

Putting It Into Writing

(Above) Editors feel relieved to see their articles in ink.

(Top) Rhonda Johns helps Donna Farrell iron out a problem with her work.

Because of increased expenses, The Warhawk was published only twice this school year, but those were issues of which John C'ers could be proud. The December issue included Seniors' letters to Santa and also highlights of the first semester such as football, Homecoming, and the first annual Fall Festival. The publication in May included the traditional Last Wills, Class Prophecy and History, and spring sports.

Freedom of the press is one of the civil rights which one often takes for granted. The Warhawk members felt proud to be able to express their ideas and true opinions.

"Working on the newspaper helps students to learn self-discipline as they meet deadlines. They also derive satisfaction in being the 'voice of the student body.'"

— Janis Blocker

