DAVIDSON 0—NORTH CAROLINA 20

Intercepted passes proved fatal to the Wildcats as Carolina triumphed over Davidson 20-0 in a well-fought game. Seven interceptions set up all three Carolina touchdowns, put an end to two Davidson scoring threats and in general wrecked the Cats' hopes of an upset. A large part of the game was a kicking duel between Davidson's Bethea and Miller and the Tar Heels' Dunkle, with the Cat booters having a definite edge.

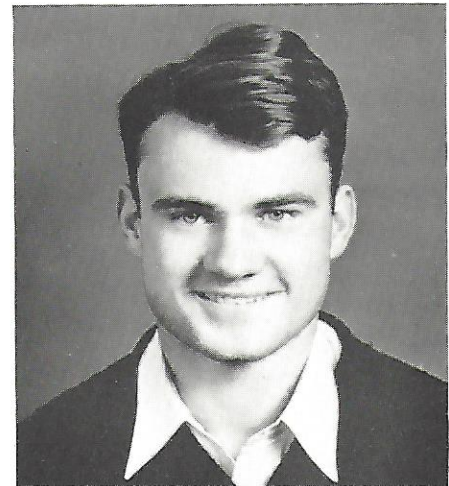

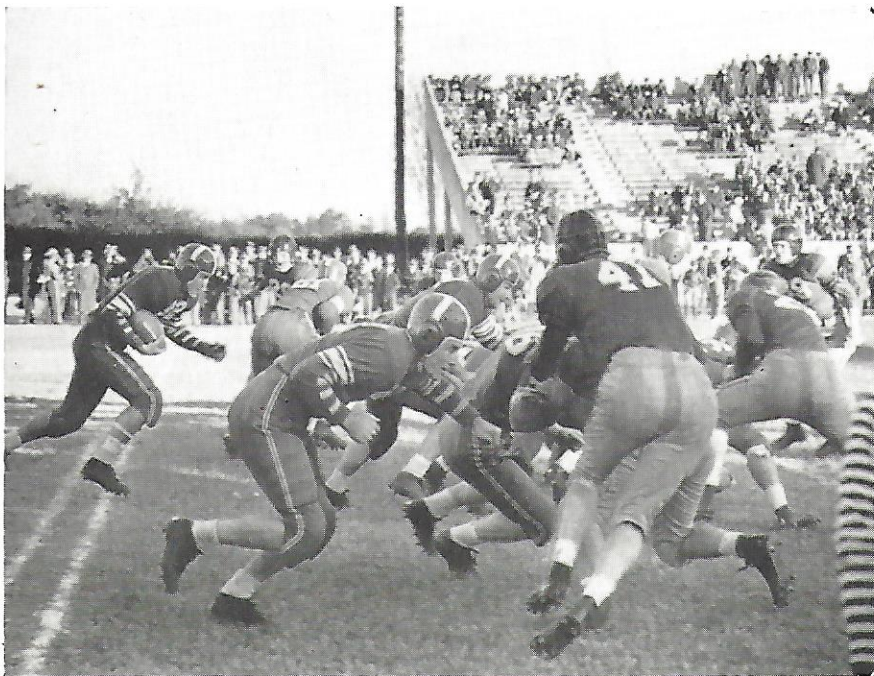

The three Carolina touchdowns were all scored on fourth down passes, after the hard charging Davidson line had bottled up the Tar Heel running attack for three plays. The whole Wildcat team played a bang-up game throughout the thrilling contest.

DAVIDSON 0—SEWANEE 7

Sewanee Tigers cashed in on one of three threats to defeat the Wildcats 7-0. The lone touchdown came in the first two minutes of the final quarter. Davidson threatened in every period but fumbles proved costly.

Johnny Miller did a masterful job of punting for the Wildcats, averaging 43 yards. Many of his boots rolled outside within the 20-yard line.

The Cats took the edge in first downs but Sewanee led in rushing. Only short passes were completed by either team. In this game, started the disastrous string of injuries which proved costly in future Wildcat games.
