

Friends Forever

From the day we walked into our kindergarten class until graduation day, we will have always been together. We've shared everything: the good and the bad, the laughing and crying. From clothes to homework to secrets, we've always been together.

The Class of 1995 has never been without a friend. Someone has always been there to lend a shoulder, an ear, and to give a hug or a smile.

What will we do next year without our friends? Deep in our hearts we all know that we will never be alone because we'll always have a friend in the Class of 1995.

The Class of 1995 has always been blessed with great teachers. Five years ago, this year's seniors bid farewell to Mrs. Speaks, their seventh grade homeroom teacher.

Jamie Floyd, outdoorsman, showcases his high-flying acrobatic abilities on a playground swingset.

Many of the longtime friendships established within the class began on the playground. Lolly Oswald flashes a smile, while Kimberly Smith provides Carmon Valentine and Jennifer Mixson with the latest third grade gossip.
