10 through 12 who give up much of their time to work on the yearbook.

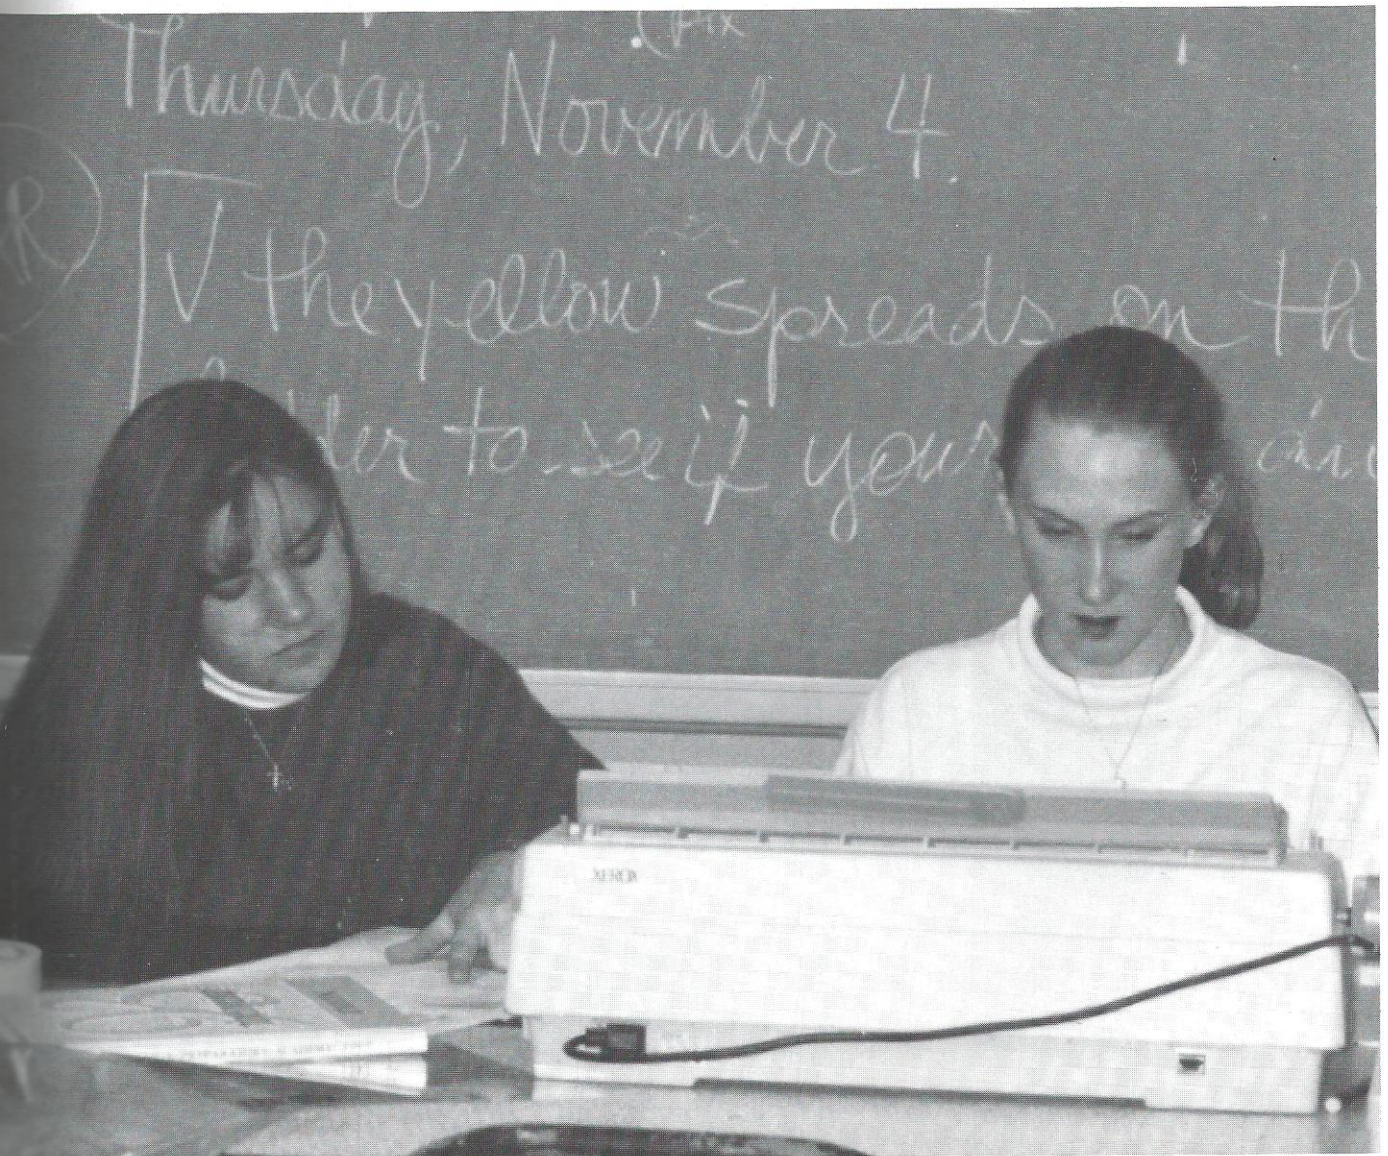

“Balancing School work and working on the year-book is not easy. It is definitely stressful at deadlines, but it is a great feeling when you first see the finished book that you put so much time into,” said Amy Carter.

Tracy Tittle, Mrs. Reeves, and Ginger Speaks search through clip books hoping to find new ideas.

Being typing editors takes patience and lots of time. Lisa Gentry and Shelby Trippe find that typing isn't as easy as it looks.

The Delivery

Sending A Message

"Wee Deliver" was designed to teach children how the U.S. Postal System works, unify the student body, develop responsibility, and encourage the community to support school programs.

Placed in charge of this program were grades 3-5. These students were required to take a postal exam and fill out an application so that interviews for postal positions could be conducted. After positions were decided the children accepted their duties at a swearing-in ceremony. Then they were trained by officials of the Walterboro branch of the U.S. Postal Service.

Mrs. Janet Buckner was an avid supporter of the project. "The exciting part about this was that every classroom had a different address. It was fun trying to think of a bird name." Each building was a town, each classroom a street, and each person a number.

This new organization proved to be a great success. Tyler White said, "My favorite part was being able to write letters and send them to my friends at school."

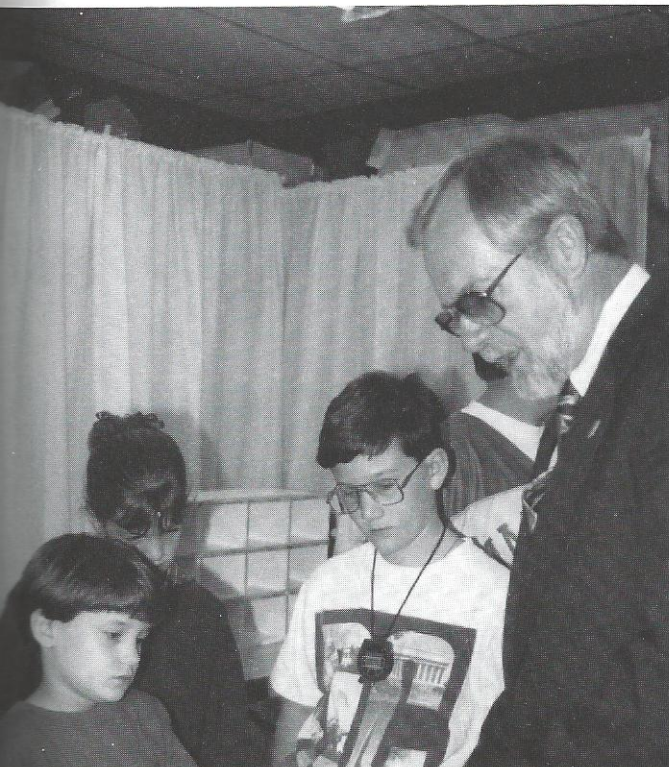

John-Michael Mayer, a letter carrier for the Wee Delivery, is busy making his rounds. Melanie Bell looks pleased as she is handed her weekly mail.

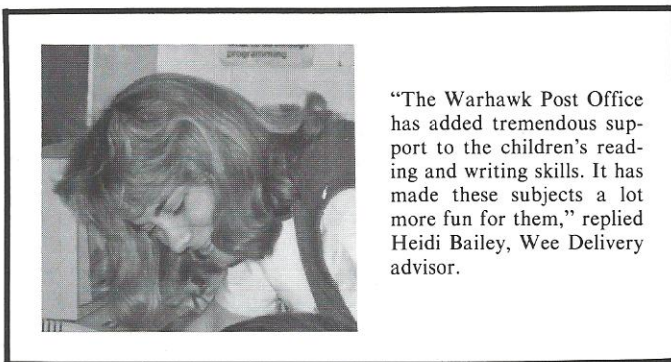

Headmaster Raymond Quarles smiles proudly as he begins to cut the ribbon for opening day of the school's first post office. Ansley Bailey, postmaster for the first session, anxiously awaits.

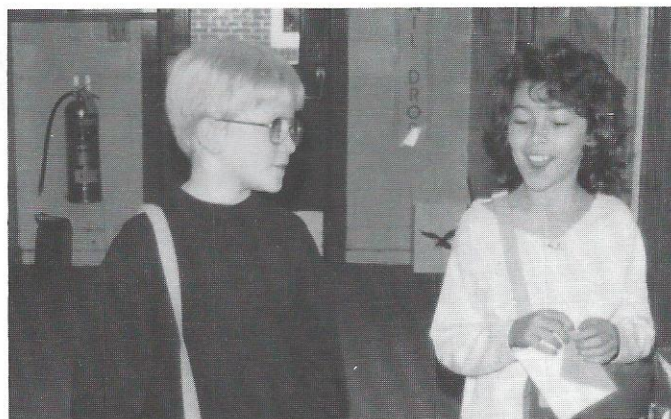

Being a mail sorter is not as easy as it looks. Sloane Upchurch and Sarah Kirby Dutton find out about separating mail. They stamp the letters, then place them in certain boxes depending on location.

Will Thomas, Ashley Smith, and Jack Beasley listen carefully as Mr. Wendell Butterfield of the Walterboro Post Office explains the importance of their positions.

"The Warhawk Post Office has added tremendous support to the children's reading and writing skills. It has made these subjects a lot more fun for them," replied Heidi Bailey, Wee Delivery advisor.

John-Michael Mayer and Terri-Lyn Steedly find out that being letter carrier requires a lot of walking. They deliver to all three buildings.

The Council

Leading The Pack

Meeting over the summer to plan a tentative schedule for school gave Student Council a head start. Not only did they plan school and community projects and fundraisers for the year, they set the date for class elections. Ginger Speaks said, "I was really excited about being class representative because I got to participate in more activities, including the Myrtle Beach conference." The Council began working on Secret Pal Week and Homecoming as soon as school started. The Council organized a Thanksgiving dinner for the elderly, planned a Christmas Party for the children's ward at the hospital, sponsored a family at Christmas, and a dance for the fourth and fifth grades on Valentines Day. They also took part in a food drive.

This year the Student Council stayed busy from start to finish. Their main goal was to have a successful year at the State Council Convention in Myrtle Beach, South Carolina. They hoped to win the award for Student Council of the Year. Divided into two sections by school size, the Council felt they had a better chance at winning.

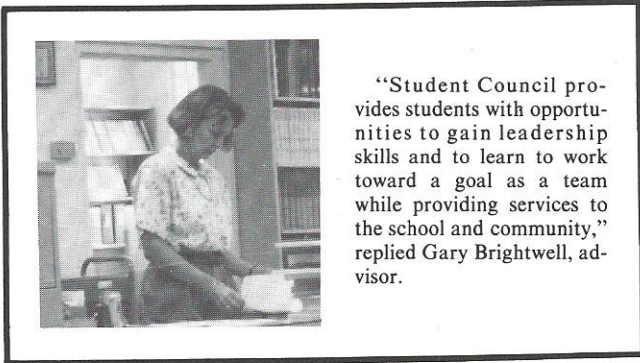

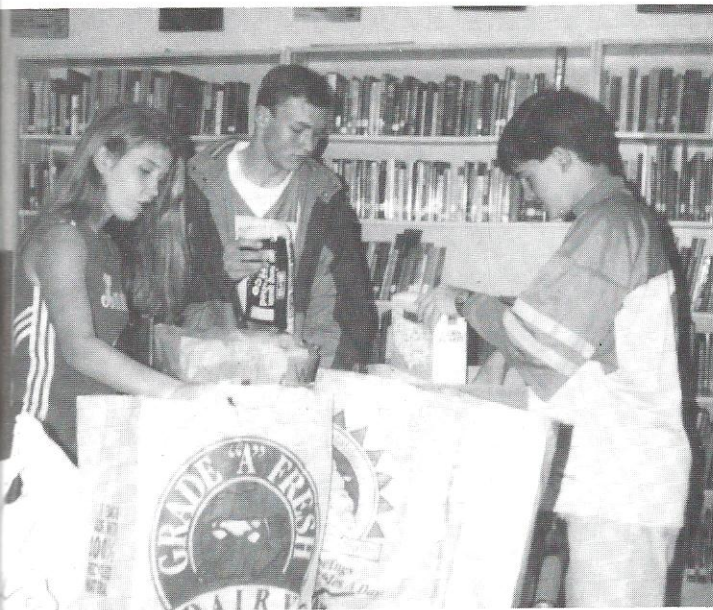

The officers selected for the 1993-94 school year are as follows: Amy Godley, Secretary Treasurer; Gary Brightwell, Advisor; Garner Regenovich, Vice President; Shaw Regenovich, President; Jason Strickland, Sergeant at Arms.

One, Two, Three . . . Dallas Wood, eighth grade president, counts the money made from the cake raffle. Even though this is his first year, Dallas proves to be a very dedicated member.

Listen up! Cara Valentine, the ninth grade representative, begins the morning's announcements. This is a weekly job that gives all members a chance to participate in school activities.

“Student Council provides students with opportunities to gain leadership skills and to learn to work toward a goal as a team while providing services to the school and community,” replied Gary Brightwell, advisor.

Ashleigh Padgett, Wes Pye, and Garner Regenovich are busy separating food. The food, collected for World Food Day, will be distributed in Colleton County. This is one of the many projects headed by Student Council.

How many links do you want? During the week of Homecoming, spirit links sell fast. The links, which make chains, give students a chance to show their spirit. But, as Ginger Speaks, Amy Godley, and Garner Regenovich find out, require a lot of work.

The Board

Spreading The Word

Does the work ever end? The YAB started preparing for school during the summer. To start things off, Mrs. Folk, the YAB sponsor, and four students attended the week-long program, Teen Institute. At TI, they learned about drug awareness and prevention, and discovered many other ideas to bring back to school. "My favorite part about TI was meeting new people. At the end of the week, I didn't want to come home," said Jennifer Beach.

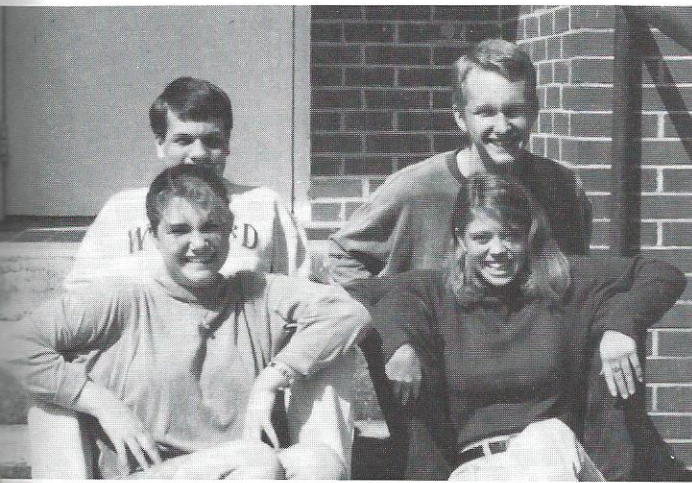

August was a busy month. The YAB painted Mrs. Folk's room and repainted the halls, which proved to be quite a task. Then they prepared for the first day of school by decorating the halls and selling school supplies during orientation. This was a fundraiser helpful not only to the YAB but also to the students.

For the first time the YAB participated in the P.T.O. by having a representative from the YAB on the board. The members also took part in Special Olympics, Walk-A-Thon, red ribbon week, and many other school and community activities. The YAB also planned to have a mini TI which would be a lock-up for grades six through eight. "The main purpose of the YAB," said Lindsay Davenport, "is to encourage younger students to lead a drug-free life."

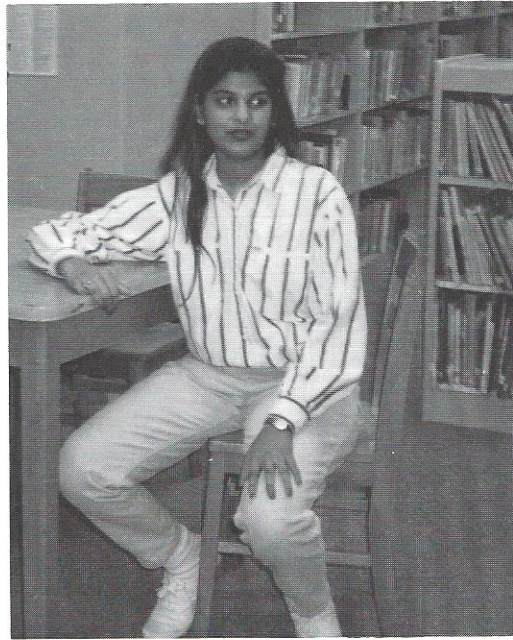

Jon Baggett, Patrick Ritter, Jennifer Beach, and Amy Godley are all very excited. They have just been chosen to represent the school at Teen Institute held at Coker College.

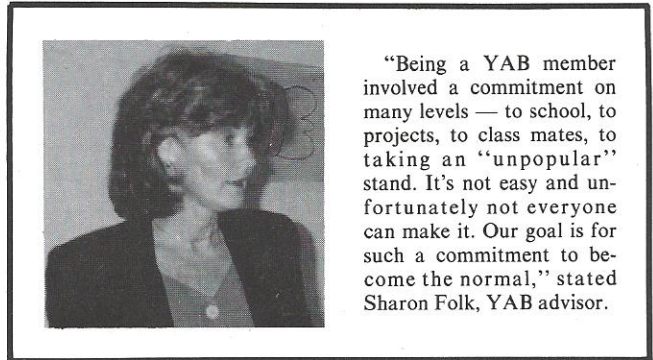

Ashley Woodard, one of the new members, works hard hanging up the streamers for Halloween. The YAB has decorated the halls for all occasions — sports, holidays, and graduation!

Karate? No, but just as serious. Jon Baggett and Patrick Ritter are engaged in a game that requires skill, memory, and quickness. This game is only one of the many ideas they learned at Teen Institute.

Tina Patel listens attentively to the qualifications of her new position in the YAB. Tina is the representative to the P.T.O. She will attend all monthly meetings to serve as a voice for the students.

“Being a YAB member involved a commitment on many levels — to school, to projects, to class mates, to taking an “unpopular” stand. It’s not easy and unfortunately not everyone can make it. Our goal is for such a commitment to become the normal,” stated Sharon Folk, YAB advisor.

Jennifer Beach carefully paints a heart for red ribbon week on Elizabeth Smoak's cheek.

Putting It Off

Fall fundraiser coordinator Sharon Gilmore discusses the plans for the Halloween Carnival with President Sandy Watkins.

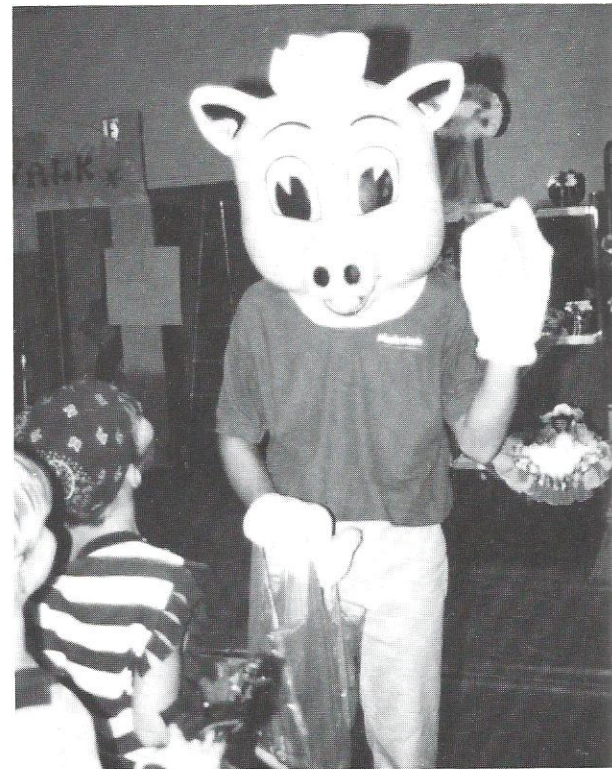

One of the PTO's biggest goals was to increase the student participation at its Thursday night meetings. "It's the student input that helps make the organization complete," said PTO President Sandy Watkins.

The PTO started off the year with an introductory meeting. Parents wore colored ribbons, each color representing a different grade, so that they could identify each other by grade. The purpose of this was to allow the parents to become acquainted with one another. PTO sponsored the Halloween Carnival, which is one of the most successful fund raisers. They also introduced a different format for their November meeting — a talent night. Students in all grades participated, dancing or playing instruments. The annual Christmas program, where grades K-5 sang carols, was also a success.

"By having a teacher to represent the lower, middle, and high schools, things will go better. Each teacher serves as a liaison between the students and parents to the P.T.O." said Kaye Speaks, PTO middle school representative.

The Piggly Wiggly pig is greeted by anxious and excited trick-or-treaters during the carnival.

Devotion

Mrs. Griffith and her daughter, Holly, spend time together in a Madrid restaurant. They were two of the travelers sampling the Spanish cuisine.

In dedicating the yearbook, the TALON staff chooses someone who has influenced our school — someone who added something special to our lives. This year, two people deserved this honor.

Danny Parnell has been involved with the school for seven years as teacher, coach, administrator, and tutor. Much of his time has been dedicated to coaching the JV and Varsity Girls' basketball teams; and in 1993, his Lady Hawks won the State Championship title. To both his teams and his students, Coach Parnell has become a great friend.

Mrs. Helen Griffith, since joining JCCA in 1985, has contributed much. Being mother, teacher, and Junior sponsor was sometimes frustrating, but she kept an optimistic smile while struggling with us through magazine sales, science fairs, haunted houses, and critical thinking. Her hard work, patience, and wisdom are appreciated, and have not gone unnoticed.

Mrs. Griffith supervises the construction of a Junior class Haunted House. She has, over the past three years, spent many afternoons making the Homecoming Dances, haunted houses, and proms successful.

Is he blushing? Mrs. Brightwell and Mrs. Folk sing a Christmas poem that they wrote for Coach Parnell.

Well, what do you know, teenagers aren't the only ones who use the phone a lot! Coach Parnell seems to be deep in thought with his conversation on the telephone.

We almost always go out to eat and talk after school and before games. We can discuss what happened at school and make plans for the weekend.

Courtney Stevenson
Lindsay Davenport

ON GOOD SPEAKING

TERMS

Neither frantic rantings over deadlines nor exclamations of delight as students received their yearbooks could have been possible without the support of the advertisers. However, the relationship between school and community goes much farther. Sports programs, Wee Delivery, and even pizza for lunch are some of CPA's benefits; while students offer their support in return with food drives, Adopt-a-Highway, and drug-awareness programs. Because of this participation, the sound of the relationship between Colleton Prep and the community is one of harmony.

COLOPHON

The 1994 TALON was produced by Jostens Printing and Publishing Plant in Clarksville, TN. This issue consists of 160 pages of 80 pound glossy paper. Times Roman (type style 45) was used throughout the book in 10 point for body copy and 8 point for captions. Editors chose their individual headline styles. The cover is a True Life Litho Cover with Purple (354), Red Foil (384) was used for name stamping. The board weight is 120 and the trim size is 7 1/4 x 10 1/2. 270 copies were printed and sold at $25 each. The first deadline was 10/11/93 and the last was due in the plant 2/7/94. Special Thanks to: One Hour Photo, Rob Novit of The Press & Standard, Mrs. Jane Litchfield, Jack Young, the entire TALON staff, and Mrs. Reeves.

Amy Carter

Susan,
 Since your birth you have been a beautiful addition to our family. Now that you have grown up you are a beautiful addition to the world. We know you'll find happiness and success because we are confident in your ability, self-knowledge and values. We are proud to be your family. We love you. Love, Mom, Dad, and Chris

Holly,
 May all your dreams come true! We love you, Mom and Dad

Brian,
 You'll always be our "BW Tumbleweed." Our love, Dad-Mom-Brent-Rusty Dog

Jason,
 Congratulations Jason! You've really made our lives interesting. We've had lots of good times together. We're very proud of you and your accomplishments! Keep up the good work. We love you, Mom, Dad, and Kim

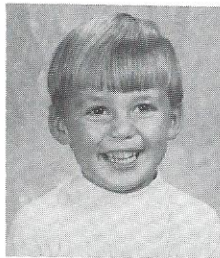

Trey,
 Congratulations Trey! ("Big T") It's been you and me against the world since you were only six, but through it all, you've always managed to conquer the toughest licks. So hold your head high, remember your morals and continue on, and always remember with God's help, you'll never walk alone! I Love You, Mom

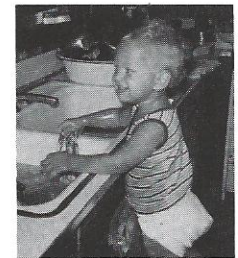

Steven,
 Congratulations! We are very proud you're our son. You are truly the love of our life. (You should have been a cowboy!) Mom and Dad

Bran,
 We're very proud of you! Best Wishes Always! May success be your future! Love, Mom & Dad

Walter,
 We love you! Mom, Dad, Brandon, and Jared

William,
 Congratulations, Big Will! We love you and are very proud of you. Always remember, you can accomplish anything you dream. We look forward to sharing those accomplishments with you. Lots of Love, Dad and Nanny

William,
 We are so proud of you. Believe that you can and you will. We love you. Mom and Chuck

Bert,
 Congratulations Bert! You've made us very proud with everything you've done. We love you. Dad, Mom and Angie

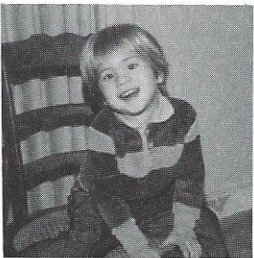

Beth,
 As we watched you grow, there was never any doubt that you would grow into the beautiful person you are today. You are a strong, intelligent, independent, loving, thoughtful young lady. Continue to believe in yourself and there is no goal in life that you cannot reach. Congratulations Beth. We love you, and we are very proud of you. Love, Mom and Dad

Amy,
 Congratulations on all your achievements. You are a special young lady who has brought much happiness into our lives and made us proud to be your parents. We love you. Mom and Dad

Jessica,
 There is no greater joy or feeling of pride than seeing you grow and become the very special person you are. Your family wishes you congratulations on this first step of your journey. Our love and God's love are with you always, Mom, Nick, John, Neema, Poppie, and Sheryl

Tracy,
 The memories of your school years are very precious to us. You have made us very proud to be your parents. We now look forward to the years to come, as we know you will reach your goals in life. Maybe MPOMBL! Love Mom and Dad

Dear Shaw,
 Thanks for the memories; you have given us so many happy ones. Thanks for your dedication, determination, and loyalty — your strength of character. You have made us very happy and very proud. We love you so much.

Since I don't have any younger brothers or sisters, I really liked Secret Pal Week. The lower school children looked forward to us sending them something every day. The picnic gave me a chance to meet them and get to know them better.
Lori Smith

As we come back, year after year, we carry on a tradition of learning, competing, and sharing. Together, we have recited the Pledge of Allegiance each morning and excitedly cheered the War Hawks at pep rallies. The Secret Pal picnic is one of the symbols that CPA is truly a family. U Don't Say!
