

Leigh Ann, You have made me proud since the day you were born. This year's graduation is another of your accomplishments for me to be proud of. I am confident the next few years will be no exception. You started out in life with a big smile on your face, and you still have that same smile today. Even though you will soon be starting a life of your own, I want you to remember you will always be my special little girl. Love, Daddy

Leigh Ann, My Baby, There are no words to describe how proud I am of the young lady you have become. Times weren't always easy, but we always had each other and the love we shared. As you enter a whole new world, remember I couldn't be prouder or love you more. Mom

I love looking back to where we began, seeing us as we were at the beginning, then slowly leafing through the memories we've made together to bring us to where we are today.

I love anticipating the days ahead of us, wondering what we'll find in each other, in ourselves, and in our tomorrows, before another year, our final one together, has slipped away.

But, best of all, I love being with you where we are today, together writing the pages we'll remember tomorrow.

Ashley, Has it been 13 years since you could not wait to start school and have homework like Michelle? We have especially admired you for your good nature and patience, which should continue to serve you well. You are one of the two greatest gifts God has given to us! We love you, Mama, Daddy, and Michelle.

The first day of kindergarten, I was crying in a corner when you put your hand upon my shoulder. You told me not to worry. Over the years, we became best friends. Through the bad times, you were always there, and during the good times we laughed 'til we cried. The games, the trips, and the proms are now only memories of long ago. Now we must part and go our separate ways. Today, my friend, when we said goodbye, I saw a tear in your eye. I put my hand upon your shoulder and told you not to worry.
