

Joey,

Where had time gone? It seems as only yesterday you were a little boy. It is with radiant pride that we watched you grow and mature from this little boy into the articulate young man you have become. You have made me a very proud father. Now as you embark on a new journey, we take extreme comfort knowing that you possess the intellectual as well as the social skills needed for success. May God bless you always.

Love,
Dad & Cathy
