

The end of the year was almost upon us. Final exams loomed, not sometime soon, but NEXT WEEK.

Mr. Jones gathered us together in assembly for Awards Day to identify and congratulate those who had excelled during the year and to exhort others to emulate them.

After much delay, the yearbooks arrived during exam week.

It all became a blur - exams, report cards, graduation night. Solemn seniors in caps and gowns - surely these were not our old friends.
