

Bruce Hensley enjoys most the comedy part of broadcasting. He described the character he played on Wilfredo's Island as "a Cuban who's lived in Miami the past few years 'cause he always makes references."

(Top right), Yes, Madison Utsey, it's a microphone; you're supposed to talk into it.

(Above), Jane Ulmer, wearing the latest fashion in hats, attempts to talk and listen at the same time.
