

Corey Sanders McMillan

When you were an infant, people constantly reminded us to enjoy every minute with you. Over and over they'd say, "Before you know it, he'll be all grown up." This year, we've realized how right those people were. Thankfully, you've outgrown many things: running laps around the house at bedtime, growling at preschool teachers, "Pencil Olympics," fort building with Mom's folding chairs, finding your "stolen" four-wheeler in the woods; the list goes on and on, but we know all those events created the Corey we know and love today.

We can't imagine not seeing or talking to you every day, but are confident your tenacity and courage will make you successful. Wherever you go, whatever you do, always remember your family loves and supports you more than you can possibly imagine. More importantly, let your faith be your sight, and pray about all decisions.

Love,
Mom, Dad,
Connor, and Thomas (a/k/a "Little Corey")
