

It has been an honor to be a part of the 2005 Challenger Staff. I will never forget the lessons it has taught me. It has taught me to be punctual, hardworking, and precise. Working with such incredible people made the whole experience worthwhile.

Being a member of the 2004-2005 Challenger staff has truly opened my eyes to many creative ideas. We've discovered things that really make this year's annual spectacular and I'm thrilled, as well as honored, to say that I took part in making this yearbook so wonderful.

This year was not only filled with the privilege of being a senior, but also a member of the Challenger Staff. This yearbook has shown to be a unique, yet traditional one. I don't think we could have chosen a better theme to proudly show "Where I Come From."

To "Miss" Karen:
The class would not have been the same without you. Even through those stressful days as deadlines approached, you remained calm and assured us that everything would be all right. We know we asked lots of stupid questions, but you were always there to help even if it was with a smirk on your face. Thank you for giving us the opportunity to be a part of your Challenger Staff. The experiences we've had and the laughter we've shared will stay with us as we each go our separate ways and begin our new journeys in life.

Being Editor of the 2005 yearbook has proved to be fun, interesting, exciting, and stressful all at the same time. But through all the stress, working on the yearbook has been a great experience. I have learned to meet deadlines, work together as a team, and make important decisions: Our group has come up with many new ideas to give this year's yearbook a fresh look. I hope you enjoy the yearbook, and I'll never forget "Where I Come From..."

From the 2005

Serving as one of the Business Managers on the 2004-2005 annual staff has broadened my horizons to soaring heights. It has taught me how to be punctual, precise, and creative through having to meet deadlines and come up with fresh ideas for new pages. Working with a wonderful instructor and a hard working and inventive staff has taught me valuable lessons about group work and dedication. I feel privileged to have been a part of the yearbook that truly expresses the "roots" of Dorchester Academy.
