

We were all there the night you were born. We waited for you up until the wee hours of the morning. We could not wait to meet you for the first time. We were all so thankful that you were a healthy and beautiful baby. We looked forward to spending time with you. We enjoyed every minute that we had. We gave you everything we had to give. We loved spoiling you rotten. Now, although your youth has passed and time with you is less spent, our love for you has not diminished. You will always have a special place in our hearts as our first born grandson and nephew. We will always be there for you whenever you need us. We ALL must have done something right because you have grown into a person that is admired. You have such a bright future ahead. There is no doubt in any of our minds that great things await you. Stay true to yourself, trust yourself and challenge yourself to think outside of the box. As Albert Einstein put it "Wisdom is not a product of schooling, but of the lifelong attempt to acquire it".

We love you,

Nanny and Granddaddy
