Reaching the top not only means early dismissal and respect from underclassmen. Along with the achievement also comes responsibility, pressures, and challenges. You suddenly face the expected — happiness, relief, and a sense of power. However, conflicting with these emotions comes sadness, hard work, even panic. Being a Senior is not always easy! In the middle of total chaos, one goal seems to dominate the hearts and minds of the Class of 1998 — to make this the best year ever. In doing so, the strive to succeed in all activities while continuing to maintain good grades. They also begin to bond closer friendships which will withstand the pressures of distance and time. This is it, the beginning of independence, the ticket to a higher education, and the first step in achieving life-long goals. The distant dream of graduation we used to have is finally a reality.
